RIVAL GIRL'S STORY OF LEAP

U. S. REBUTTAL CENTERS FIRE ON INSULL PROFITS

Son's Story Ended; Defense Rests.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Two of the positions taken by Samuel Insull and by his son, Samuel Jr., in the course of their trial on the charge of defrauding investors in the $143,000,000 Corporation Securities company, were attacked vigorously by the government yesterday as the defense rested its case and the prosecution moved into rebuttal evidence.

The first position, that members of the Insull family lost heavily in their own investments in Corporation Securities, was met by the computation of a government witness, based on income tax returns, that they had made a book profit of $128,310 from the years 1929 to 1932.

Witness Contradicts Figures.

The second position, that the Middle West Utilities company, an Insull holding concern, was in good position in 1928, when its stock was bought in large blocks to go into the portfolios of Insull investment concerns, was met by the figures of another government agent to the effect that the company was $932,794 in the red in 1928 and that its reconstitution of capital structure saved the company nearly $12,000,000 in dividend costs. It was the Middle West which started this trouble and also caused the final crash.

Further rebuttal evidence along these lines will be heard this morning. After that the defense will present its surrebuttal, and then the trial, which closes its seventh week today in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's courtroom, will enter its final stage. Closing arguments to the jury will be heard next week, with United States Attorney Dwight H. Green presenting the final argument for the government.

Plan Directed Verdict Pleas.

Arguments on motions for directed verdicts of not guilty are scheduled for Monday morning. These will take some time, as there are six defendants of the 17 who have not taken the witness stand, and a serious effort will be made to release them at this time.

Cross-examination of the younger Insull was concluded yesterday morning without any serious change in his status as a strong defense witness. Special Prosecutor Leslie E. Salter plunged at once into the rebuttal, in the course of which he gave the defense some sharp uppercut blows. Both sides appeared to be satisfied with their prospects at this stage. Floyd E. Thompson, Insull attorney, said at the close of the defense:

"I haven't any doubt of our success. It was the government's job to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that these men engaged in a scheme to defraud, not just that they had bad judgment or misinterpreted the times or even that they mismanaged the company. We have shown that there is a very strong doubt."

U. S. Attorney Confident.

"We've proved our case," was Mr. Green's comment for the government.

The jurors were sent to their chamber early in the rebuttal while court and lawyers argued out the question of whether the Insulls' income tax sheets could be used to show the costs to them of the stocks which they put into Corporation Securities at its organization in 1929.

These were finally admitted as evidence, but only against the Insulls, and then William A. Jervey, government agent and former accountant, who made up the Insull income tax statements, was called to the stand. The first question put to him started another argument, and the jurors again were withdrawn. The question was whether the two Insulls took more out of the company than they had put in.

"Playing Safe," U. S. Charges.

"These two were playing safe," Mr. Salter argued. "They got back their cost. Their venture was a speculation in paper profits. The voting trust of 2,000,000 shares of stock did not cost these defendants anything, and it did not cost Halsey, Stuart & Co. anything. They got back their entire cost. They let their paper profits pyramid. If this thing had gone through they would have been repaid millions. The poor investor didn't get back his cost. He lost all."

The objections of the defense were overruled and the witness answered the question in detail, showing the stocks put into the company and their

Justice Frederic R. De Young Is Dead

STROKE PROVES FATAL; FAMILY AT HIS BEDSIDE

Rally Followed by Sudden Relapse.

Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Illinois Supreme court, who suffered a stroke Thursday, died at 11:40 o'clock last night in St. Luke's hospital. He was 59 years old.

At the bedside were the justice's wife, Mrs. Miriam De Young; his son Attorney Herbert De Young, and his daughter, Miss Ruth De Young, a member of the staf of THE TRIBUNE.

Justice De Young was walking near the county building Thursday evening with Municipal Judge Howard Hayes when he fell unconscious. He was taken to the hospital, but it was several hours before he regained consciousness.

Rally Precedes Relapse.

Thereafter he slept. He awoke, apparently refreshed, in the early afternoon and appeared to be much stronger. At 5 p. m. Justice De Young suffered a relapse. His physician, Dr. Arthur Elliott, was hastily summoned. Dr. Ernest E. Irons was called in consultation soon afterward. At 9 p. m. Justice De Young was placed in an oxygen tent. He grew constantly weaker, however, and hope for his recovery was abandoned in a short time.

Justice De Young had suffered two strokes recently, but they were of a mild character and he continued his usual pursuits.

Noted for Hard Work.

Justice De Young was known throughout his long political career for his prodigious aptitude for hard work and his intense application. During his service of ten years in the state Supreme court he wrote opinions in some of the most important cases brought before the high tribunal.

Especially momentous were two decisions to modernize court procedure in the battle against crime and gangland. One held that a defendant in a felony case had a right to waive a trial by jury; the second held unconstitutional a statute that in criminal cases juries should be judges of law as well as the facts.

The decisions, both of which were upheld by the United States Supreme court, were acclaimed by the bar as the greatest advance in criminal procedure for more than 50 years. Before these opinions 13 judges had been needed for the work of the Criminal court. Now seven are enough.

Native of Chicago.

Born in Chicago in 1875, Justice De Young was educated at Valparaiso university, the University of Chicago, and the law school of Northwestern university. His first appearance in public life was as city attorney for Harvey, Ill., in which capacity he served 12 years.

A member of the general assembly of Illinois for two terms—1917 and 1919—he was sponsor and champion of an impressive amount of fundamental legislation. His force of character and legal attainments won him the chairmanship of the Republican steering committee during his first term.

He demonstrated such ability in this work that he was made head of the judiciary committee, the most important committee in the house, during his second session.

"Most Able Debater."

"He is the most able debater in the house," the Legislative Voters' league said after his first session. "Although his legislative experience has been short, he is known as one of the three or four legislative experts of the body."

From 1920 to 1922 Justice De Young served as a member of the Illinois constitutional convention. His ability again was recognized and he became head of the important committee on judicial department which had to do with reorganization of the courts.

In 1921 he was appointed by Gov. Lowden to fill a vacancy as judge of the Circuit court. This appointment was followed in 1923 by his election to the Superior court.

Justice De Young resigned his position on the Superior court bench in 1924 after he had been elected to the state Supreme court. He had served in that court since, and had held the position of chief justice. His first term expired in 1933, and he was re-elected at that time without a contest.

POST AND GARAGE ANNOY AUTOIST; SPOIL HIS DAY

Sergt. George Graschow of the Irving Park police station received a telephone call yesterday that a man was creating a disturbance in an alley at the rear of 4943 Merrimac avenue. He went there and found Charles Krull, 43 years old, 4300 Oak Park avenue.

Mr. Krull, described by police as slightly bemused, was kicking viciously at a post at one side of the alley and cursing steadily and perseveringly. His day had been ruined.

"I was trying to drive down this alley," Mr. Krull explained, "but I couldn't get around this post."

"I tried to drive through there," Mr. Krull continued, pointing with his finger. Sergt. Graschow's gaze followed the finger with some awe. A one car garage at the rear of 4953 Merrimac avenue had been reduced to kindling wood.

"But the car?" the sergeant asked.

"In there," Krull told him.

It was. The nose of the machine protruded from the front of a one-car garage. The balance rested inside. Mr. Krull was dissuaded from his attack on the post and taken to a cell.

ALICE ENLISTS HER DRESS IN A GOOD CAUSE

Miss Alice Pates, 21 years old, 1705 West 14th place, a clerk in a Kresge store at 227 South State street, was passing through the store's locker room on her way back from lunch yesterday when she was halted by another girl.

"I have a chance to get a job across the street, but my dress is so tattered I'm afraid they won't give it to me," the girl said, gazing longingly at Miss Pates' new black dress. "If . . . ?"

Miss Pates agreed to lend the girl her dress until 5 o'clock, saying she could get along all right with her clerk's smock. The girl left with the new dress and Miss Pates waited. She waited until 5, until 6, until 7 o'clock. Then she noticed a bundle in the locker room. In the bundle was a tattered dress and a brief note:

"Thanks."

1,300 Ordered Cut Off County Relief Pay Roll

Facing sharp reductions in contributions from the federal government, the Illinois Emergency Relief commission has ordered 1,300 employés of the Cook county division dropped from the pay rolls, it was learned yesterday.

The drastic retrenchment action, which will save 25 per cent, or an estimated $130,000 a month, in administrative salaries, follows reports that the government has warned the state to find promptly a way to continue its relief contributions. The $28,500,000 obtained from the sale of tax warrants in anticipation of a state relief bond issue will be exhausted this month, and only small tax revenues will be available.

Some Employés Given Notice.

Howard O. Hunter, representative of the Federal Emergency Relief administration for this district, denied yesterday in Washington that the FERA intends to stop giving funds to Illinois. He said he expects to confer with Gov. Horner on the matter next week, and added that "there is no concern about the legislature doing the right thing."

Leo Lyons, Cook county relief administrator, did not have figures showing the exact number of employés to be dropped and their total salaries because it has been left up to each department head to work out the 25 per cent cut in his own way. Many of the staf members received notice yesterday that they are through Dec. 1.

The following table shows the departments of the Cook county relief administration, their estimated November pay rolls, and estimated reductions:

Department—	Pay roll.	Reduction.
Unemploymt. relief service.	$205,000	$51,250
Bureau of public welfare	206,000	51,500
Central charity bureau ..	8,500	2,125
Child placing service	2,975	745
Special services	67,695	17,000
Service bureau for men ..	20,000	5,000
Service bureau for women	8,200	2,050
	$518,370	$129,670

Denies Threat from U. S.

Mr. Lyons said that since the number of relief families is increasing the reduction in personnel will work some hardship on the remaining employés. Much of the detail now performed in the complicated relief setup will have to be eliminated, he admitted.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission, declared the Federal Emergency Relief administration had made "no threat" to hold back its funds until Illinois' legislature does something about replenishing its relief coffers. The question of how much state money will be needed for the purpose and how it will be obtained will be brought up at the next session of the general assembly in January, he said.

Criticism of the policy of the Illinois emergency relief commission of withholding its patronage on purely discretionary grounds was expressed by Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski yesterday. The judge's remarks were made after he had dismissed the injunction petition of Dr. C. H. Leitzman, Inc., against the commission.

The petition attacked the commission's policy of not sending clients to corporate dentists. Judge Klarkowski dismissed the petition on the ground that he has no jurisdiction.

"This is an abuse of discretionary power for which the commission can be criticized," the judge said, "but the only remedy I can see is an investigation by the legislature. Relief money is public money, and it is wrong to let its use be influenced by considerations of political or business affiliations."

Big TVA Dam Is Inspected by Roosevelt

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—From a vantage point on a mountain side of lush autumnal beauty President Roosevelt today looked down upon Norris dam, the key of the 300 million dollar Tennessee Valley Utopia of planned socialism, and found it "great stuff."

Far below him the project stretched as a gigantic stairway across the placid Clinch river. Above him taut cables hummed as huge buckets brimming over with concrete were tipped into the maw of the dam's bulwarks. All around were the whir of machinery, the chug of locomotives, and the creaking of cranes as 2,200 men scurried about their tasks in feverish activity under the presidential eye.

First View of Construction.

It was the President's first view of the 34 million dollar link of what the brain trust has hailed as the first large scale project in social and economic planning ever undertaken by a government outside of soviet Russia. For a full twenty minutes he craned his neck to chart the progress of the work.

At his side the directors of the TVA, Dr. A. E. Morgan, Dr. H. A. Morgan, and David Lilienthal, beamed as they visioned in a few short sentences the dam as a finished work. The dam is 253 feet in height and 1,800 feet long at the crest. It will impound the waters of the Clinch river, which gives little promise of swelling to such a height, and form an artificial lake with an area of 80 square miles and a shore line of 800 miles.

The directors pointed to the new timber line which will mark the margin of the artificial lake. This has been cleared by thousands of CCC workers. These lined the highway traveled by the presidential caravan at intervals of 40 feet from Coal Creek for 25 miles along the road to Knoxville.

Road Will Be Submerged.

The directors did not point out the road built since work began along the edge of the winding river. When the water is impounded the road will be submerged. Pressed for information on the amount of tax money expended for the ill fated road, officials dismissed it as inconsequential.

Nor did the directors mention that geological troubles are being encountered in fissures and crevices in the dolomite rock. They also passed over the problem of yellowish silt in the water.

The President left his vantage point to drive along a bending road for a closer view of the scarred valley. By loud speaker over the hum of activity he addressed the workers, briefly pointing out that he was pleased with the work.

Recalls First Visit.

He recalled that not a single pick had been swung when he visited the valley two years ago as President elect and now the project was rapidly shaping into reality. He promised to return when the work is completed.

"All who are working here on this great dam some day will be known as veterans of a new kind of war—the kind of war that is going to improve conditions for millions and millions of citizens," he said.

"Godspeed and I am coming back here when this great work is done."

The President pledged his full support to the New Deal experiment which is seeking to arrange society and to regiment industry and agriculture for 2,242,000 residents of the Tennessee valley. The basin of the river in its rambling course through the mountains embraces 99 counties in seven states with more than 1,000 cities, towns, and villages in 40,600 square miles.

Of its 2,242,000 population 52 per

BLONDE INSISTS PLUNGE VICTIM ENDED OWN LIFE

Faints Before Quiz; Tells of Struggle.

Dorothy Lawler, 20 years old, the Oak Park girl sought as the third member of the Wednesday party in the Medinah club, 505 North Michigan avenue, which led to the 17 story death plunge of Lucille Louise Nolan, night club hostess, gave herself up last night.

The pretty blonde ex-nurse, daughter of a well to do suburban family, readily admitted that she had been in room 1703 of the club with Miss Nolan and Broadway Jones, a notorious gambler and ex-convict, whose real name is Frank Lawrence, but she supported the story Jones related Thursday that the cabaret girl had ended her own life.

Query Shades Suicide Theory.

When the coroner's investigators shot at her the statement of Miss Nolan's sisters that Lucille had no reason for suicide, the blonde Dorothy said fearfully:

"Do you think I pushed her out?"

The investigation, at this point, turned to other channels and the inquiry along this line was pushed no further.

Where Miss Lawler had been since she and Broadway Jones fled, panic-stricken, from the scene of the tragedy, was explained only by the girl's statement that she had been "staying with friends." Who or where they were she did not volunteer, and the coroner's questioners apparently saw no reason for asking where the girl had concealed herself from police search.

Gives Up in Father's Office.

A dramatic scene was enacted in the county building when the blonde girl finally arrived. All during the day Attorney Abe Marovitz and friends of the family had been promising that she would be surrendered, although the times and places named varied widely.

Subsequently, however, Sergt. Frank Donohue of the coroner's staf took her into custody at her father's office. The father is John J. Lawler, an official of the Allied Industrial Products company, 17 North Elizabeth street.

The party—Marovitz, Donohue, Mr. Lawler, and the girl—started for the coroner's office, on the fifth floor of the county building. Dorothy, who is obviously an artificial blonde, was wearing a black coat and brown hat. She seemed extremely nervous, but walked into the elevator unassisted and went up with the rest.

Collapses in Corridor.

However, as she approached the door of the coroner's office and saw cameramen and the ranks of curious employés and other spectators she suddenly fainted.

Capt. Andrew Barry of the Chicago avenue police caught her, and, lifting her in his arms, carried her to the inner office. There the doors were barred against all but the coroner's "brain trust," and what preliminary explanation—if any—was given before the formal statement was released will never be known to the public.

The same procedure was followed on the day before when Broadway Jones was taken to the office for questioning. Although involved in a love triangle which ended in a tragic death, and despite his known record as a hoodlum and ex-convict, Broadway was allowed to make his statement in official privacy, and was then immediately released with only his promise that he would appear for the resumption of the inquest next Thursday.

Girl's "Statement" Issued.

When the "star chamber session" with Miss Lawler was finally completed, the coroner's investigators released her "statement."

She gave her address as that of her parents, at 1035 Woodbine avenue, Oak Park, and said that her last occupation was that of a student nurse in the Oak Park hospital. She is a graduate of Trinity High school, and for one week attended Rosary college in River Forest.

She testified that she had known Broadway Jones for about two and one-half years, having met him when he and his wife were taken to the hospital for treatment following a train-automobile accident in which they were injured.

Her story of going to the Medinah club with Jones, their arrival there about 5 a. m., and trip up to room 1703, tallied almost exactly with the story told by Jones. She and Jones are represented by the same attorney.

She told of her expressed complaints to Jones that Miss Nolan had been making repeated telephone calls to her home and begging her to give up keeping company with Jones.

"She told me I had my family and home and everything, and she didn't have anything but Broadway," Miss Lawler said.

Then, Dorothy said, as Jones had previously related, Miss Nolan was called at her home, the Goethe Shore apartments, 61 East Goethe street, and asked to come to Room 1703, the Medinah, to "straighten things out."

Denies Any Physical Violence.

What happened afterward in that room between the time of Miss Nolan's arrival and the time she plunged to her death was the subject of much conversation, but little was learned.

Confronted with the evidence of the disorder in the room—the broken glasses, the chips knocked from the wall, the overturned chairs, the scattered bottles—Miss Lawler still maintained that there had been no physical violence between any of the three.

Confronted with the story of a resident of the building who heard a man tell a woman to "Get the hell out of here," Miss Lawler maintained that Broadway Jones had used no abusive language.

She did state that Miss Nolan, in anger, had swept to the floor the breakfast which had been brought to the room, but in the same breath went on:

"Louise was very sweet. Everything was peaceful."

Confronted with the testimony that Jones had brought a fifth of brandy into the room, and later ordered four bottles of beer, and that all the bottles—including the brandy bottle—were found practically empty, Miss Lawler maintained there had been little or no drinking.

"Absolutely not," was her answer to the question as to whether any of the party had been intoxicated.

Tells of Averting One Leap.

Turning to the story of the two girls' quarrel for the first place in Jones' affections, Miss Lawler maintained that Jones, when Miss Nolan demanded he make a choice, had chosen herself.

"So then she (Miss Nolan) got up and went over to the window and opened the window and tried to jump out," the blonde declared, "and Broadway and I grabbed her and pulled her back in."

It was in this effort to save the night club hostess, Miss Lawler said, that she sustained the black eye she was trying unsuccessfully to hide.

Breakfast was then ordered, the statement went on, but Miss Nolan did not eat, Dorothy said. The time then moved on to about 11:30 a. m., when Broadway started into the washroom to prepare to leave the club.

She Screams; Other Leaps.

"I had my back to the window and couldn't see Louise," Miss Lawler said. "Then I turned around and saw she had opened the window and climbed up on the sill."

"Describe what happened then," she was asked.

"Well, I just screamed. It was such a terrible thing."

"What did Mr. Jones say?"

"He came running out of the bathroom, and I said, 'My God, she jumped,' and I don't believe he said anything. I don't remember."

"Did he pull down the window?"

"No, I pulled down the window."

Miss Lawler then described the panic that both she and Broadway Jones felt, and how they fled from the Medinah club, and went to a saloon at 3224 Fullerton avenue, where they remained for some hours before parting.

Denies Any Indiscretion.

They made no effort to call the police, she said, because Jones "didn't want to get me mixed up in it." When the questions turned again to the scene in the room, Miss Lawler maintained there had been no indiscretion. Confronted with the fact that her undergarments were found abandoned there, she explained that she had taken a bath, and left them off.

After giving her statement at the coroner's office, the blonde Dorothy was taken to the East Chicago avenue police station, where she made another statement, and was taken home. She was driven to Oak Park, with her father, by C. J. Cahill, president of the firm by which Lawler is employed.

Her father said she had been examined by a physician, who had ordered her to go to bed. "She has been under a terrible strain," Mr. Lawler said, "and we don't intend to question her about her experience. We are just glad to have her back."

Girl's Body Goes Back Home.

In the meantime preparations were being made to take the broken body of Lucille Nolan back to Rogers, Ark., the little town where she was born, and which she left for the gayer life of the city.

One of her sisters, Mrs. Marjorie Hill, of 921 Eastwood avenue, said that both she and the other sister, Doris Mae Nolan, of the Bernard hotel, 42d street and Drexel boulevard, would accompany the body. It was to be taken from Chicago last night at 11:30 p. m. The funeral is to be Tuesday, in Rogers.

Jones, who lives at 444 Diversey parkway, is at liberty.

DOUBLE VICTORY WON BY VALLEE IN COURT FIGHT

Wife Loses 2 Decisions in Alimony Battle.

New York, Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Rudy Vallee, the orchestra leader and crooner, won a double victory today when the Appellate division handed down two decisions in connection with an action brought by his wife, Fay Webb Vallee, for increased alimony.

Mrs. Vallee, or Fay Webb, as she is better known, has brought suit here to set aside a separation agreement made on April 5, 1933, in which Vallee agreed to pay her $100 a week for life. She contends that she was induced to sign it on her husband's "fraudulent representations" that his estate had been reduced to almost nothing, although she now believes him to be worth more than $3,000,000.

Prevents Suit in West.

Supreme Court Justice Bernard Shientag signed an order several months ago permitting Vallee to serve an amended answer to his wife's suit, and also granted a temporary injunction restraining his wife from proceeding with a divorce action which she instituted last January in California. This prevents her from continuing with the California action until the New York suit is terminated. Justice Shientag was upheld without an opinion.

Lower Court Upheld.

The higher court also upheld an opinion by Justice Charles B. McLaughlin, who denied Mrs. Vallee's motion to strike out her husband's counter claim in the aforementioned amended answer. In it he had asked that the separation agreement mentioned be declared valid and that a permanent injunction be granted restraining her from bringing any suit against him in any state outside of New York. He had contended her actions were brought to harass him.

NEW YORK SEEKING NEW TAX SOURCES FOR RELIEF FUNDS

New York, Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Controler Joseph D. McGoldrick, who called off his post-election vacation trip to Bermuda last Saturday when the city's latest relief fund crisis came to a head, today was forced to cancel his passage again. He was scheduled to sail tomorrow on a Furness liner, but the pressure of conferences, seeking to devise a tax plan to raise $40,000,000, forced him to forego his vacation.

The controler joined today with the joint committee of the boards of aldermen and estimate in mulling over a score of tax proposals, most of which have met with strong opposition on all sides. Progress was slow, and it is not likely at the present time that a program will be forthcoming before early next week.

The program suggested by the aldermen would increase the tax upon utility companies from 1½ per cent to 3 per cent, estimated to yield $15,000,000. A municipal inheritance tax on bequests over $2,000 was estimated to bring $10,000,000. A levy of 60 cents per $1,000 on bond transfers was proposed to yield $5,000,000, and a tax upon the undivided dividends of savings banks was urged to produce $5,000,000.

MUSSOLINI REACHES INTO THE CRADLE FOR HIS FUTURE SOLDIERS

ROME, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Italian babies will be literally born to uniforms under a far-reaching government order issued today.

Male infants, from the time they open their eyes, will be enrolled in the ranks of Premier Mussolini's "Balilla" organization, which trains children for eventual army service.

While the official announcement did not mention whether parents would be compelled to submit their offspring to immediate governmental supervision, it was indicated the vast majority were expected to do so in the same spirit with which they responded to other Fascist innovations.

The government's paternal interest will be limited to hygienic inspection until the baby is able to take light physical exercise. From then on he will be developed physically along studied scientific lines.

MRS. VANDERBILT TO SHARE GLORIA WITH HER AUNT

Mother to Have Her Two Days a Week.

New York, Nov. 16.—[Special.]—The substance of the decision which is to determine the future life of 10 year old Gloria Vanderbilt emerged today from some of the rumor and speculation which have surrounded it since it was outlined by Justice John F. Carew on Friday behind closed doors to counsel for the child's mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, and to opposing counsel for her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

The official decision, which Justice Carew will sign on Monday, will give aunt and mother an alternate custody of the child for the present.

Change in Child's Preference.

During this period of alternate custody, the justice suggested to counsel, the child should live from Monday to Friday with Mrs. Whitney, to whom she was intrusted two years ago by her mother. On Saturdays and Sundays she is to be turned back to her mother.

This alternate custody is to continue until Mrs. Vanderbilt decides the time has come to apply to the court to revise it, giving her more, or all, of the child's custody. The principal condition under which such an application would be favorably entertained by Justice Carew would be a change in the child's preference.

Chance to Regain Her Affections.

Little Gloria has already told Justice Carew emphatically, as a witness in chambers, that she does not want to leave Mrs. Whitney and would be unhappy if she were taken away.

The practical effect of this proposed decision is to give Mrs. Vanderbilt an opportunity to devote her week-ends, instead of to parties, to winning back the affection of her child, who, in the judgment of the court, received little attention from any one but a nurse before Mrs. Vanderbilt turned her over to Mrs. Whitney in 1932.

Last Friday, when the impending decision was outlined by Justice Carew, an immediate objection was made by Mrs. Vanderbilt's attorney that the mother would have no chance of making friends with her own child against the antagonism of a nurse who testified against Mrs. Vanderbilt. It was accordingly suggested by the justice that this objection could be overcome by having a new nurse engaged by the legal guardians of the child's property, George W. Wickersham and Thomas B. Gilchrist.

Appeal Is Considered.

It was the original purpose of Justice Carew that the decision which is to embody these conclusions for his signature should be drawn up in collaboration by Mrs. Whitney's counsel, Herbert C. Smyth, and Mrs. Vanderbilt's counsel, Nathan Burkan, together with the child's property guardians. Mr. Burkan declined, however, to have anything to do with such a document. It is, therefore, being drawn by Mr. Smyth and the property guardians.

When it is presented on Monday Mr. Burkan will attempt to amend it, and if it cannot be made acceptable to Mrs. Vanderbilt he will appeal.

4-WAY DIVISION OF S. REYNOLDS ESTATE SOUGHT

Winston Salem, N. C., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—A four way division of the 25 million dollar estate of the late Smith Reynolds was proposed today by two sisters and a brother of the slain man.

Their suggestion was contained in a petition filed in their behalf in the Superior court of Forsyth county.

It proposed that Reynolds' widow, Libby Holman Reynolds, former Broadway blues singer, be given $750,000, and her son, Christopher Smith Reynolds, who was born six months after his father's death, given approximately $6,000,000.

Under the plan Reynolds' first wife, Mrs. Anne Cannon Reynolds-Smith, would get nothing beyond the $500,000 allotted her in a divorce agreement of 1931. A daughter by that marriage, Anne Cannon Reynolds, would become the recipient of about $9,000,000.

The residue, estimated at about $9,000,000, would be used to establish a memorial fund to Smith Reynolds and be employed in charitable enterprises, under the proposed plan.

Reynolds' petitioning brother and sisters are R. J. Reynolds Jr. of Winston-Salem, Mrs. Mary Reynolds Babcock, and Mrs. Nancy Reynolds Bagley. The sisters reside in New York.

Police Lie in Wait and Nab Robbers in Filling Station

Two policemen, acting on a tip that robbers intended to hold up a gasoline station at 1501 North Cicero avenue, last night hid themselves in the station's washroom. Shortly before midnight the robbers appeared and menaced James Morton, 25 years old, the attendant, with pistols. Policeman Thomas Mackey stepped from his hiding place and forced the men to surrender. They gave their names as Joseph Renda, 17 years old, 1415 North Keating avenue, and Jack Spadaro, 20 years old, 1453 North Keating avenue. The pair were identified at the Cragin station by two other robbery victims.

NEW DEAL'S OWN BOARD WHACKS AT AAA AND NRA

Planners Tell Doubts of Worth.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—One of the most thoroughgoing condemnations of the NRA and the AAA was given currency today by the New Deal itself.

The White House made public the final report of the national planning board, composed of Frederic A. Delano, the President's uncle; Charles E. Merriam, and Wesley C. Mitchell.

The board depicted the future of America and a "new world" under a coördinated scheme of national planning. Then it appended a report by Lewis L. Lorwin and A. F. Hinrich, which concludes that NRA and AAA, the principal agencies of national planning so far created, are doing more harm than good. The board presents this report as "supporting data," assuming no responsibility for the views and opinions of the authors.

New Problem for Industry.

Messrs. Lorwin and Hinrich reported that while the NRA has benefited the country in some respects, it has created new difficulties for industry.

"One of the basic problems of the NRA," the report said, "is that of wages as a factor in fair competition. But the NRA has made little progress so far in settling the difficult problems of wage differentials between industries and sections.

"As regards long range objectives, it is difficult to find any semblance of planning in the NRA. In fact, the NRA has set up new difficulties in the path of industrial planning. To begin with, the process of code making for the purpose of recovery was so directed as to impede, rather than advance, the planful reconstruction of industry.

"The codes were set up hastily on the assumption that a bad code was better than none at all.

Much Guesswork.

"There was thus much guesswork and a lot of bargaining in their making. As a result the NRA has brought about a rift in the interrelations of industries. Each industry is supposed to contrive a solution of its own problems, and the 475 codes in existence are a complex and confusing system."

"The emergency agricultural recovery program has been seriously affected by the drouth of 1934," the report said. "What has been brought home to us is the extreme danger of basing a program on curtailment of output.

"The line between plenty and scarcity is too thin, and in any case in regard to most agricultural products the American people are still below an adequate diet level.

Creates New Problems.

"It is also obvious that before long an attempt to carry out the present short run program will create large problems. For instance, the program of eliminating acreage from production means a displacement of farmers from their present occupations, and the question of the capacity of industry to absorb such farmers is inevitably raised.

"The department of agriculture is aware of these complications. It is, in fact, the most forward looking agency in the federal government today in so far as planning its program is concerned.

"Nevertheless, one must point out some of the limitations under which long range planning is studied in the department. Little consideration is given to the questions of the best forms of farm ownership, of the relations of different groups in agriculture such as tenants, laborers, small owners and corporate bodies, and to the effects of social institutions on agricultural planning.

Subsistence Farm Doubts.

"Neither is the department giving full recognition to the question whether it is economical to put men back on the land on small holdings in order to give them subsistence employment, and whether a decent standard of living can be achieved on such a basis, or whether subsistence farms are going to become the dumping ground of the economic wastage of the country.

"Above all, little if any thought is given to the agricultural worker. These and other problems call for a greater coördination of short run and long range objectives than the department of agriculture has so far been able to achieve.

"In its major aspects the agricultural recovery program has been successful only in part. The main object of the act—the attainment and re-establishment of the pre-war price parity between agriculture and industry—was not achieved."

Subdues 2 Robbers with Wrench; Captures One

Warned by a friend that two men were robbing his plumbing supply store at 1042 West 59th street, Joe Goldstein, 37 years old, rushed there with a wrench last night, captured one of the robbers and drove the other from the store. The captured man gave his name to the Englewood police as Alex Campbell, 21 years old, 524 Fremont street. He maintained he did not know the name of his companion.

NEW LOWER TAX RATES ARE GIVEN FOR 6 TOWNSHIPS

Reductions Smaller than in City.

New tax rates announced yesterday for six country townships in Cook county indicated that 1933 bills in those districts will be considerably lower than those for 1932.

The reductions, however, will not be as great as those for the townships in the city of Chicago. County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, who computed the new rates, said this is because the country townships did not make such drastic economies as the city.

Unofficial estimates are that the county's 1933 tax bills will total $37,864,000 less than those for 1932. Much of this is due to replacement of the old state levy of 50 cents per $100 assessed valuation by the 2 per cent sales tax.

Oak Park Rate Drops.

The new rates announced yesterday are for the townships of Oak Park, Cicero, Bloom, Elk Grove, Berwyn, and Barrington. Except in the case of Oak Park, it is difficult to give composite rates because of the large number of special rates applying to taxpayers, according to the taxing districts in which they live.

Oak Park's new rate is $6.60 per $100 valuation, a drop of 45 cents from the 1932 rate of $7.05.

Individual tax bills for the other townships can be computed only by applying the levies peculiar to school district, park district and village in which the taxpayer lives.

For Bloom township the basic rate, applicable to all taxpayers, is 78 cents per $100 valuation. The other levies, applicable only if the taxpayer lives in the district in question, are:

Sanitary district, 1 cents; City of Chicago Heights, $1.25; Village of Flossmoor, 81 cents; Flossmoor park district, 20 cents; Village of Glenwood, 67 cents; Village of Homewood, $1.07; Village of Lansing, $1.34; Village of Olympia Fields, 36 cents; Village of South Chicago Heights, $1.21; Village of Steger, 92 cents; School district 153, $1.97; District 161, $1.35; District 167, $1.38; District 168, 52 cents; District 169, $2.00; District 170; $2.00; District 171, $1.24; District 172, $1.04; District 173, 74 cents; District 174, 80 cents; District 194, $2.00; Township High school 206, $1.38; Non High school, 48 cents; and joint bonds for school Districts 153 and 161, 3 cents.

Rates Given for Berwyn.

For Elk Grove the new basic rate is 94 cents. To this must be added as many of these secondary rates as apply: City of Des Plaines, 91 cents; Village of Arlington Heights, 99 cents; Village of Mount Prospect, 62 cents; School district 19, 22 cents; District 56, 62 cents; District 57, 96 cents; District 58, 35 cents; District 59, $1.50; District 60, 82 cents; District 61, 65 cents; Arlington Heights Township High school No. 214, $1.19; and Non High school, 48 cents.

For Berwyn, the rate for those living in School District 98 is $6.27. For District 100 outside of Berwyn Park the new rate is $6.38; while for District 100 in Berwyn Park the rate is $6.83.

Levies in Bloom Township.

For Cicero the basic rate is $6.94, to which must be added whichever of these rates apply: Clyde Park bonds, 20 cents; Cicero Park bonds, 21 cents; Clyde park district, 15 cents; Hawthorne park district, 51 cents; Joint school bonds for District 100 and part of District 99, 2 cents.

Barrington's basic rate is $1.03, to which must be added the applicable levies in this list: Village of Barrington, 89 cents; Barrington park district, 36 cents; School District 1, 83 cents; District 2, 91 cents; District 4, $3.38; District 5, 90 cents; District 6, $1.09; District 7, 65 cents; District 8, 74 cents; District 9, $1.18; District 10, $1.00; District 11, $1.02; District 43, $1.03; Dundee Community High school, $1.38; Non High school, 48 cents.

ARMY FLYERS READY FOR TAKEOFF TODAY IN TRY FOR RECORD

Mount Clemens, Mich., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Tuned and tested for the attempt tomorrow to write a new speed chapter in actual air race competition, a fleet of Uncle Sam's army pursuit planes rested in their hangars at Selfridge field tonight under the eyes of armed sentries.

Meanwhile Mitchell trophy race pilots and their fellow officers who will participate in the army relief fund benefit exhibition were honor guests at a banquet given by the Mount Clemens Board of Commerce.

Revival of the Mitchell trophy race tomorrow, after four years, with its preliminary program of aerial events, is expected to attract between 50,000 and 100,000 spectators.

The Mitchell race, with 10 pilots competing, is scheduled for 3:25 p. m. It will be preceded by the Curtiss trophy race, with six contestants, at 2:35 p. m. Preliminary events start at 10 a. m.

Danish King Tries to Heal Prince's Marital Breach

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 16.—(AP)—King Christian, it was said today, is trying to dissuade his cousin, Prince Erik, and the princess from seeking a divorce. The prince and his wife, the former Lois Frances Booth of Ottawa, Ont., petitioned the king for permission to seek a divorce. The general impression here was that the king would not oppose the couple's permanent separation if they persist.

BUSINESS MOVES TO TAKE LEAD IN RECOVERY PLANS

Hopes to Head Off More Radical Steps.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Business leaders of the country started today to map out a recovery program of their own in an effort to head off radical action by the Roosevelt administration or the coming session of congress.

At the same time, however, the New Dealers were reaching a tentative decision to impose a billion dollar annual tax on business in order to finance President Roosevelt's proposed social security program.

Hopeful of heading off this and other radical measures, business leaders as represented by the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce sought to devise a program which will satisfy President Roosevelt and congress.

Strawn Leads Movement.

The chamber's board of directors today adopted a resolution pledging itself "to coöperate to the fullest with all other organizations in an endeavor to reach a common agreement upon a program which will be fair and just to all and which will accelerate the efforts toward recovery."

Silas H. Strawn of Chicago was selected by President Henry I. Harriman of the chamber of commerce to direct the formulation of this "business man's recovery." Mr. Strawn indicated that he will call conferences with other business and agricultural associations and representatives in an effort to secure a solid business front for the recovery proposals.

Labor probably will not be included in the conferences, leaders indicated, because the chamber is already at war with organized labor over questions like the 30 hour week and unemployment insurance.

Base Hopes on President.

Leaders in the movement for a "business man's recovery" base their hope for its adoption on recent utterances of President Roosevelt in which, the industrial leaders believe, the chief executive took cognizance of industry's coöperative attitude.

"Utterances by the President," the resolution adopted today read, "encourage the belief that he is fully conscious of this attitude and that he is receptive of suggestions for the common welfare."

Behind the pence gesture of the chamber of commerce, however, is a feeling that the recent elections demonstrated the inadvisability of continuing direct opposition to the administration. The election showed, many of the directors said privately, that the Roosevelt administration is in to stay for two or six years, and that business must accept that fact, seeking to coöperate with the White House and thus to block radical moves.

Urge Balanced Budget.

Besides making public its resolution, the board of directors disclosed a report of the chamber's finance committee which called for an early balancing of the federal budget. Such a step is essential to preserve the government's credit, the committee reported, but it admitted that relief needs may unbalance the budget in the coming fiscal year.

Even while business was making these peace overtures, however, the President's social security advisory council, continuing its meetings here today, has virtually agreed to recommend to him that the unemployment insurance plan which he expects to lay before congress should be financed by a 5 per cent tax on pay rolls.

Even on 1932 wages such a tax would amount to a billion and a half a year, but exemptions are expected to reduce that total. This tax, not really designed to produce revenue, would be enacted to force employers to "contribute" to unemployment insurance reserves. They would be allowed to deduct all such "contributions" from the 5 per cent tax.

In addition to this unemployment insurance scheme, the advisory council is debating old age pensions, health insurance, child aid, and other costly social reforms.

Young Car Theft Suspect Seized; Sets Fire to Auto

State highway policemen yesterday arrested Oscar Grierson, alias Frank Brady, 19 years old, when they found him in an automobile which had been stolen from the estate of the late Edward N. Hurley, near Wheaton. Grierson and his accomplice, who escaped, had set fire to another automobile they had stolen in Wheaton. Grierson, who was armed, confessed that he was wanted by the Pittsburgh, Pa., police for robbery.

NOISE OF A PIN FALLING SOLVES A BIG MYSTERY

A modern version of the futile search for a needle in a haystack was enacted with a happy ending last night by the Albany Park police in the Terminal theater at 3315 Lawrence avenue.

The search began when Jules Charbneau of Seattle, Wash., who has a display of tiny objects, including a hazlenut containing 3,000 silver spoons and an electric clock the size of a dime, discovered that his most prized possession had disappeared.

He informed Albert Bachman, the manager, who called the Albany Park police. After the manner of detectives in popular novels, they ordained that no one in the audience should leave until the object had been found. The film was halted and Charbneau stepped on the stage.

"I shall wait here," he announced, "until the object that has been stolen is returned to me."

There was a dramatic moment of silence. Then a man who said his name was Jonathan Smithers stood up and said he had found the prized object—the Lord's Prayer inscribed on the head of a pin.

"I heard it drop by my seat," explained Mr. Smithers.

REPORT CHILD, 6, KIDNAPED; LURED INTO AUTOMOBILE

Relatives of Virginia Sbarboro, 6 years old, 5542 North Artesian avenue, reported to the police she had been kidnaped yesterday afternoon at Bryn Mawr and Campbell avenues.

The child was on her way home from school when, according to playmates who were with her, she was summoned to an automobile. In the car, it was said, were two men and a woman. Virginia got into the automobile and was driven away.

The Summerdale police were investigating last night a theory that the girl's mother, Mrs. Agnes Albin, had taken her. Virginia's father, Ernst Albin, a bartender, and the mother are divorced and the child has been in custody of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sbarbaro. Mrs. Sbarbaro is the mother of Albin and she and her husband have adopted the child.

PRESIDENT SEES GIANT TVA DAM NEAR KNOXVILLE

Praises 2,200 Employed on Vast Project.

cent is on farms. Many of these farms will be engulfed by the rising of the dams and their inhabitants will be uprooted by this expression of governmental paternalism. Many of these are now at work on various phases of the project.

The directors declared workers are being employed without regard to political affiliations. They made no comment when it was pointed out that inasmuch as the work is proceeding in the "solid south," there is little danger of digression from the Farley policy of rewarding deserving Democrats.

After his address to the workers, President Roosevelt visited Norristown, the model community being created by New Dealers. The party wounded through the barracks built for TVA workers and then went on to the neat subsistence homes built with federal easy money for workers without families.

Continue to Knoxville.

The motor caravan then proceeded on to Knoxville, where the pouring of federal money into the area has brought an unprecedented boom. The city has the aspect of a mushroom growth of a western city in the gold rush days.

The President, who is on his way to Warm Springs, Ga., where he will remain until after Thanksgiving, boarded his train and set out in the evening on another leg of his three day trip of inspection. This morning he will visit Wheeler and Wilson dams, the other links in the TVA project. He will follow the river as it loops into Alabama and nicks a corner of Mississippi.

The presidential special arrived at Coal Creek, which is five miles from Norris dam. He was given an enthusiastic reception as he entered an open car to seat himself beside Mrs. Roosevelt.

Throughout the 30 mile drive to Knoxville the road was lined with cheering persons. At the Knoxville station thousands gathered to cheer the President.

Dedicates Memorial.

Earlier today at Harrodsburg, Ky., after hurtling through the night by train along the trail hallowed by the hardy settlers of the west, President Roosevelt pledged himself to a continuance of the pioneering spirit of the indomitable founders of the western empire.

He seized upon the occasion—the dedication of a national monument in this the first permanent white settlement west of the Alleghenies—to characterize his administration as a governmental trail blazing. He called upon an audience of 40,000 persons to meet with the courage of their forbearers the pioneering aspects of the New Deal.

The memorial was dedicated to George Rogers Clark and his valued trail-blazers at Kentucky Pioneer Memorial State park.

Points to "Pioneers of 1934."

"I have called us who are here today 'the pioneers of 1934,'" the President said. "I mean everything that the word 'pioneer' implies. We, too, in these latter years throughout the length and breadth of our land have come to a realization of the pregnant fact that the accustomed order of our formerly established l:fe does not suffice to meet the perils and problems we are compelled to face. Again, mere survival calls for new pioneering on our part.

"Some portion of the blood of the colonists and the blood of the pioneers who worked their way, through the generations, across the mountains and across the plains and again across the mountains until they came to the Pacific—that blood is present in very large part in the veins of millions of our people. More than that, the example of the spirit of these earlier Americans is present in the mind and heart of all our population."

The vast natural amphitheater below the reconstruction of the fort built in 1774 by James Harrod to ward off Indian attacks on the first western settlement rocked with hearty laughter when the President in enumerating the "firsts" of this region included "the first corn raised in Kentucky." His audience took the reference as a tribute to the employment of the grain in the state's renowned bourbon whisky.

Following the brief remarks of the President seven girls in colonial costume pulled as many cords to unveil the monument, a pioneer group of heroic stature against a stone background. Its cost of $100,000 was borne by the federal government.

Cenotaph Is Unveiled.

To the right of the monument was a cenotaph, also unveiled during the day, erected by the state. In terse tribute to early pioneers the cenotaph was dedicated "to the wilderness dead—those without graves—unknelled, uncoffined and unknown—this cenotaph is placed by a not ungrateful commonwealth."

President Roosevelt stopped at Harrodsburg to dedicate the monument in the first pause in his tour of the Tennessee valley, the New Deal's pioneering in social and economic regimentation which rivals similar efforts in Red Russia.

The President was accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, who boarded his special train at Danville, Ky., early this morning after having flown overnight from New York City. Also aboard are Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Mr. Ickes grasped the opportunity to hold a press conference with newspaper men aboard the presidential special. He declared the public works administration probably could spend between five and six billion dollars in the next year if such a sum should be put at its disposal.

It has been estimated that this sum would provide direct employment for about three and one-half million men and indirect employment for between eight and ten million others.

40 POUND TURKEY IS SENT FOR ROOSEVELTS' THANKSGIVING MEAL

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving turkey—a 40 pounder and Georgia grown—has arrived. The bird, a gobbler, was sent by 97 year old Mrs. Eliza F. Manry.

It was she who provided the Roosevelts with their Thanksgiving piece de résistance last year. The President personally served the bird to a number of younger patients and others at a gayly bedecked table.

The turkey is "boarding" with Duncan Leverett, groundsman for the Warm Springs Foundation of which the President is head.

Six boys and six girls, all patients, are to be seated at the President's table this year when the turkey is carved. They are selected by a drawing.

Hijack Liquor Truck, Loot a Safe That's Aboard It

As Louis Shain, 1627 Humboldt boulevard, a driver for the Philip Blum & Co., wholesale liquor concern, 35 East Wacker drive, completed a delivery at 79th and Halsted streets last night, two hijackers boarded his truck. They took him to 89th street and South Park avenue, where one jimmied open a Brinks' Express safe on the truck and took $350 cash and $100 in checks. Then the hijackers drove away in the truck. It was found abandoned later at 95th street and South Park avenue, its $300 cargo of whisky missing.

DIES AT WHEEL OF CAR.

Germain Sisco, 42 years old, 1558 Milwaukee avenue, died of a heart attack yesterday while backing his automobile out of a garage at 1632 North Leavitt street.

GLOVES ATTRACT GUNMEN; POLICE SHOTS ROUT THEM

The penchant of two bandits, who evidently had entered the Fair store, Lake and Marion streets, Oak Park, to rob the cashier, for slipping fine pigskin gloves in their pockets yesterday nearly cost them their lives.

The pair's shoplifting activities as they slowly made their way toward the cashier attracted the attention of Mrs. Leona Pratt, a store policewoman. She sent word for Policeman Chauncey Esh to come into the store.

As the policeman approached the men they drew revolvers and fired at him. The policeman returned the fire and chased them out into Marion street, amid crowds of late shoppers.

TUGWELL TELLS WHY U. S. SHOULD CUT PRODUCTION

Says Europe Won't Take Surplus.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford Guy Tugwell, crammed full of election returns and back on the job today after a two months' study of the agrarian situation in Europe, said the downward adjustment of production must go on. This is necessary, said Dr. Tugwell, because the other countries of the world are adjusting their production upward and moving toward national self-sufficiency.

The prematurely gray haired Adonis of the brain trust thought it would be nice, from the standpoint of recovery, to restore our foreign markets, but said the outlook was discouraging and that we might as well face realities.

Dr. Tugwell talked a lot about realities. He can talk more abstrusely about "realism and getting down to cases" than any New Dealer in Washington. He said the atmosphere in Europe was, by now, quite realistic; that he found "a more realistic apprehension of what has to be done in the future."

He Elucidates.

"Do you know what I mean?" he asked, and a reporter said he thought so, but it would be hard to get it in a story.

"Well," Dr. Tugwell elucidated, smiling urbanely and talking very softly, "simply talking about free trade doesn't get us anywhere. We must get down to cases; say what we are going to sell and what we are going to buy."

"How can we sell our agricultural products if they are increasing their production and don't want to buy them?" Dr. Tugwell was asked.

"That will have to be done either by multilateral or bilateral agreements," he said. "They will take something from us, for example, Brazil will take something from them and we will take something from Brazil."

Asked to "get down to cases" on what commodities might be so interchanged, Dr. Tugwell tossed his head in a deprecating fashion. "It is not my province to bring about trade agreements," he said.

Discusses Mission.

The professor went on in the optimistic vein of realism opening the way for trade agreements for some time, but shielded himself in the protecting armor of circumlocution. He was more "realistic" when asked about the prospects of a world adjustment program, such as he advocated at the International Institute of Agriculture in Rome.

"You see, their problems are, in a sense, just the reverse of ours," he said. "They've been importing and we have been exporting. Considerable expansion is now going on abroad and we are in a position of having to adjust ourselves to a diminishing market."

Prof. Tugwell said he told the Europeans that we could sell them wheat for a third as much as they are paying for it, but that they didn't seem to be interested in prices. They wanted to produce their own stuff.

"Why, even in Ireland," he said, "there were great posters along the railroad tracks saying 'grow more wheat; there's money in wheat.'"

The answer to this problem, Dr. Tugwell added, is that we have got to increase our grass and timber lands and prevent soil erosion.

SOPHISTICATED N. Y. RIOTS OVER A BRASS SLUG

New York, Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Times Square was thrown in an uproar this afternoon as ten police radio cars and squads of armed policemen responded to a riot call following an alarm that bandits were robbing an I. R. T. cashier. What the police found on entering the subway with machine guns and drawn revolvers was a crowd of more than 2,000 in a turmoil over the alleged beating administered by two I. R. T. detectives to a man alleged to have put a brass slug instead of a nickel in the turnstile.

The victim, George Howard, 31, was taken to the Reception hospital with severe bruises of face, neck and hands and a possible skull fracture. He denied using the slug.

More than 150 witnesses went to the station to complain about the brutality of Howard's captors, John Corbet and Frank Walsh. The witnesses said that Howard had been beaten over the face and head with the handcuffs and after being manacled was subjected to an additional beating.

Policeman John Maher said Corbet and Walsh told him that after they tried to stop Howard when he put the slug in the turnstile, he put up a fight and kicked viciously at his captors.

ELECTED ON TOSS OF COIN.

Boonville, Ind., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Election Commissioner Leland Lutz this afternoon tossed a coin to decide the winner in the tie between Loren Hessen, Democrat, and Robert Hull, Republican, for trustee of Owen township. Hull was victorious. Hull and Hessen each received 224 votes. Hull has been trustee for four years.

REVEAL DEFICIT OF 44 MILLIONS IN POSTAL DEPT.

12 Million "Surplus" Is Shown by Technicality.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—It transpired today that the $12,000,000 surplus of the postoffice department, claimed by Postmaster General Farley in a letter to President Roosevelt, is true in the same sense that the national budget is balanced except for emergency expenditures.

Legally and technically Mr. Farley was correct, but actually there was a deficit of $44,000,000.

Experts in the controler's office of the postoffice department explained that the $12,000,000 surplus in reality meant an "ordinary operations" surplus.

Under an act of June 9, 1930, the department is permitted to take the statement of the controler general, showing the actual deficiency, and to set off against this figure the estimated amounts that would have been collected on congressional and governmental franked mail, penalty mail, and all free mail, such as that received by the blind. Credits also are taken for "subventions," or subsidies, to steamship and air lines.

This system of bookkeeping permits the conclusion that there was a surplus, whereas the controler general's office reported to the department that it had a deficiency of $44,000,000.

FIRST EPIDEMIC VICTIM DIES.

Morris, Ill., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—The first death during the scarlet fever epidemic came today when Marion Dawson, 18, died after an illness of three days.

TWO HUNTERS SHOT; ONE IS MISTAKEN FOR DEER, OTHER A BEAR

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—The second serious hunting accident of the 1934 deer season occurred near Pickford, 24 miles south of here this afternoon when Elwood Harrison, 24, of Pickford, was shot in the groin by his brother Howard, 19, who mistook him for a deer. Harrison suffered heavy loss of blood and transfusion was resorted to in an effort to save his life.

Slight hope was held today for the life of Floyd Ross, 38, of Flint, critically wounded yesterday near Newberry, Mich., by a bullet fired from the gun of Joseph Minard of Sandusky, Mich., who said he mistook Ross for a bear.

Hunter Dies of Wounds.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Claude Burton, age 22, died last night at Washington, Ind., of an accidental gunshot wound inflicted by a hunting companion, Robert Sullivan, yesterday. The two young men had traded guns and Sullivan was unaware that the gun Burton handed him was cocked. Burton was struck in the back. He is the third hunting accident victim of Daviess county for the season.

DIVORCE IN RENO WON BY WIFE OF DR. JOHN FAVILL

Mrs. Rhea Stalcup Favill was divorced from Dr. John Favill, 190 East Pearson street, professor of neurology in Rush Medical college, in a private court hearing yesterday in Reno, Nev., according to a dispatch from that city. Mrs. Favill charged cruelty. She was married to Dr. Favill in New York June 20, 1917, shortly before he left for service in the army medical corps in France.

JAPANESE PLAN TRANS-PACIFIC ZEPPELIN ROUTE

Will Fly 3 Airships Twice as Big as Graf.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 16.—Formation of a twenty million yen organization to operate three Zeppelins twice the size of the German Graf Zeppelin for trans-Pacific service is well under way, according to the newspaper Tokio Asahi. [A yen is worth 29 cents.]

The newspaper reports that fifteen million yen has already been subscribed and that purchase of the LZ-129—German super-Zeppelin now nearing completion—for six million yen, is being negotiated. The firm will be headed by Kumataro Honda, former ambassador to Germany, and will include several outstanding Japanese patriots.

Will Fly to San Francisco.

After operating the LZ-129 between Hsinking, Manchukuo, and Tokio the ship will fly to Singapore and the south sea islands. Then it will be placed on the Hawaii-San Francisco route. It is planned to cross the Pacific in three days.

Matsuzo Nagai, ambassador to Berlin, returned yesterday and reported that pro-Japanese sentiment in Germany is rising. There are widespread rumors of a secret treaty aimed at Russia or France. He said Germany is more sympathetic to Japan than any other nation in Europe.

French-Manchukuo Clash.

A dispatch to the Tokio Nichi Nichi today from Shanhaikwan, gateway to China, where the great wall meets the sea, reported that 42 French guards advanced into Manchukuo yesterday and fired four shots at Manchukuo troops. The Japanese garrison commander lodged a protest.

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

DOWNSTATE VOTE ALMOST 50-50, RETURNS REVEAL

Democratic Ballots Fewer than in 1932.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

With an eye to 1936, both Republicans and Democrats furrowed the brow upon the complete but unofficial election returns compiled at Springfield yesterday in advance of the official canvass. In the downstate areas in the corn belt and the industrial communities, the full but unofficial figures served to emphasize the close margins outside Cook county which were shown in the election returns ten days ago.

In the fifteen downstate congressional districts, in which the Democrats took ten seats and the Republicans five, the total Democratic vote on congressmen was only 23,040 greater than the Republican. The total vote on congress in the 15 districts, unofficial but complete, is 716,693 for the Democratic candidates and 693,563 for the Republican.

Congressman at Large Vote.

On the two positions of congressman at large, where C. Wayland Brooks [Rep.] got the highest vote downstate, but with other Republican statewide nominees was swamped by the Democratic slide in Cook county, the figures with all precincts compiled, now show the following downstate vote: Michael L. Igoe [Dem.], 688,208; Martin A. Brennan [Dem.], 677,141; Mr. Brooks, 698,740; Milton E. Jones [Rep.], 649,229.

Brooks thus led Igoe by 10,532 in the counties outside Cook, and ran 21,599 ahead of Brennan.

Viewing the full but unofficial figures, some Republican leaders point out that concentration here and there in some of the areas might have made quite a change in congressional results downstate. Yesterday some held that a statistical department ought to be kept going between campaigns by the state organization instead of being folded up when election day is over.

Claim Gains Since 1932.

From Republican headquarters at Springfield came a brief analysis of the congressional races downstate based on almost complete figures.

"Republican gains outside of Chicago are shown in the reports from the 15 congressional districts," it says. "In those which went Republican, the Republican majority in the 11th was increased 500 over 1932, in the 12th it went up 3,000; in the 13th, up 6,000: while in the 17th a Democratic majority of 5,600 in 1932 was turned into a Republican majority of 3,000.

"In the districts downstate which the Democrats managed to hold, their losses were heavy. Their majority dropped 4,000 in the 15th district and the following reductions were also recorded:

	1932.	1934.
18th	13,700	4,000
19th	19,200	7,500
20th	21,000	6,700
21st	21,800	2,400
22d	38,000	11,400
23d	28,600	7,500
24th	13,000	3,600
25th	20,700	9,000

"The figures show that the Chicago Democratic machine, so far as the voters go, has been pushed back into the city of Chicago."

The Democratic pilgrimage to French Lick being over, the job question is now at the forefront at headquarters. The shiftings in positions due to the election are to be taken under consideration next week by the organization with the return of County Chairman Patrick Nash.

Among the rumors yesterday was that when Robert M. Sweitzer, county treasurer elect, takes office the choice of assistant treasurer may lie between Martin J. O'Brien, Horace G. Lindheimer, and M. J. O'Connor, now deputy county controler. Edward J. McCabe, present assistant treasurer, according to the reports, may be switched into a responsible post under John S. Clark, county assessor elect. But it's all gossip.

Announcement was made that Newton Jenkins will be a third party candidate for mayor. Mayor Edward J. Kelly's supporters declare he will have no important opposition for the Democratic nomination for mayor.

POLICE NIP PLOT TO KIDNAP BOY, MOTHER; 2 SHOT

Three Men Are Held in Connecticut Jail.

Darien, Conn., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Three men were held tonight in $20,000 bail following their capture after a fierce encounter when they walked into a trap set by police this morning for a gang of robbers and kidnapers in the home of Gustave U. Westheim, New York travel bureau head. The trio is in the county jail at Bridgeport.

The men waived examination and were held on charges of breaking into the Westheim home with the intention of robbing the Westheim home and kidnaping Mrs. Westheim or her 13 year old son by a former marriage, Robert Lewis, if either was in the house.

Hide in Living Room.

Lieut. Amos Anderson and State Trooper William Visckay were hiding in the living room of the house and Police Chief Edward A. Tinker and State Trooper James Finnegan were on the upper floor, all with shot guns ready, when four men drove up. One man remained on guard at the back door. The three others entered the house.

Anderson and Visckay leaped from their hiding places and ordered the men to surrender. One of the intruders, identified as John Collins, 33, of Providence, swung at Visckay. The trooper fired. A general melee followed. Tinker and Finnegan ran downstairs. Visckay brought his shot gun down on Collins' head, breaking the stock and exploding the shell, the slugs of which wounded Tinker and Anderson.

Battle Ten Minutes.

For the next ten minutes, shouts and shots dispelled the morning quiet as the seven men struggled. The living room was reduced to a shambles. Finally Collins and a man identified as Joseph Borg, 26, were handcuffed. The third man and the lookout fled into a nearby woods. Shots followed after them and police believe the still missing lookout was wounded.

The third prisoner, who gave his name as Edgar Meynar, 33, of Pawtucket, R. I., was captured ten minutes later when troopers, using the gang's car, snared Meynard who came out from behind a clump of bushes, believing his companions had escaped and were hunting for him.

Three Others Seized.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Three persons were arrested here tonight at the request of Darien, Conn., police and held for questioning tomorrow in connection with a kidnap plot against the family of Gustave Westheim in Darien, Conn.

Those arrested here were Mrs. Lillian Borg, 23, whose husband, Joseph Borg, is one of three held in Darien; David Borg, 18, brother of Joseph Borg, and Joseph Favali, 37, a truck driver, owner of the car in which the four alleged plotters traveled from Providence to the Westheim home.

No charge was placed against any of the three.

Favali, police said, admitted he had been to Borg's home frequently, but declared he knew nothing of any criminal plans or of the plan to use his sedan in the kidnap plot.

From Many States

Eastern Star executives from the United States, its possessions, and Canada paid a visit to Mayor Kelly at the city hall yesterday. The group was headed by Amy H. Berry of Chicago, grand matron of the order in Illinois, and Mildred Shambacher of Toronto, Ont., most worthy grand matron of the order in the world. Later the mayor received Giovanni Martinelli, leading operatic tenor of the world, and John Pane-Gasser, another noted tenor.

DEMOCRATS PLAN CONTESTS OVER 2 LAKE CO. LOSSES

Frank McDermott, chairman of the Democratic county committee of Lake county, announced yesterday that contests would be filed at once in behalf of Russ Alford and Bart Tyrrell, the party candidates for county clerk and sheriff, who were losers in the Nov. 6 election by small margins, according to official canvass.

Alford declared Thursday night, when the county canvassing board announced its totals, that the election had been stolen. Members of the board, who included his opponent for office, Lew A. Hendee, and two other Republicans, declared they had followed the law strictly in reaching the results and they had no right to go beyond the results certified to them by the precinct election officials.

Hendee, who has been Lake county's county clerk since 1910, was declared the victor by 147 votes, and Lawrence A. Doolittle, Republican opponent of Tyrrell, by 138. Alford asserted the vote was incorrectly reported in two precincts and that he was defrauded of a net 294 ballots.

HORNER ACCEPTS PLAN TO SURVEY PAROLE SYSTEM

Chicago Crime Board Will Do Work.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Within the coming week the Chicago crime commission will begin a survey of the Illinois parole system with a view to submitting to Gov. Horner recommendations for the improvement of the system. Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, director of the commission, will have charge of the work. The survey is to be undertaken at the request of the governor.

Early in the month the governor wrote to Col. Chamberlin asking him to undertake the survey. The letter was inspired by criticism of the operation of the parole system which appeared in a Chicago newspaper.

Col. Chamberlin replied to Gov. Horner that he could not now undertake an intensive study of the system because it would require more time and money than was at his command. He said, however, that he would, if desired, suggest a setup for the governor's consideration which, if found sound, might make possible the enlargement of the scope of inquiry. Frank J. Loesch, president of the commission, he said, had given permission for this work to be done.

Today the governor accepted Chamberlin's suggesion.

ATTORNEY'S FEE CLAIM DISOWNED BY MRS. WILLETT

Acting as her own attorney, Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett, 2130 Lincoln Park West, divorced wife of Howard Willett, wealthy trucking contractor, filed answer in the Superior court yesterday to Attorney Bennison F. Bartel's $50,000 suit against her.

Bartel charged in his bill that the money is due him as fees for his services in Mrs. Willett's divorce suit and her $1,000,000 alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Mary Cave Hall. Mrs. Willett countered that Bartel is attempting to defraud her of her property, alimony and support money by false pretenses, and asked a jury trial.

Mrs. Willett charged that Bartel advised her to file a "questionable" suit against Mrs. Hall, thereby "taking advantage of her innocence in legal matters." The resultant publicity, Mrs. Willett alleged, was damaging to her, her family, and her former husband's business, sufficient to offset any benefit from Bartel's services.

HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE.

Harry Kosmala, alias Blair, 20 years old, 4727 South Honore street, captured by William Henege, 9 West Madison street, after robbing Henege of $20 Tuesday night, was held to the grand jury in $6,000 bonds yesterday.

U. S. SPURS ACTION IN HER CASE

Miss Isabelle Lillian Steele of Los Angeles, a naturalized American citizen, has been held in German prison since Aug. 10 on suspicion of espionage or treason. The Nazi government yesterday informed American authorities that the nature of the charge against her will be revealed next Tuesday.

GERMANY TO TELL WHY U. S. WOMAN IS HELD IN CELL

Promises to Bare Charges Next Tuesday.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's government today informed American authorities that a high German official will call at the American consulate general next Tuesday to reveal the nature of the charges preferred against Miss Isabelle Lillian Steele, 25, of Los Angeles and Hollywood, Cal.

Miss Steele, a naturalized citizen of the United States, has been held in Alt-Moabit prison since her arrest on Aug. 10. She is suspected of espionage or high treason.

Because of the serious nature of the charges against her, she faces trial for her life before the secret People's court, which was created to try persons charged with traitorous activities.

Protest to Foreign Office.

On Nov. 5 American authorities brought strong pressure to bear on the German government for definite action against the young woman, who was born in Canada. Protests were made at the foreign office.

Consular officials declared the police did not possess sufficient evidence of illegal activities and demanded her release or an immediate trial in an ordinary court, not in the People's court. Several days later Ambassador Hans Luther called at the state department at Washington and delivered a promise that Miss Steele would be "given exactly as fair treatment as if she were a German citizen."

On the same day Judge Zimmer of the People's court, the investigating magistrate, said many ramifications requiring the greatest secrecy were being pursued. He refused requests to see Miss Steele or to answer questions about her welfare.

"You understand, of course," he said, "the reason she is here is extremely serious."

Was Enthusiastic Nazi.

Miss Steele, a music student, came to Germany about two years ago. She became an enthusiastic Nazi and frequently was seen in the company of uniformed Nazis. According to German acquaintances, she became linked with the biggest espionage case in Germany, a case which centers around the Polish army officer, Count Yurek [George] von Sosnowski. The count was arrested recently in a raid during a dinner party. All the guests were taken into custody. Miss Steele said she was prevented from attending the party by merest chance.

Mrs. Clara Steele, the prisoner's mother, according to dispatches from Hollywood, said that a "certain baroness" whose name she would not divulge, "led my emotional daughter into some trap."

American authorities also are proceeding actively in the case of Richard Roiderer, 40, said to be a Chicagoan. Roiderer, also a naturalized American, was arrested last June.

7 LOSE LIVES IN FIERY TRAP AS CARS CRASH

Girl Is Only Survivor of Road Crash.

Bellwood, Pa., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Seven persons, five of them college students, were burned to death tonight when two automobiles collided and caught fire on the William Penn highway near here. The crash occurred midway between Altoona and Tyrone.

The dead:

JAMES SANIEL, 24, of Pittsburgh.
MORRIS PERKINS, 23, of Allentown, Pa.
JAMES GRAVER, 26, of Lorain, O.
IRVIN MUSSER of State College, Pa.
MRS. MARTHA MUSSER, his wife.
MISS RUTH JACKSON, 20, of Lancaster, Pa.
ELEANOR WEBSTER, 20, of North Girard, Pa.

Girl Is Only Survivor.

Miss Dorothy Rudy, 21, a domestic in the employ of the Mussers, was the only survivor. She was so dazed that she could not give a coherent account of the accident, but it was believed she was thrown clear of the wreckage as the cars crashed.

Police believe both machines were traveling at considerable speed. When they crashed the crumpled front of one interlocked with that of the other and burst into flames.

Other motorists reached the scene soon after the accident, but could not get near the blazing cars. Several truck drivers attempted to use small fire extinguishers, but were unable to extinguish the flames.

The local volunteer fire department finally was able to remove the bodies.

Saniel, Perkins, and Graver, University of Pittsburgh law school students, were en route to State College in Saniel's car to see the State College-Lafayette football game tomorrow. They were traveling east.

The other car, driven by Musser, was traveling west. With the Mussers, in addition to Miss Rudy, were Miss Jackson and Miss Webster, State College students who roomed with the Mussers.

ITALY REJECTS ROOSEVELT PLAN TO CONTROL ARMS

ROME, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Little cheer emanated from official Italian and American diplomatic circles tonight after Hugh R. Wilson, United States minister to Switzerland, talked to Fulvio Suvich, undersecretary of state, in an effort to enlist Italy's support for President Roosevelt's plan for international control of arms.

Suvich, it was said, argued that international control of commerce in arms would induce little nations now buying arms from big nations to start munition factories of their own.

IL DUCE GREETS CHIEF OF AUSTRIA; THRONGS CHEER

Dictators Will Discuss Nazi Problem.

ROME, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini himself went to the railway station tonight to greet Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria, who arrived in Rome amid customary Fascist pomp and panoply to spend four days with the Duce.

Thousands of troops and police surrounding the station kept back cheering throngs of spectators as the two men met for the second time in three months to discuss central European politics and economics.

Schuschnigg and the Austrian foreign minister, Egon Berger Waldenegg, were given an ovation as they stepped down from their sleeping car to receive Mussolini's Fascist salute, handshake, and brief welcome, spoken in German.

Hold First Meeting Today.

They posed together for photographs and then went to their respective automobiles. Schuschnigg's first conference with the Italian premier is set for 11 a. m. tomorrow.

The elaborate formalities today, in sharp contrast with the informality of the premiers' quiet meeting at Florence in August, preceded conversations that well informed circles said would center about these important topics:

1. The internal situation in Austria and the present strength there of Nazis, who revolted unsuccessfully in July.

2. Conversations Schuschnigg has held recently with leading Austrian advocates of pan-Germanism, and their bearing on the possibility of a union between Austria and Germany, something Mussolini fears.

Probe Papen's Activities.

3. Relations betwen Italy and Germany, particularly as to the possibility that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler may make public declarations concerning Austrian independence.

4. The activities of Franz von Papen, Germany's special envoy to Austria.

5. Relations between Austria and Jugo-Slavia, Italy's rival in the Adriatic, and the functioning of Nazi concentration camps in that country.

Schuschnigg's conferences with Mussolini, these quarters said, will have to do for the most part with politics, touching economics only lightly and leaving the burden of that phase of the two country's relations to the Austrian commercial commission coming here shortly.

That commission will seek extension of the Rome economic pact linking Italy, Austria, and Hungary, which Premier Mussolini and Premier Julius Goemboes of Hungary recently decided had proved highly satisfactory.

CCC PAMPHLET PLAN MAY HAVE TO BE ABANDONED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—(AP)—The possibility arose tonight that the entire preparation of educational booklets for CCC camps, at the expense of the Rockefeller Foundation, might be abandoned unless the commanding officer of the CCC lifts his bar against the single pamphlet so far completed.

Robert Fechner, director of the forest camps, gave no indication he would reconsider his rejection of the machine age study written by Dr. William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago.

Meantime a spirited defense of the Ogburn pamphlet, which Fechner considered too gloomy, came from Dr. George F. Zook, former United States commissioner of education and present director of the American Council on Education, which sponsored the preparation of the CCC pamphlet at the request of the office of education.

He said the unspent portion of $40,000 provided by the Foundation to develop the publications would be returned if the project is dropped.

Dr. Zook characterized Ogburn's machine age study as "A splendid pamphlet well suited to the purpose for which it was intended."

"As I see it," he said, "this is simply one of the many attempts—and one of the most intelligent—to solve the tremendous youth problem confronting us at this time."

Leonids Put on a Poor Show for Star Gazers

Star gazers, peering through telescopes at the heavens, had a disappointing time early today as the last of the annual shower of Leonids, a particular group of meteors, appeared. Dr. Otto Struve, head of the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., described the Leonids as "very scarce." The Leonid shower is due to reach its next maximum density in 1965.

NEW DEAL TOWN WILL ORGANIZE RELIGIOUS WORK

Community to Take Vote on "Fellowship."

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Norris, Tenn., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Religion and its activities are to be organized in this New Deal town at special services in the community center Sunday morning.

Developed as a "model community," by the Tennessee Valley authority, the proposed constitution for the community's religious organization to be voted on at the coming service, if passed, will create a religious fellowship instead of a church. There will be no pastor, but instead a sort of religious commissar known as the director of religious activities.

The need of religious organization in this community which has no church was discerned shortly after building operations began a year ago. Informal movements toward the organization of a Sunday school, a men's league, and services of worship began.

Expands Activities.

The Rev. C. C. Haun, a Congregational minister and an employé of the TVA, soon was sent here from Knoxville to encourage and expand the newly begun religious activities. Several weeks ago the Rev. Eric H. Thomsen, a rural church specialist from Keene Valley, N. Y., took over Norris' religious activities and replaced Mr. Haun.

Mr. Thomsen, who is of Danish birth and a protégé of the noted New York modernist leaders, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick and President Henry Sloan Coffin of Union Theological seminary, New York, cited problems peculiar to the New Deal's town's religious life.

"I came down here recently on leave of absence from Keene Valley to help set up their community program here and to train their workers," said Mr. Thomsen. "Later I was dragged in on the religious issues by the town population, for whom Mr. Haun had done about as good a job as any one could do."

Mrs. Rouse Is Teacher.

The present setup, Mr. Thomsen said, includes a Sunday school which is departmentalized on modern lines. Among the teachers is Mrs. Kenneth A. Rouse, wife of the former University of Chicago football star. Mr. Rouse is director of public service at Norris. Mr. Thomsen conducts a service of worship each Sunday at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Thomsen explained that the program for night services looks toward a series of addresses by church leaders of all faiths, who will be invited to Norris on a plan not wholly unlike the Chicago Sunday Evening club.

Committee Works on Problem.

It was explained that the problem of religion for Norris was first referred to a group of denominational leaders by the TVA. It appeared for a brief period that agreement had been reached which would permit the development of a union or community church, but after a lapse of a few weeks the representatives of a fundamentalist southern denomination withdrew and declared their church would establish a competing religious organization in or near Norris.

Since Mr. Thomsen's arrival a committee of seven members on religious activities has been active in obtaining the consensus of the community concerning organized religious activities. "We left the word 'church' out of the constitution because Norris does not have a permanent population as yet," said Mr. Thomsen. "Nearly every one here is a member of some church back home. Within the next two and a half years nearly every one now in Norris will return to his home and church, and it is right that each should continue on his own church roll. At the same time an arrangement for their participation in religious activity here should be made."

See Delay for Building.

Mr. Thomsen explained that while there is discussion about a church building for Norris, yet one is not likely to be erected for some time. How the various creeds will be harmonized is a problem of interest to religious leaders. The two unique features of the constitution pertain to the name of the organization, the Norris Religious fellowship, and to the director of religious activities. No provision is made that this director be an ordained clergyman.

Mr. Thomsen, who is a Congregational pastor, explained that the constitution would be passed unanimously in its clauses referring to interchurch coöperation. He added, however, that the proposed article of faith or creed of the fellowship may be deleted entirely.

This article affirmed the "freedom and responsibility of the individual and the right of private judgment." In other clauses, some of which are reminiscent of traditional creeds, generally accepted beliefs of liberal Christians are affirmed. No mention is made of the doctrine of the virgin birth or bodily resurrection of Christ, held as being of great importance by the Catholic church and great numbers of conservative Protestants.

HUEY'S SPECIAL SESSION CLOSES IN LOUISIANA

Kingfish Heads for Football Game.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—The Louisiana state legislature adjourned today after a special session lasting five days. Actually the house and senate deliberated only 11 hours in the passage of 44 new bills.

New laws written into the state constitution, including constitutional amendments, total 309 since Senator Huey P. Long became governor in 1928. Immediately after the session adjourned, Long made ready to go to Jackson, Miss., where he will meet Senator Elect Theodore G. Bilbo and attend the football game between L. S. U. and Mississippi university.

"There are lots of things in these bills that neither the public nor legislators know about yet," Long said before he left.

Cites Legislative Powers.

His floor leader, Senator Coleman Lindsey, in addressing the legislature this morning, said: "This legislature, if it deemed necessary or advisable, could dissolve all municipal government in the state of Louisiana. Cities and towns were created by the legislature. Under our new civil service law the governor of this state, through a civil service board appointed by him, can remove any mayor or chief of police at his pleasure."

A summary of some of the enactments of this special session of the legislature follows:

It passed the bill permitting debtors to apply to the state debt commissioners, appointed by Long's administration, for the two year "reprieve" of entangling personal obligations.

Controls Bar Admissions.

It placed control of admissions to practice of law in the Kingfish's hands by creating an elective state board of governors of the "state bar of Louisiana" to pass upon admissions.

It placed control of public utilities directly under supervision of the Louisiana public service commission, and Long said that when his act binds he will reduce New Orleans electric rates in 20 minutes.

It revised the election laws, put teeth in the new state income tax law, and granted other requests of the Kingfish.

U. S. Magicians Open Two Day Parley Today

Magic will hold sway for two days at the Hotel Morrison starting today in a conclave to be held by Chicago Assembly No. 3, Society of American Magicians. The conclave will begin at 2:30 p. m. with an educational program. Tonight there will be a magicians' prize contest and show in which many performers of the World's Fair and others will be entered. Tomorrow afternoon and evening will be given over to an impromptu magic meeting and a "grand show" to wind up the conclave.

Jury Frees Trio Accused of Vandalism in Strike

After a three hour deliberation a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Cornelius J. Harrington found Henry Topp, Gilbert Mann, and Thorsten Olsen not guilty of conspiracy in connection with a campaign of violence carried on last summer against the Kroger-Consumer stores and the Continental and Schultz baking companies. It was alleged that Topp, an official of a south side local of the bakers' union, and the others had thrown stench borbs at various bakery stores during a strike.

JUDGE WHO SENT HIS WIFE'S EX-MATE TO PRISON QUITS BENCH

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Superior Judge Guy F. Bush, whose marriage is under investigation by the grand jury and the district attorney's office, today filed his resignation from the bench, his letter to Gov. Frank Merriam saying: "While my conscience is clear, I believe the confidence of the voters of this county and state has been shaken so far as I am concerned."

Judge Bush was married in Mexico three weeks ago to the recently divorced wife of a convicted man, John Le Grand, whom he had first sentenced to two years and to make restitution of $35,000, but whose sentence Judge Bush reduced to six months and restitution of $5,000. The cut in the sentence was made shortly before the judge married Mrs. Le Grand.

In the meantime both Judge Bush and Mrs. Le Grand are said to have disregarded divorce actions that had not come to trial in California and obtained rapid decrees in Mexico.

EXECUTION STAY FOR SCOTTSBORO PAIR IS GRANTED

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Two of the nine Negro defendants in the "Scottsboro rape case," whose execution had been set for Dec. 7, were granted a stay of execution until Feb. 28 by the Alabama Supreme court today.

The postponement was granted to permit Attorney Osmond K. Fraenkel of New York, retained by the International Labor Defense to make an appeal in behalf of the Negroes, more time in preparing his appeal to the United States Supreme court.

The two who won the stay are Haywood Patterson and Clarence Norris. They were convicted in Morgan Circuit court last December of raping Mrs. Victoria Price on March 25, 1931. The other seven Negroes had also been convicted in the crime.

Eats Box Lunch and Dies; Coroner to Seek Cause

An inquest to determine if James Vantine, 23 years old, 1715 East 71st street, operator of a truck for the Falstaff Brewing company, died last night of poisoned food will be held today by the coroner's office. Vantine died at the Chicago State hospital a few hours after he had eaten a purchased box lunch. Irving Park police are investigating the source of the food.

MASTER FORGER BUSY IN CHICAGO; GETS THOUSANDS

'Certified' Check Penman Victimizes Merchants.

A master forger who has obtained several thousand dollars from Chicagoans during the last two months through the use of fraudulent "certified checks" was sought yesterday by state's attorney's police. Operations of the penman have been confined to Saturday afternoons.

The last victim is W. J. Wyman, who operates a saddle and equipment store in the Chicago Riding club, Ontario street and McClurg court. Last Saturday Mr. Wyman received a telephone call.

"I have selected ten saddles from your stock," the caller told Mr. Wyman, "but as I have a dinner engagement I cannot pick them up. I am sending over a man to get the saddles and give you a certified check."

Mr. Wyman agreed and the messenger appeared with a "certified check" for $865, the price of the saddles. The check was drawn on the American National Bank and Trust company and signed by "George Cleary."

The messenger, aided by Mr. Wyman, made a leisurely business of packing the saddles in an automobile parked in front of the riding club and then drove away. On Monday Mr. Wyman found the check to be a forgery and complained to the state's attorney's staf. Numerous other merchants have been defrauded by the same method, it was learned yesterday.

FRANCIS BIDDLE NAMED TO HEAD LABOR BOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today appointed Francis Biddle, Philadelphia lawyer, to the chairmanship of the national labor relations board.

Mr. Biddle succeeds Lloyd K. Garrison, who retired from the chairmanship more than a month ago to return to his position as dean of the University of Wisconsin law school. The appointment, announced by the labor board itself in the President's absence, once more fills the board's roster.

The new chairman is a member of the famous Biddle family, whose name several times has loomed large in American history. Nicholas Biddle was head of the Second Bank of the United States and became famous for his fight with Andrew Jackson over the discontinuance of the institution.

Francis Biddle has been engaged in law practice as a member of the Philadelphia firm of Barnes, Biddle, and Meyers. He served from 1922 to 1926 as assistant district attorney for the eastern district of Pennsylvania. In his new post his task will be the settlement of labor disputes arising out of the recovery act, especially those involving collective bargaining.

LOS ANGELES HIT BY SLIGHT QUAKE AND HIGH WATER

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 16.—(AP)—A slight earthquake and high water which halted trafic in some places enlivened the southern California weather report today.

Rain fell throughout southern California all day and creeks rose rapidly. Two families were evacuated from the La Crescenta-Montrose district, scene of the destructive New Year's day flood. Dikes were strengthened here.

In many parts of Los Angeles, motor cars were stalled by high water and a cloudburst near Bakersfield blocked highways with debris. Trafic on the Maricopa highway was halted by overflowing of San Emidio creek.

The earthquake was felt in the Los Angeles-Long Beach area at 1:28 p. m. Pacific standard time. No damage was reported.

SABATH UPHOLDS MOTHER'S RIGHT TO RETAIN CHILD

Demands Clear Proof of Incompetence.

"The first lien on a child always belongs to the mother."

Thus Judge Joseph Sabath of the Superior court, who has decided 45,000 divorce cases in his long career, yesterday epitomized his views on the custody of children.

Judge Sabath declined to refer directly to the Vanderbilt-Whitney contest over the possession of 10 year old Gloria Vanderbilt in the New York courts. He had not read the testimony, he pointed out, and moreover had no wish to criticize another jurist. He was, however, perfectly willing to discuss his own philosophy of custody.

Must Prove Mother Unfit.

"There is slight limit," he asserted, "on the power of the judge to decide what shall be done with a child when the unfitness of its natural guardians, the parents, is questioned. Other judges, doubtless, would not look at the matter as I do, but I am of the old school and I say unhesitatingly that I would never take a child from its mother unless it is clearly demonstrated the mother is incompetent to give the child proper attention.

"The burden of proof in my court is always put squarely on those who wish to keep the child from its mother. Sometimes the claim is made that the mother is an immoral person. With me that is a secondary consideration. The first is whether she gives the child affectionate and effective care.

"As for the frequent proposal that some one else could, through the possession of more money, give the youngster more advantages than the mother, I practically discard that argument. A mother's love is more important than nurses, trips to Europe and fine playthings. After all, why isn't it better for a normal child to go to the public schools and learn American democracy than to be a prisoner of wealth?

Disregards Opinions of Children.

"Let a mother come before me and show me only that she loves her child and can give it just the good, plain education that the public school furnishes, and no matter if she is poor and a person who lacks judgment, I will let her have her child. Only when it is proved beyond doubt that the mother cannot take reasonable care of the child, will I deprive her of her natural rights."

Judge Sabath asserted that, with children under 14 years old, their own opinions were of no value and were not considered by him in reaching decisions on custody.

The judge would make only one comment on the Vanderbilt case.

"I predict that the time will come when nobody will be able to keep the girl from rejoining her own mother," he said.

STORES PREPARE FOR OPENING DAY OF TOY EXHIBITS

Thousands of Santa Claus' assistants in Chicago are rounding out plans for the city's second annual Toy Opening day a week from today.

About 3,200 stores will participate by making this their first day for showing their 1934 toys. Special ceremonies are being planned for many of the stores, by other business organizations, and by civic groups.

The North Avenue Business Men's association will mark the day with a Mother Goose parade, led by a personification of the fabled lady, who will be followed by a gigantic figure of her goose. Behind them will troop all of the beloved characters from the age old children's tales.

Another feature of the day will be a children's matinée at all neighborhood theaters, the price of which is one toy from each child. The playthings thus collected will be turned over to Christmas workers for distribution among the city's underprivileged youngsters.

WE'LL FIGHT FOR PACIFIC ISLANDS! JAP CHIEF SAYS

Admiral Defies League to End Mandate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 16.—Vice Admiral Sankichi Takahashi, who yesterday succeeded Nobumasa Suetsugu as commander in chief of the combined Japanese fleet, today expressed a firm determination to retain the west Pacific mandate islands, whatever the cost.

The new commander said the mandate, given Japan after the war by the league of nations over the Marianne (Ladrone), Caroline, and Marshall Islands, formerly German possessions, is likely to come up at Geneva next year when Japan's withdrawal from the league becomes effective. He asserted the Japanese navy is ready to resist forcefully any attempt by the league to deprive Japan of the islands.

Defends Equality Stand.

Discussing the naval conversations now taking place in London with representatives of the United States and Great Britain, Admiral Takahashi said Japan's claim to equality with a view to an all around cut in armaments is the fairest and most reasonable scheme conceivable.

"If this plan is considered meaningless by the other nations, the navy cannot accept any formula which, although granting Japan nominal equality, may in reality bind it through a ratio to inequality," he said.

Pointing out that Japan is on the high road to development as a world power, he said the nation must make every effort to be on an equal footing with the chief naval powers.

"If this golden chance is not seized it will be lost forever," he said. "If this causes the naval conference to break up, Japan need not hold itself responsible."

Report Japs Reject Proposal.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Instructions from Tokio received late tonight by the members of the Japanese naval delegation were authoritatively said to reject British compromise proposals for naval limitation.

It was understood the Japanese will inform the British early next week of the instructions and will urge Great Britain to reconsider in some may the original Japanese demands for full equality on the seas.

The British suggestion was for a new naval agreement which, while acknowledging Japan's right as a sovereign state to have any navy it wants, would require an agreement not to build above a certain limit.

BANQUET FOR EMPLOYES' SOCIETY.

Representatives of the Municipal Employés society of Chicago will hold their annual banquet at the Bismarck hotel tonight. The society will celebrate its 23d year.

CHARGE MISUSE OF RACING NEWS BUREAU PROFITS

Charges that the General News Bureau, Inc., 431 South Dearborn street, which dispenses horse racing information, has since 1929 diverted and misappropriated $200,000 a year in profits, were made in a suit for accounting filed in the Circuit court yesterday.

Plaintifs are John J. Lynch, Lionel C. Lenz and Edward N. Lenz, who, with their wives, are said in the bill to own 50 per cent of the company's stock. Lynch was kidnaped from his summer home in Wisconsin in 1931, and was released on payment of $50,000 of the $250,000 the extortionists are reported to have demanded.

Officials of the company named in the suit are James M. Ragen, vice president and general manager; Arnold W. Kruse, secretary, and Herbert Krancer, assistant secretary. They and the R. T. & K. company own the other 50 per cent of the stock, the bill states. Named with them are Moe L. Annenberg, of New York; James M. Ragen Jr.; the Cecilia Investment company; the Universal Publishing company; and Bentley, Murray & Co., printers, and 16 employés.

The bill alleges that Annenberg dominates and controls the other plaintifs. It sets forth that no meeting of directors or stockholders has been held since Feb. 5, 1929, but that the defendant stockholders and the others named have conspired to defraud the plaintif stockholders. The printing company is alleged, in a secret agreement, to have collected $200,000 yearly since 1929 and divided it secretly among the defendants.

SOVIETS ADOPT 'CATCH UP WITH U. S.' AS SLOGAN

Admit They Are Far from Goal Industrially.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, Nov. 3.—[By Courier and Mail.]—"It would require a lot of destruction before the United States could be reduced to the status now prevailing in Russia."

"The reason the bolsheviks have been able to make so much progress in recent years is that they started with nothing."

These two statements by members of a New England labor union delegation now visiting here summarize effestively a situation which economists have tried to explain in complicated mathematical terms.

There is no lack of soviet literature designed to prove that while the United States and other nations have been in depression, the Soviet Union has experienced an industrial boom. I have before me a number of pamphlets by bolshevist writers "proving" that Russia has solved the unemployment problem; that in a period when industrial production in America and other manufacturing countries declined from 10 to 30 per cent, the output in the U. S. S. R. increased more than 50 per cent.

Boast of Achievements.

In these pamphlets containing reprints of speeches and articles by responsible soviet officials are numerous assertions that Russia succeeded in accomplishing in iron, coal, and oil production in 3 or 4 years results that had required from 10 to 20 years to accomplish under capitalistic systems prevailing in America, England, Germany, and France.

Figures running into the dizzy heights of billions of rubles are given. G. K. Orjonikidze, commisar of heavy industries, recently stated that 21 billion rubles have been invested in heavy industries within the last three years and a half. He said that the output of factories devoted to the production of agricultural, electrical, and general machinery amounted last year to 6,297 million rubles, an increase from 3,169 million rubles in 1930. He predicted the output of the machine-building industry this year would not be under 10 billion rubles, and that the production of pig iron would amount to 10 million tons, rolled metal 7 million tons, and steel 9,800,000 tons.

Use "Trillions" Now.

While the use of the word "billion" has become commonplace in Russia in reference to investments and output under the five year plan, the Soviet spokesmen now frequently advance into the higher catagory of "trillions," particularly when referring to natural resources which they hope to exploit in the near future. For example, Orjonikidze in reference to recent investigations of the resources of coal in the union stated that while estimates made in 1913 placed the available deposits at 220 billion tons, it is now known that Russia possesses 1,200 billion tons of which 21 billions are suitable for industrial uses.

In oil it is claimed that Russia possesses reserves amounting to 9,350 million tons, or more than a quarter of the world's total; iron reserves estimated in 1913 at 2 billion tons are now known to exceed 9 billion; copper reserves are said to amount to 16 million tons, and so on.

As it is impossible to check the accuracy of figures cited in proof of present or past production, and almost equally impossible to convert these figures into their equivalents in American currency because of the fluctuating value of the paper ruble, all that one can do is quote them as evidence offered by Soviet officialdom that much progress is being made.

Many New Plants.

A vast number of new plants in the heavy industries have been established, and in a period when the rest of the world was compelled to curtail production. These new industries are beginning to turn out products previously imported from abroad, as is evidenced in what one sees in the streets of the cities, fields along the railways, and in process of transport on the railway sidings. New construction ranging from cheap jerry-built wooden shacks scattered along the railway for thousands of miles in Siberia to steel reinforced concrete structures for factories or homes in European Russia is everywhere visible.

B. S. Bogushevsky, member of the supreme council of national economy, asserted that the number of laborers engaged in industries at the time of the bolshevist revolution in 1917 numbered 2,976,000, with an additional 540,000 employed in the operation of the railways. Now, according to his figures, the total employed in industrial establishments exceeds 5,000,000 with an additional 2,000,000 employed in construction. The total of employés, including office clerks, but excluding day laborers, in industry, transport, state-owned farms, educational and administrative establishments exceeds 17,000,000, he declared.

Wage earners, according to this spokesman, have increased from 7,143,000 in 1923 to more than 15 million at present, while the number engaged in construction has increased more than ten fold. He claimed that while there were 1,500,000 unemployed registered at labor exchanges in 1929, there now is a shortage of laborers.

Viewed from the standpoint of conditions prevailing in the United States, the outstanding factor in Russian industrialization is that it has taken place in a country which, up to a few years ago, closely approached an "economic vacuum."

Bogushevsky declared:

"Our heritage from capitalist [czarist] Russia was deplorable. There were a few large plants and some handicraft plants. The majority of big plants belonged to foreign joint-stock companies and were in fact only assembling plants. The brain and heart of these factories remained abroad, especially in electrical engineering."

The present rulers of the Soviet Union have been able to show progress, primarily, because they started with practically nothing in a country which was as industrially undeveloped as was the United States before the civil war. Their present development, even in the more efficiently operated new industries, is still far behind that of the United States, according to statements of the directors of three leading industries who recently toured the United States, M. Yasvoin of the Red Star mill at Leningrad, A. Nuday of the electrical manufacturing plant at Moscow, and M. Judke of the Soviet-landa establishment at Leningrad.

Their statements, made at a convention of directors of heavy industry, were reported in Pravda Sept. 21. The concensus of opinion was that industries in the United States are so far ahead of the best that Russia has been able to produce that vast effort will be required before Russia can catch up.

The slogan of the convention was, "We must overtake and surpass America."

Future in Doubt.

That the Russians have been able to accomplish much in a comparatively brief period of time has been due to the obvious fact that they have been to take advantage of the accumulated results of the world's most advanced technical skill and inventive genius acquired after centuries of trial, failure and accomplishment. They have simply reproduced an industrial establishment that required other nations many decades to construct. That they have made some ghastly mistakes and blunders is equally obvious.

Whether they will be able to make this new industrial establishment function and prosper in a nation where most of the people are still on a bare subsistence basis and where they are only beginning to acquire technical skill remains to be seen. The Moscow Daily News, propaganda organ published in the English language for the perusal of tourists and the English speaking foreign population, contains frequent headlines indicating that all goes well with the "plan," but frequently an item creeps in indicating a rift.

On Oct. 15, for example, it was reported that the military tribunal of the Supreme court had just finished trying the cases of a number of employés of the Kuznetsk Metallurgical Combinat, the chief coal and iron industry.

The men were charged with "counter revolutionary activities and espionage." Three leaders, named Latkin, Sarov, and Davidov, received death sentences. Two others named Dampel and Isler received prison terms of 10 years each, and one other, an engineer named Regush, received a sentence of two years.

RUSSIAN FARMERS ARE ORDERED TO GET MORE PIGS, COWS AND SHEEP

MOSCOW, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The soviet's collective farms and farmers today were ordered to get more pigs, cows, and sheep. Resolutions promulgated by the council of people's commissars and the central committee of the Communist party provided for large increases in live stock holdings.

A new step in the drive to give "every collective farmer a cow," the move will be financed by 25,000,000 rubles set aside from government funds, it was announced.

State farms were ordered to sell 430,000 head of cattle, 600,000 sheep, and 250,000 pigs to collective stock farms before the end of the first quarter of next year. The collective farms will pay 30 to 60 per cent cash, the rest in two to four years. State farms also must sell during the same period to individual collective farmers 300,000 calves, 1,200,000 pigs, and 200,000 lambs. For these sales the government authorized credits of 7,000,000 rubles.

U. S. REBUTTAL CENTERS FIRE ON INSULL PROFITS

Defense Rests; Case Speeded to Close.

cost as listed on the income tax sheets. Three hundred and fifty shares of Insull, Son & Co., for instance, were listed at "no cost."

Elder Insull Indignant.

Attorney Thompson referred to this and other items as "nonsense." The elder Insull himself was indignant. Insull, Son & Co. was one of his dearest dreams. It was a London company, making $200,000 a year, built up since 1896, but the income tax does not take into consideration London profits. It was worth a lot, however, to Samuel Insull, and here it was made to appear that he had sacrificed nothing.

There were 472 shares of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., turned in also at "no cost." These, however, represented, according to Mr. Thompson, gifts or the results of long years of service by Mr. Insull since the old Chicago Edison company days. People's Gas, Light and Coke went in at a cost valuation of about $82 a share. According to the Insull intrinsic formula, it was worth between $200 and $300.

All these factors, of course, were brought to the attention of the jury by the defense, but in the main the witness' statement was brought down to the close of 1931 showing that the costs of stocks turned in exceeded money received by $97,876.

Introduce 1932 Receipts.

Then the government introduced 1932 receipts, which the Insulls never saw as they came into the course of liquidation. These amounted to $226,186, making a total alleged profit for the Insulls of $128,310.

Mr. Thompson also brought out in defense that the government income men take market values in ordinary trades reported, and that in 1930 and 1931 Corporation Securities stock could not have been reported as "worthless" for income purposes, although the legal department of the government now contends for this.

A. E. Sweeney, government accountant, was put on the stand to explain the point in Middle West accounting desired by the prosecution. There was a dispute over this. Mr. Salter stated that the government contended the company was not making money in 1928, while the Insulls had testified that they had great faith in the company as an investment foundation for Corporation Securities.

Testimony on Profits.

Sweeney was allowed to give testimony showing that the books of this company showed a net profit of $4,956,976 in 1928. At the same time this included an item of $2,397,302 of sales of its securities to its own subsidiaries. Eliminating this, it was found that the amount paid on common stock exceeded the available funds by $932,794. Under its reconstitution it was found that $11,324,742 would be saved by paying dividends in shares instead of cash. This company will be considered further this morning.

Carl A. Herring, another government witness, testified that the original cost of the Middle West Utilities stock turned in to Utility Investments by the Insulls was $5,465,487. They received $4,498,534 in cash from Halsey, Stuart & Co., Herring said, making their net investments $966,953, in return for which they received 764,000 shares of Utility Investments common.

When Corporation Securities was formed the Insull family contributed 152,000 shares of Utility Investments common which, according to Herring's figures, had cost them $150,747.

On this basis the 1,045,436 shares of Corporation Securities common received by the Insulls cost them 13 cents a share and the 45,436 shares of preferred cost 26½ cents a share, Herring said. Corporation Securities offered its stock units to the public in October, 1929, at $75 a share, each unit consisting of one share of common stock and one of preferred.

The defense attorneys objected to this whole line of testimony on the basis that the government's interpretations did not take cognizance of the stock's market value, but Judge Wilkerson overruled them.

Young Insull Sharp Tongued.

Samuel Insull Jr. sparred frequently with Prosecutor Salter in his cross-examination. His replies were sharp.

Q. [by Salter]—Now, Mr. Insull, at the conclusion yesterday evening I asked you the question if it was not a fact, in connection with Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities company, that you and your father together took out of these two companies, in cash dividends and in the way of proceeds from the sale of stock in the companies, more than the cost of the securities and the cash which you and your father put into those two companies——

MR. THOMPSON—We object.

MR. SALTER—and I believe you answered—just a moment—that that was not true. Now, Mr. Insull, I take it by your answer that you had in mind at the time you and your father turned in these securities to the company the then market value of those securities was considerably above your original cost. Is that what you had in mind? A.—Yes. That is just my point.

Mr. Thompson objected on the ground that if one sells securities that he owns he does not take anything out of the company. The court overruled the objection.

Overrule Defense Objection.

Insull went on: "I thought I might have some figures from which I can answer, but they are based on the other way of figuring it. I don't know, but the figures are in income tax returns and I can figure it out very easily."

Q.—Now, you testified yesterday about the formation of Insull, Son & Co. in 1924, and there was paid in $10 per share on that 1,000 shares of stock, I believe by yourself and other members of your famil? A.—Yes, I think that is it.

The prosecutor again brought out that the Insull family turned in stock in that concern to Insull Utility Investments worth approximately $900,000. The stock was taken on the books of I. U. I. at a book value of $1,250,000. The witness then identified W. S. Brewster, partner in the brokerage firm of Russell Brewster & Co. Salter referred to a meeting of the finance committee of the I. U. I. on Nov. 25, 1929. Brewster, young Insull and his father and Martin Insull were present.

No Change in Books.

At this meeting, Salter brought out, it was decided that the value of Insull, Son & Co. stock would be reckoned at $5,000,000, but that no change in the value of the stock would be made on the financial books of the company. Insull declared that the statement was for both the committee and the public and that "we were not saying one thing to ourselves and another thing to the public."

Q.—Well, it was inflated over and above the value carried on the books, was it not? A.—It was not an inflated value.

Q.—But, I say, it was inflated from $1,250,000 up to $5,000,000, was it not? A.—No. I think if you had added seven and one-half million it would not have been inflated, based on the value of the company.

Cites Difference in Value.

Q.—I am not talking about that. I am talking about the action wherein you solemnly decided that in your published statements to the public you would show it at $5,000,000, although you carried it on the books of the company for $1,250,000. A.—Yes, that was the action, and also on the statements for our own committee.

The prosecutor then established that Insull handled the issuance and sale of $40,000,000 in Corporation Securities gold notes, made necessary by the $56,000,000 purchase of Insull stock from Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, in 1930.

Q.—You thought it would be a good thing at that time to load up with some more stock of your company and of I. U. I.? A.—We thought it would be a good idea to buy some, Mr. Salter. "Load up" does not have—I am no expert on English, but it has got a kind of connotation that——

Denies Stock Worthless.

Q.—Well, now, four months later the stock of your company was worthless, according to your own records, was it not? A.—It was not.

Q.—Handing you the financial report of the company under date of Sept. 10, 1931, which, I take it, was submitted that week to your executive committee, I will ask you to state if that does not show that on that date the common stock was in the red, and it would take 17 cents contribution on the part of each stockholder of common stock to make it have any value whatever. A.—It does not. There is a 17 cent red figure there, and if you want me to tell you what it shows I will be glad to tell you, but it may involve me in a discussion of value and worth.

Q.—I suppose you want to quibble on the question now of intrinsic value, but I am talking about the value that you carried here, the liquidating value of the stock. As shown by your own books, the stock was worthless. A.—The stock was not worthless, and I do not want to quibble. I want to tell the truth as I know it.

Shows Dropping Values.

Salter insisted that on Dec. 31, 1931, the records of the company showed that each holder of common stock would have to have paid in $11.21 a share in order to bring the valuation of common stock up to 1 cent. Insull denied this.

Q.—Well, it is $11.21 in the red there, is it not? A.—Liquidating value. My liquidating value, if I die and go to the morgue, is about $5, but I value myself at more than that.

Q.—Well, let your attorney argue the case. Just answer by questions. Now, you said yesterday that you made some forced sales to creditors immediately prior to the receivership (in the spring of 1932). Now, does that situation account for the fact that in March, 1932, you sold approximately $100,000 worth of Corporation Securities and Insull Utility Investments stocks? Is that what you meant yesterday when you said you were forced to sell? A.—Partly.

After Salter had questioned young Insull about his father's contributions to charity the cross-examination was completed.

He had testified on direct examination that his father's salaries from the operating companies were over $400,000 in 1929, 1930, and 1931, but that large charitable donations and income taxes had depleted the earnings to the point where his father actually had a loss of $134,044 in 1930 and $135,551 in 1931.

Salter brought out that the senior Insull's $160,000 contribution to charity in 1930 was in stock, valued at market prices, and that a large amount of the contributions in 1931 also were in stock.

"You knew a large part of the contributions were in stock, not cash, didn't you?" Salter inquired. Insull replied that he did.

Clashes with Prosecutor.

"You were not trying to mislead the jury when you gave your computations?"

"Mr. Salter, I am not trying to mislead anybody," young Insull responded angrily. "Facts speak for themselves."

"You didn't give those facts yesterday?" the prosecutor persisted.

"I wasn't asked," the witness said. "I am giving it now."

"And you didn't intend to mislead the jury?"

"Mr. Salter, I don't intend——"

"I wish you would answer my question."

"Absolutely not," Insull flared, "nor mislead any one else."

"All right, that is all," the prosecutor replied, concluding his cross-examination.

Loses Last Thrust at Chart.

Attorney Thompson's last move before the defense closed was an attempt to introduce in evidence a chart based on algebrais formulæ prepared by Alfred Sweeney, one of the government's expert witnesses. According to Sweeney's formulæ the liquidating values of the two investment companies' common stocks were far below the market value.

Thompson wanted the chart in evidence to show the complicated calculations necessary to establish Sweeney's conclusions and to emphasize his contention that the defendants "can't be convicted on algebra."

Judge Wilkerson refused to allow the chart in because the defense had not cross-examined Sweeney on it and thus had deprived him of his right to uphold it.

MANILA, Nov. 17.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Relief workers were mobilized today to take food and medicine into the southeastern provinces devastated by a typhoon Wednesday. Twenty-five persons were known dead, with at least 20 persons reported missing. It is feared the death toll might reach 50.

Four towns appeared to have been hammered viciously by the storm. In Sorsogon province there were eleven known dead, and 60 per cent of the town's buildings blown down. Naga, Daet, and Legaspi also were reported badly damaged.

The Manila Tribune reported 23 persons lost their lives at sea. There were two known dead in Manila. Previously four deaths were reported at Catbalogan, capital of Samar province, and 29 fishermen were said to have been swept out to sea from San José, Leyte province.

ROOSEVELT'S AID SOUGHT TO STOP LYNCHINGS IN U. S.

GENEVA, Nov. 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's aid to stop lynchings in the United States was asked in a letter sent him today by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

The league wrote him that lawlessness and violence in one country "intensifies the tendencies of others to resort to intolerance, cruelty, and tyranny."

The organization also announced that it had telegraphed to Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany protesting against death sentences for Socialists and had petitioned the league of nations' council to consider to what extent European tension was aggravated by irresponsible detention of political and other prisoners.

Russian Boy Falls Out of Case of Caviar at Border

WARSAW, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Railroad employés, unloading cases of caviar from a soviet train at the Polish frontier station of Stolpce, were amazed today when they dropped a case and a boy fell out as it broke open. The lad, Aleksy Mietwej, 15 years old, was semi-conscious, possibly from hunger. The caviar which had surrounded him in the box was in cans.

PARAGUAY CLAIMS CAPTURE OF 7,000 BOLIVIAN TROOPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Nov. 16.—Gen. Jose Estigarribia, commander in chief of the Paraguayan army in the Gran Chaco, tonight claimed a decisive victory in the Canada el Carmen sector on the Pilcomayo river. According to the war office, ten Bolivian regiments, numbering 7,000 men, were captured in an enveloping movement.

Hammer at Stronghold.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Bolivian forces tonight hammered at the doors of Picuiba, major Paraguayan stronghold, 120 miles north of Canada el Carmen.

Fail to Reach Agreement.

GENEVA, Nov. 17 (Saturday).—(AP)—Failure early today met the efforts of the league of nations' Chaco committee to reach an agreement on recommendations for settlemet of the war between Bolivia and Paraguay.

The United States, while ready "to contribute in any feasible way" to efforts to end the Chaco war, does not "deem the moment an opportune one for collaboration" with the league to that end, the league was informed yesterday.

COL. S. T. LAWTON HEADS NATIONAL GUARD SOCIETY

Col. Sam T. Lawton, 122d field artillery, Chicago, was elected president of the Illinois National Guard association at the organization's annual meeting held yesterday in the Hotel Sherman. Other officers elected for the coming year were

First, second and third vice presidents, respectively: Col. Karl E. Hobart, 108th combat engineers, Chicago; Col. Charles E. Dawes, 202d coast guard, anti-aircraft, Chicago; Col. William H. Hemingway, 129th infantry, Sycamore; treasurer, Maj. Dell B. Hardin, 123d field artillery, Monmouth, and secretary, Capt. C. A. Dixon, 122d field artillery, Chicago.

Major General of Militia Roy D. Keehn, commander of the 33d division, in an address urged efforts to have congress make appropriations for the construction of National Guard armories in Illinois. Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, acting commander of the Sixth corps area and commandant at Fort Sheridan, supported the suggestion.

The regular sessions of the association were concluded with the annual dinner in the Bal Tabarin.

78 YEAR OLD PEER AND U. S. WOMAN OF 32 WILL WED

LONDON, Nov. 16—(AP)—Notice was given at the registry office today of the forthcoming marriage of the 78 year old Lord Conway and Mrs. Iva Lawson, 32, formerly of Texas. Mrs. Lawson's first husband, Capt. Reginald Lawson, died in 1930 as the result of a shooting accident.

William Martin Conway, the first Baron Conway of Allington, was married in 1884 to Katrina Lambard of Maine. They had one daughter.

Lord Conway, created a baron in 1931, traveled widely in his younger days. In 1892 he climbed a 23,000 foot peak in the Himalayas and surveyed 2,000 miles of mountainous territory. In 1898 he explored the Bolivian Andes and later the glaciers of Tierra del Fuego. He was Slade professor of fine arts at Cambridge university from 1901 to 1904, during which time he was president of the Alpine club. He was a member of the royal commission on museums in 1927, and is the author of many books on art and travel.

Serbia Has a $13,000,000 Surplus for Half of Year

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Jugo-Slavia revealed today that for the last six months of 1934 it has a surplus of $13,000,000. Financial observers considered this significant because the first semester of the budgetary year is always the poorest in agricultural countries, as most exports and sales of produce take place in the second semester.

TOWARD GREATER SECURITY.

A conference intended to devise means of promoting social security in this country has been meeting under presidential auspices in Washington. For the practical purposes of the conference, social security means a lessening of the sum of fear, worry, deprivation, dependence, and pain. All men of good will must regard the goal as a desirable one.

There is little danger that they will not do so. The much greater danger is that men will allow their hopes to dominate their judgment of the means proposed.

At the outset it should be clear that a startling increase in security is not likely to be brought about through legislative legerdemain. As individuals a thousand generations of men have striven for greater individual and collective security. Indeed, it is the desire for security more than anything else which has held men in organized societies. If much greater security than we now know had been easy to obtain through law, it is hard to see why it was not obtained long ago. Certainly we do not crave security more than our ancestors craved it and certainly there is little reason to think that we are materially brighter than they were.

It does not follow that we must despair of further progress toward the goal. Progress toward security has been interrupted frequently in the long history of mankind, but that there have been astonishing advances, particularly in recent times, goes without saying. Death from starvation was not uncommon in western Europe as late as the middle of the last century. The plague took more than 65,000 lives in London less than 300 years ago. Tschaikowsky died of epidemic cholera. We have made tremendous strides toward security against disease; scarcely less astonishing advances in average living standards have been recorded.

All of this progress can be attributed largely to discovery and invention, using the words in their broadest meanings. In goods, this has meant expanded production of an expanding list of things and more efficient and widespread distribution. We are no more intelligent than our ancestors, but we have more skill and more knowledge. Therefore, there is less dire want among us and less physical suffering.

It is somewhat curious to find an administration which has taken steps to limit the output of farms, factories, mines, and forests engaged at the same moment in making plans to increase security. The first requisite to security is plenty. Without plenty there can be no general security and nothing approaching it. Without plenty, generosity becomes a virtue which only saints possess and there are few saints in any generation.

It is also curious to find an administration which has determined to curb individual initiative at many points, an administration which regards "rugged individualism" as contemptible, listing economic security among its aims. Certainly a large part, and probably nearly all, of the progress toward security which has been achieved is the product, in part or in whole, of individual initiative in science and economic organization. Governmental burocracy has stifled far more than it has produced. The freest peoples have been the richest and generally the healthiest and happiest as well; there is small reason to expect these relationships to be upset in our day.

The conferees in Washington have confined themselves largely to the study of insurance devices to meet the various hazards of life. Much may be accomplished along this line, but it would be a mistake to regard insurance as a sovereign remedy for insecurity. It is no remedy in the absence of abundance; it is worse than no remedy if it serves to reduce production materially by greatly increasing costs and prices.

There is here no disposition to prejudge the program of the conference but only to raise a warning against wishful thinking that might defeat its own desires. Each proposal, as it emerges in legislative form, should be examined on its merits with the same healthy skepticism which led the President to reject the Townsend old age pension plan [though not by name] as a "fantastic" proposal.

SPORTIVELY SUGGESTED.

THE TRIBUNE sports department does not require any help from this one, but the reader knows how it is with things. A helpful idea which would make other people work comes pretty nearly being irresistible. So to get on with it. When Illinois played Northwestern Cruice broke into the clear and was downed on the Illinois two yard line, a run of forty-four yards. The play was called back and an offside penalty imposed on Northwestern. What the official thought he saw is said to be contradicted by the moving pictures showing Illinois offside.

Last summer when an umpire's decision was appealed and reversed in a Cubs-Cardinal game the order was for a replay starting with the situation as was at the time of the decision, same field, same players, and same positions. For this season's football novelty, why not a return of Illinois to Northwestern's field?

Play is resumed at the time of day when Cruice was slammed to earth on the two yard line. Score: Illinois, 7; Northwestern, 3. First down and goal to go, same players, same officials, and, shall it be required, same crowd, same weather and turf conditions, and all Illinois throats in same clutchy constriction as when the Northwestern back was downed. Bob Zuppke and Dick Hanley to be in same mental condition and physical posture as of Nov. 10 at about 4:13 p. m. Jack Beynon of Illinois is to kick himself in the shin and have another anti-tetanus injection so as to be a little bit lame again.

College football, particularly in the Big Ten conference, is notoriously conservative, but it must not become hidebound and a creature of its formulas like the old British court of chancery. An occasional unconventionality would not ill become the pundits.

Suppose, it is remarked, the official properly called the play back and imposed the penalty? Why allow that to interfere with a pleasant little surprise at the close of the season?

FOR WAYS THAT ARE BLAND.

The Japanese government persists in its understanding of the Manchukuo oil controversy and Ambassador Saito has restated it to Secretary Hull. Manchukuo is an independent sovereignty, recognized as such by Japan. Japan cannot meddle in its foreign affairs. If the oil monopoly should be thought by other nations to discriminate against them and violate treaties the diplomatic road goes to Manchukuo and not to Japan.

Officially the United States, protesting against the monopoly, does not know anything about Manchukuo. That land is still Manchuria and a part of China or, if Mr. Hull accepts his other alternative, it is territory conquered and administered by Japan. The United States has not recognized Manchukuo and cannot talk to it.

Ambassador Saito may think that this is too bad, but he will not smile at Mr. Hull, at least he will not smile either to conceal or to point his thought. He does say that he does not regard the oil monopoly as discriminatory. He does not think it violates the treaties. Mr. Hull in his private thoughts may be sure this is all solemn nonsense. He may think that Ambassador Saito ought not to be instructed to impose upon the common sense of a would-be friendly American secretary of state trying to carry on negotiations with the rulers of the land in question.

If Mr. Hull were to say any such thing Ambassador Saito would be astonished. He would be puzzled. The matter of sovereignty, he might remind Mr. Hull, is not at all times simple. It can be complicated. Sometimes Japan has not easily understood it. Japan has been given explanations which explained nothing. For instance, in 1906 Japan was complaining of a discrimination against its people in the United States, one of several.

San Francisco closed its common schools against Japanese children. Japan protested and learned that American sovereignty is not a simple thing. California was a sovereign state, but Japan could not deal with it diplomatically. Diplomatic negotiations must be with the American federal government. In turn the federal government which could deal with Japan could not deal with California. Japan was indignant. President Theodore Roosevelt was indignant. California stood pat and Japan tried to understand the complications of sovereignty.

The Japanese will concede that they have learned much from occidental nations and they are expert in applying what they learn. How much simpler, Ambassador Saito might suggest to Mr. Hull, is the situation in Manchukuo, where there is, he's sure, no discrimination, than in California, where, as every one conceded, there was. Japan could not deal diplomatically with California sovereignty, but all Mr. Hull has to do is to recognize Manchukuo sovereignty and the road is wide open. Japan will be willing even to offer its good offices and act as intermediary.

Mr. Hull may regard the situation as preposterous and exasperating and Ambassador Saito will have due regard for the feelings with which the American secretary of state is struggling. For some purposes Manchukuo is a sovereign state; for others it might not be. How similiar to the situation within the American Union. Ambassador Saito preserves the unruffled blandness of his countenance.

Editorial of the Day

BUROCRACY'S GROWTH.

[Grand Rapids Press.]

On the ropes and gasping for mercy from the bristling array of governmental laws and orders with which it cannot keep up, the American Bar association has looked into the whole challenging mess of new rules and regulations and come away shaking its head. New laws are all right, the bar association intimated, but there is a limit to which man's comprehension could go. Thousands of rules, tens of thousands of pages of regulations, and hundreds of "laws" newly "passed" by bureaus, government corporations, departments, special administrative bodies, and half a thousand code authorities had the lawyers in a whirl and they were frank to admit it. In the last two years, they announced gloomily, more federal laws had been passed than had appeared on federal statute books since 1789.

Now the Brookings institute, a research body, has arrived at the same conclusion—that a veritable Roman holiday of lawmaking has been visited upon the country. Laws appear and are enforced with dizzying speed that show the only streamlining has not taken place in railroads or airplanes. But, more important, the Brookings investigators have found basic developments that are alarming for the unhealthy conditions which they promote in government.

First is the fact that the very group which makes the rule, or law, or regulation is the very same one that enforces and prosecutes the offender of the law. This in many cases results in the person adjudged guilty being prevented from appealing from the decision, as it is not a judicial punishment. A typical example of this is the withdrawal of the Blue Eagle and the enforcement of a government boycott. The second development is that the mass and tangle of the vast legislative output cannot be mastered even by lawyers to be sure what the law is on many subjects.

This is burocracy. It is a tendency which has been growing steadily since the United States government was set up. But the final blooming had not been accomplished until the wholesale expansion of the New Deal was undertaken. Before March 4, 1933, the growth of burocracy was already being viewed with alarm, but now it has flourished to a point that constitutes it a major problem of the American people. The Brookings institute has only pointed out that burocracy, like the little girl with the spit curl, can, when it is bad, be very, very bad.

ITALY'S KING Goes Hunting in Africa."—Headline. It's nice to know every now and then that Italy has a king. A king in Italy must be like a Vice President in the United States. Certainly we have a Vice President in the United States. His name is—now what is that fellow's name?

EVERY AMERICAN FAMILY, according to the National Survey of Potential Products Board, should have a buying power of $4,700 annually. A lot of people I know have that much buying power in a day. And some of them, when they break loose and commence to look at new automobiles, fur coats, sassy winter suits, radios, vacuum sweepers, wines, Scotch and gin, hats, shoes, and bathing suits, develop more buying power in fifteen minutes than the Products Board says the whole damfamily should have in a year.

THE STORY REVISED.

Penelope, the patient wife—
Or so the legends tell—
Was faithful to her roving lord
And waited long and well;
She dusted his Penates
And wove a web of gray
To hide her tear-wet lashes
As Ulysses sailed away.

Ulysses, the philanderer,
Was very worldly wise;
And as the way of sailors is
He murmured amorous lies
To Circe, the enchantress,
Upon a silver strand,
And loitered perilously near
The dreamy Lotus Land.

Ulysses bold, the warrior,
Lay low the Cyclops band,
And sailed with Charon on the Styx
Down to the nether land.
For daring deeds and battles won
He earned his meed of praise,
Then turned again to Ithaca
To end his ageing days.

Penelope, the duteous wife,
Grew weary of her tears;
She donned a gown of scarlet hue,
Set jewels in her ears;
She spread the table with a wealth
Of bounty from the bin—
A dash of rouge, a hint of musk—
And asked some princes in.

Penelope, the faithful wife,
Unguarded by her spouse,
Became a charmer then herself—
And in her master's house!
"She's fairer far than Helen,"
Ulysses heard them say
As he in tattered beggar's garb
Pursued his homeward way.

The sound of revelry by night
Then smote Ulysses' ear.
"Penelope, why, where art thou?"
He hastened white with fear.
"Penelope, my dearest wife,
See it is I, thy lord!"
The princes tottered to their feet
And drawn was every sword.

"Let's slay the foul impostor,
Our lady, let us—Say?"
"No, princes, lords, and chieftains all,
Go get thee hence! Away!"

Penelope, the patient wife,
Then doffed her crimson gown;
Ulysses changed his beggar's rags
For scepter and for crown.

"Penelope, Calypso was
But just a sorry joke.
And so was Princess Nausicaa
And all the Lotus folk."
He told her tales of battles won,
She wove her web of gray
And wished that he'd sail back again
To Circe far away.

THE DEERS IN THE NORTHERN WOODS may think theirs is a hard life now that the hunting season is about to open. But they'll know how we nice, well behaved auto drivers feel when we're out on the road with the weave-in-and-out boys, the hit and runners, the hootch soaked drivers, the speed demons, and the birds who are always jumping out of line. In fact, the deers have it pretty soft. It's the guides and the cows and old Dobbin hitched to the wagon that have to tremble when the deer hunters go on the warpath. The deers get all the breaks!

WHICH REMINDS SOME OF US old timers of the years long gone by when Millionaire Corey came out to Wisconsin with his young actress-bride, Mabel Gilman, wasn't it? Mr. Corey, of course, traveled with a large retinue of guests, butlers, valets, cooks and so on, and naturally he was very insistent that none of his party would mistake his beautiful young bride for a deer. So he made a rule for one and all that before they banged away at a deer they should first call three times in a loud, clear voice: "Is that you, Mabel? Is that you, Mabel? Is that you, Mabel?" If the deer said "No," they could open fire. But if the deer said, "Of course it is, you poor simp!" then they could not shoot. It was a grand idea, and Mabel went safely back to New York.

NEURITIS.

WE are all more or less slaves to fashion. Styles change and we follow blindly. Although last year's coat or gown is eminently serviceable it will not do; the sleeves are too large or too small; the skirt too fullor too short. There are fashions in medicine just as there are in clothes. Fortunately medical fashions do not present so many variations nor the intensive kaleidoscopic colorings.

In some quarters neuritis is a fashionable diagnosis and into its lap is dumped by physicians and lay persons alike a large number of conditions attended with pain. Neuritis and rheumatism run a close race as catchalls when we are not quite sure just where the pain comes from. True neuritis is not a common disease, yet it does exist and may be accompanied by important symptoms requiring accurate diagnosis and treatment.

In many instances the cause can be traced to an injury that may be exceedingly slight in character, such as a badly fitting pair of crutches or sleeping on one's arm. Toxins are important and those produced by infections, such as rheumatic fever, influenza, diphtheria, and pneumonia, are not infrequently followed by nerve inflammation. Lead, arsenic and alcohol are among the poisons that cause neuritis. The disease known as beriberi [absence of vitamin B] is characterized by neuritis and paralysis.

The disease may be limited to a single nerve, such as the sciatic, or confined to a bundle of nerves such as those that supply the arm, or there may be inflammation of the spinal nerve roots, causing pain and muscular disturbance in an entire segment of the body.

Most forms of the disease, however, involve mixed nerves, that is, nerves that carry both pain and muscle moving fibers, and the disease is then attended by pain or numbness, muscular weakness, and muscle wasting or atrophy. The pain is greatly increased on stretching the nerve. In some cases only numbness or constant tingling will be noted; in others the mere touching of the skin over the affected nerve causes excruciating pain. If the disease involves the nerves supplying the muscles of the hand it is often difficult to grasp objects.

Neuritis means inflammation of a nerve, and the remedy is rest. It is sometimes necessary to immobilize or fix the part of the body affected by means of splints so as to prevent the slightest movement. The more complete the rest the more rapid will be recovery. Heat for the purpose of stimulating blood flow to the affected parts is most useful. Hot water bottles, electric heating pads, and the infra-red lamp are excellent means of application. Elimination of toxins is essential. Inasmuch as massage and exercise will increase the pain and prevent healing, this treatment should be employed only after recovery has taken place and for the purpose of restoring wasted muscles. The cause must always be searched for.

Pain in the extremities of elderly persons is usually not true neuritis. It is often due to a slowing down of the circulation and pain is the cry of the muscles for nourishment. As a rule X-rays will show narrowed and hardened arteries, thus explaining the lack of a normal blood supply.

Despite the general misuse of the term neuritis, physicians are alert to the necessity of identifying the exact cause of all manifestations of pain. Whenever pain is associated with extreme tenderness of skin or muscles, or can be traced along the course of a nerve; whenever weakness or loss of muscle tissue follows, we may then say with reasonable certainty that the disease is a true neuritis.

FISSURES.

Mrs. O. S. writes: What causes a fissure in the rectum and can it be cured without operation?

REPLY.

Fissures about the rectum usually result from mechanical causes such as constipation with the discharge of large masses that injure the delicate mucous membrane. The condition is often associated with hemorrhoids. When injuries occur bacteria are introduced and ulcers result. Due to folding of the skin about the rectum it is sometimes difficult to apply proper medical treatment. For hidden ulcers resort to surgery is usually safest. Whenever the fissure can be properly cauterized healing may be obtained without operation.

LIVER SPOTS.

M. J. J. writes: I have large and small brown spots on the face and body. They are not raised and are not freckles. What can be done to clear these up?

REPLY.

Liver spots, usually yellowish or brownish, are sometimes called moth patches or chloasma. They occur in various sizes and shapes, and are caused by a deposit of pigment in the skin. The cause is sometimes found in digestive disturbances, disease of the pelvic organs in women, or anemia. Lactic acid, hydrogen peroxide, bismuth subnitrate, and salicylic acid are employed externally. If the condition occurs on the face and is annoying, a physician should be consulted.

BITTEN TONGUE.

H. W. writes: Over three weeks ago I accidentally bit my tongue severely while eating. Quite a blister quickly developed, but soon disappeared. However, a small red lump still remains, and at times stings and then feels numb. Is there any danger in this continuing, or will it eventually correct itself?

REPLY.

You may have infected the tongue through a break in the thin covering. Avoid very hot foods, keep the mouth and tongue clean through the use of sodium perborate as a mouth wash, and the wound will probably heal.

BERLIN.—The long list of newspapers which were prohibited or ceased publication as a result of the rigid censorship maintained in Germany since the Nazis assumed power is steadily increasing. The list is now estimated to include about 700 dailies.

The most recent newspapers compelled to abandon publication were Der Tag, a Berlin daily, and the Bavarian newspaper, Bayerische Kurier.

Der Tag was the first publication of Alfred Hugenberg, once powerful newspaper king, to succumb. At one time Hugenberg was in control of about 1,500 provincial newspapers. He also owned the large Berlin Lokalanzeiger as well as Der Tag. Hugenberg also was the controling influence in Telegraphen Union, Germany's leading news agency in pre-Hitler days. Later it was merged with Wolff's Telegraphen Union under the name of Deutsches Nachrichten Buero.

Der Tag was the fifth large Berlin daily to close since the Nazis came into power, not counting the Socialist and communist publications prohibited by the government. The others were the Vossische Zeitung of the Ullstein publishing house and one of the oldest newspapers [it was founded in 1704]; the Boersenkurier, a financial paper of liberal tendencies; the Taegliche Rundschau, the mouthpiece of the foreign office in the days of the late Gustav Stresemann, and the Deutsche Tageszeitung, an agricultural daily representing the interests of the Junkers.

The Ullstein firm, in pre-Hitler days, was the biggest and most flourishing publishing house in Germany. Today it is fighting against great odds although its Jewish owners and its partly Jewish staf have long since been replaced by "Aryans." The most recent financial statement of the firm showed a deficit of more than $200,000.

Even the dyed-in-the-wool Nazi newspapers do not seem to get along too well, as is shown by the Berlin daily, Deutsche Zeitung. It was compelled to abandon one of its two editions and now is appearing only as a morning paper. The Deutsche Zeitung is the organ of Walter Darré, Germany's agricultural minister.

The now defunct Bayerische Kurier was for many decades the organ of the Bavarian People's party. Its death was preceded a few weeks earlier by that of the Bayerische Staatszeitung.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

There is no water, usually, in the lungs of a drowned person. Medical examinations have shown that the lungs are as empty after drowning as before and contain only air. People rescued from the water often cough up considerable water, but this is coming from their stomachs and not their lungs; they swallowed it while struggling—they did not breathe any into their lungs.

TELEPHONE BOOK ASSESSMENT.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—In THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of Nov. 10 there are alleged statements concerning "telephone book" assessments of personal property and the unwisdom of putting hundreds of thousands of small assessments on the books.

Although the facts have been made known before, these careless charges continue to be repeated, even though the campaign is over and the election is over. I know you desire to have the facts and am therefore sending you the following information:

In the preparation of the assessment roll for the 1931 assessment the county assessor made extensive searches and utilized all available sources of information pertinent to the ownership of personal property in Cook county. The principal sources were the official lists of corporations and utilities, financial and business organizations, official automobile, boat and business licenses, telephone subscribers, social, professional, civic and trade organization memberships, lists of apartment and hotel residents, and open estates in the county Probate court. From these sources a list of approximately one million owners of personal property was compiled.

After the completion of the 1931 personal property assessment roll a canvass was undertaken by my administration which required six months of intensive field work on the part of many deputies at a cost of some $30,000 to the county. This canvass involved a house-to-house, store-to-store, office-to-office investigation, and it resulted in the elimination of duplications, correction of addresses, and a further addition of some 200,000 names to the assessment roll. A very different procedure this from depending on the telephone book.

A detailed check of all businesses to which city licenses were issued in 1933 resulted in the addition of several thousand names and the correction of business and trade names in Chicago. The resulting assessment list for 1933 is the most comprehensive and accurate list of personal property owners ever compiled in Cook county.

The number of personal property assessments has been increased under my administration from 321,136 in 1930 to 988,944 for 1933. Despite all efforts to avoid mistakes some have undoubtedly crept into the assessments, but ample opportunities have been afforded owners of personal property—among other things by the establishment of branch offices and the preparation of instructions and guides—to point out errors in assessments and secure prompt correction of them.

As to the alleged hundreds of thousands of "small" assessments, that statement, too, is unfounded. There are, to be sure, many small assessments, and I have urged reasonable exemption of household goods and similar property under a certain minimum value. But the law as it stands gives the assessor no discretion in this matter or in that of property classification, and it does not provide for any exemptions on the ground of "smallness." On this basis at least 350,000 real estate assessments on parcels in new subdivisions should also be exempted. The legal difficulties involved in classification of property under the present constitution revenue article are well known by all who have had any experience in the field of taxation.

Many decisions of the courts and legal opinions prepared by the office of the state's attorney, the state tax commission, and the attorney general deal with this important problem—and none to date have pointed to the possibility of classification of property under the existing revenue article. My course has been that which plain duty and the mandate of the law have imposed upon me.

In the final report of the work of this office I am including a complete description of the problems encountered and solved, and those to be solved, with and without statutory change, and also the imperative necessity for amendment of the economically unsound, unworkable and antiquated revenue article in the state constitution. This report and the constructive proposals dealing with assessment and revenue matters will be completed within the next few days.

County Assessor.

WHO WON THE WAR AND HOW!

Chicago, Nov. 13.—"Once when the regiment was with the British it advanced so rapidly that it captured an artillery colonel in his headquarters, with his whole staf and an airplane."—Maj. George N. Malstrom, speaking of the exploits of the 131st, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Nov. 13.

For years the marines when accused of winning the war would blush, coyly hang their heads and refuse to disillusion their accusers. However, in the minds of the boys of the Dandy First no doubt has ever existed. They won it, and as the years come and go more evidence is submitted to support their claims. One shudders to imagine, for instance, the condition of the world today if the boys who had advanced so rapidly had overlooked that airplane George mentions.

Next year in all probability some shrinking violet from this modest retiring unit will tell us that the great and final drive, involving thousands of guns, tanks and airplanes, and millions of men, was to have started on Sept. 24 instead of Sept. 26, "but one of our boys was sick." I have often wondered if the spokesmen for the Dandy First get paid for handing out their line. Baron Munchausen does. THOMAS K. DAVEY,

BUILDING INSPECTION.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Well, according to this morning's paper, another precious young life has been snuffed out on the altar of our city's efficient building inspection department. I would like to know what the city is paying that set of bums for anyway. Playing pinochle in the corner saloon is about the extent of a good day's work, according to their union rules. The parents of the poor slain boy ought to sue the city for $25,000 and any honest judge would give it to them. Maybe that would wake up our sleeping beauties in the city hall.

BUT HIS PARENTS WERE DEMOCRATS.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—I wish to thank the unknown Republican who held me up last night, for the return of my car, keys and wallet and the half dozen shirts [new] which were found intact on the back seat.

Being a Republican he must have needed the money he obtained, but it also prevented him from willfully wrecking or abandoning my property, or molesting my wife, who was with me in the car.

If he will phone me again, as he did to inform me where I would find my car, I shall be glad to reimburse him for the calls.

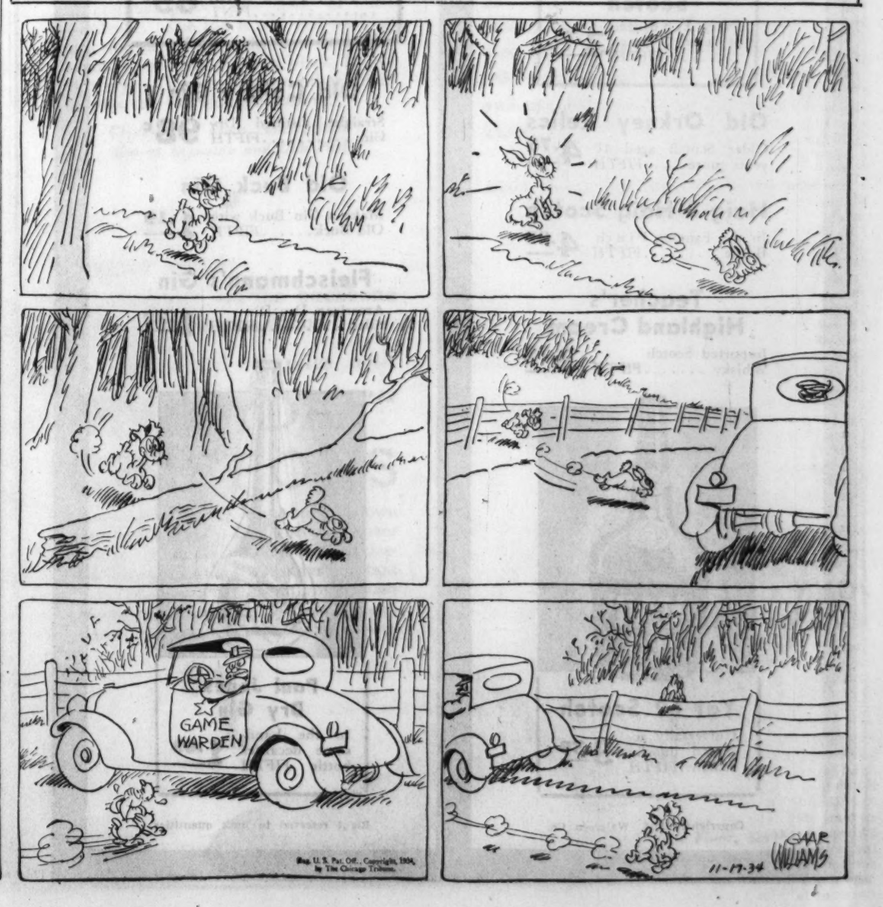
ZIPPER



DIRT CONTRACTOR TELLS HOW T-N-T GROUP RULED JOB

Forced to Join, Jury Told; Bitter Legal Battle.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Joseph Bludzius, larceny of an automobile, sentenced to one to twenty years in the penitentiary by Judge Donald S. McKinlay.

The manner in which he was prevented from fulfilling a contract with the Lincoln park board to provide black dirt because he did not belong to the "right association" was related from the witness stand yesterday afternoon by August Jarnecke, an excavating contractor of Des Plaines. He testified as a prosecution witness against 15 business men and labor union officials who are charged with conspiracy to create monopolies, boycott, and fix prices through operation of the Trucking and Tranportation exchange [TNT] and its alleged affiliates.

Jarnecke, a mon of huge proportions, went on the stand after a difficult session for the prosecution. William J. Newman, who preceded Jarnecke, had turned out, under cross-examination by Defense Attorneys Benedict J. Short and Joseph Harrington, to be a good defense witness.

Tells of Visit by Steffin.

Jarnecke testified he placed a bid with the Lincoln park commissioners to deliver black dirt. The day he submitted his bid with a $5,000 good faith certified check, John Steffin, one of the TNT defendants, executive secretary of the Associated Contractors, Inc., one of the alleged racket associations, was waiting for him at his home.

"Steffin asked me to withdraw my bid," testified Jarnecke. "I told him I couldn't do it because of the $5,000 check. He told me I had no chance to get the job because it was slated for Ben Brautigan. He told me his organization had a hookup with the unions and controled the situation. He said I would not be able to do the work."

Jarnecke, who eventually was awarded the contract, said when he started to deliver the dirt he was forced by teamster union officials to halt his hauling. He said he had previously joined the Chicago Truck Owners' association and had been told he could carry on his business anywhere in Chicago.

Joins Associated Group.

After he had to give up the job because of union interference, Jarnecke said, he went to see John M. Bransfield, contractor, who is also a defendant.

"I told him I joined the Truck Owners' association and was told I could do work anywhere in Chicago," Jarnecke continued. "He told me I was in the wrong pew; that I would not get anywhere until I joined the Associated Contractors. He told me to go see Steffin. I did, and joined the association.

"During the talk with Steffin, when I joined, I asked him about the Lincoln park job, and he said: 'We stopped you because we thought wou were doing the job for the Material Service company.' He said the object of the association was to stop cutthroat competition and to spread the work around among the contractors."

Bitter Legal Bickering.

Most of the session yesterday was taken up with the testimony of Newman and constant bickering between prosecutors and defense lawyers over the defense's apparent attempt to develop that the defendants were the victims of an alleged conspiracy on the part of the prosecution.

Newman denied on the stand that he was forced to join any association. He thought, he said, the Associated Contractors and the Engineering Service corporation were fine organizations and the officials upright and honorable men. He would have joined the TNT, he said, if occasion had demanded. He did not consider it illegal, he replied.

The witness said he never had experienced any union troubles until after his men joined the International Brotherhood of Teamsters as demanded by State's Attorney Courtney. Then, he said, one of his teamsters was slugged by the officials of this union. The prosecution constantly objected to this manner of testimony and finally demanded to know the purpose of it.

Question Prosecution Motives.

"We want to show the motive of the prosecution in this case," said Attorney Harrington.

"The motive of the prosecution is not in issue," replied Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson. "The only question here is whether the defendants are guilty under this indictment."

"If Courtney conspired to put the Chicago Teamsters' union out of business he should be tried separately for it," said Assistant State's Attorney William Crawford.

"That is just what we allege he did," retorted Defense Attorney Michael Ahern. "The indictment in this case is an overt act of that conspiracy which Mr. Crawford just talked about."

The judge ruled that Newman could continue to testify and the witness then related how the police chased Chicago teamsters' union chauffeurs off his trucks and substituted chauffeurs from the union favored by Mr. Courtney.

The trial will be resumed Monday morning with cross-examination of Jarnecke.

ITALY DECORATES JOHN C. THOMAS, OPERA BARITONE

John Charles Thomas, baritone of the Chicago and Metropolitan Opera companies, was officially notified yesterday that he is now a cavalier of the crown of Italy. The notification, given on the stage of the Civic Opera house, was by Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul general in Chicago. The citation was made by King Victor Emmanuel III. in recognition of services Thomas has given Italian organizations. Mr. Thomas, who arrived in Chicago yesterday, will make his opening appearance of the Chicago season tonight in "I Pagliacci." On Monday night he will sing the rôle of Germont in "La Traviata."

TO FORM CABINET

COL. GEORGE THEUNIS.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Henri Jaspar's "gun dealers' cabinet" failed to get King Leopold's approval today and Col. George Theunis, premier from 1922 to 1925, was trying tonight to solve Belgium's three day old cabinet crisis.

Financial quarters, meanwhile, were uneasy as efforts to replace Count Charles de Broqueville's cabinet, which resigned Nov. 13, continued fruitless.

Jaspar, foreign minister under de Broqueville, asked to be relieved of the post of premier-designate after the government he formed failed to win royal acceptance. It was reported Leopold opposed at least one of Jaspar's nominees.

Political circles already had dubbed Jaspar's list the "gun dealers' cabinet" because it included one of the directors of the Liege National Arms factory. Informed sources, however, attributed the erstwhile foreign minister's failure to the fact that he overloaded his ministry with men not members of parliament.

HUNGARY HAILS 15TH BIRTHDAY OF HORTHY'S RULE

Nation Cheers Regent; Parade in Capital.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Nov. 16.—The flourishing days of the dual empire of Austro-Hungary were revived in a brilliant spectacle today when all Hungary joined to cheer Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the kingdom's regent.

The occasion was the 15th anniversary of Horthy's régime. The greatest display of military pomp and power since the days of Emperor Francis Joseph stirred the patriotism of the Hungarians.

Through gayly decorated streets of the capital, Horthy, clad in a sparkling uniform of an admiral and riding a white horse, led a procession. The entire army, the government and the diplomatic corps participated.

Peasants Line Streets.

Thousands of peasants in their colorful national costumes lined the streets. They cheered the man who set up a stable government in Hungary after the violence and turbulence attendant to the communist régime of Bela Kun.

A striking figure of democracy amid the dazzling uniforms was John F. Montgomery, the American minister. He was one of the few in civilian dress. Members of noble families proudly stepped through the streets.

The government took drastic precautions to protect high officials from assassination. Balconies along the line of march were cleared of spectators and all suspected extremists were rounded up and taken to jail.

Admiral Horthy's régime is practically that of king. He has had a colorful career.

After Italy entered the world war on the side of the allies in 1916 Horthy, as commander of the cruiser Novarra, distinguished himself for deeds of valor. As a reward he was made commander in chief of the navy.

Surrenders His Flagship.

After the armistice Horthy was forced to surrender his flagship to the Jugo-Slavs. He returned to Budapest and withdrew to his estate. When Bela Kun's bolsheviki won the upper hand he offered his services to the counter revolutionary government at Szegedin. As war minister he organized the broken parts of the former Hungarian regiments into a national army and when the Russians, after an occupation of two months, evacuated Hungary the admiral entered Budapest at the head of a small army on Nov. 16, 1919. He was officially elected head of the Hungarian government in March, 1920.

2 Men Burned to Death When Hotel Is Destroyed

Geneva, N. Y., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Two men were burned to death and two others injured in a fire that destroyed the three story Park hotel in Exchange street early today with a loss of $40,000.

FESTIVITY ENDS COOKING SCHOOL FOR WEST SIDE

6,000 Women Take Home Favorite Recipes.

With evident reluctance, more than 6,000 women tucked a list of exciting new recipes in their purses and filed out of Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 128 North Pulaski road, at dusk last evening.

Once more the annual cooking school conducted by THE TRIBUNE became history for west side women, but only as far as the actual classroom lectures and entertainment were concerned, for the recipes they learned how to make will be revived time and time again in thousands of homes.

The session ended in festival atmosphere, with singing and prize winning, much laughter, and more than a little appreciation for the new cooking ideas imparted by Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, home economics expert, who prepared her favorite dishes on the stage.

North Side Sessions Next Week.

Many of the women not content with the four days of lessons, determined to go to the north side next week, when the school will open at the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue, at 12:30 Tuesday afternoon.

The children who accompanied their mothers found a program preceding the lecture which it seemed had been planned just for them. For there was Ireene Wicker, the "Singing Lady" of W-G-N, accompanied by Allan Grant, radio and concert pianist.

Then there was the red and green jack-in-the-box, who jumped right out and did a dance on the stage with her partner, and other pupils of the Esther M. Bossert dancing school.

Women Get a Surprise.

George L. Tenney, with Mr. Grant at the piano, led a community sing. Then Bob Elson, W-G-N announcer, told how he broadcasts sports events. Also on the program were Wendell Hall, "Red-Headed Music Maker"; Sara Corinne Mason, Chicagoland Music Festival singer, and Lawrence Salerno, baritone of W-G-N, and Capt. Tim Healy of the Ivory Stamp Club of the Air. Kathleen McLaughlin, TRIBUNE woman's editor, and Eleanor Page of the society staf, spoke briefly.

Finally the last cooking lesson began. The women turned to their list of recipes.

"You won't find it there," Mrs. Chitwood began. "It's a surprise. It's roast spring lamb." Then she explained the recipe.

Prizes Are Awarded.

Mary Meade, TRIBUNE cooking editor, showed the women how to make some of her own dishes.

Prizes were awarded at the close of the session. Mrs. August Kaphengst of 3623 West Cermak road, 26 years old, won the first prize, an electric refrigerator. Other winners were:

Second prize, a gas range, Mrs. Mary Lavery, 4129 Maypole avenue; third, a food mixer, Mrs. F. H. Stapp, 220 North Wheaton avenue, Wheaton; fourth, a toaster, Miss J. Ross, 1805 North Mason avenue; fifth, an aluminum set, Mrs. A. Yangus, 4911 West Fulton street; sixth prize, a roaster, Mary L. Fiag, 21 Elmwood avenue, La Grange; seventh, a coffee maker, Mrs. C. R. Wolff, 3552 West Polk street.

Mrs. Kaphengst is the bride of an oil station manager.

SANTA FE ROAD TELLS NEW PLAN FOR TRAIN SPEED

S. T. Bledsoe, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, yesterday announced that the Santa Fe proposes to make a new approach to the problem of obtaining greater speed for passenger trains.

The road now has under construction, Mr. Bledsoe said, a 3,600 horsepower Diesel locomotive. When it is ready for service it is to be used in the Chicago-Pacific coast runs of the Chief, the crack train of the Santa Fe.

"This locomotive," Mr. Bledsoe said, "will have sufficient tractive power to pull the present number of coaches and several additional ones at a speed comparable to that of streamlined trains. It will have the flexibility to meet volume demands and we believe it will give more comfortable and satisfactory service than light weight trains."

PAROLE NEAR, HE PLEADS TO STAY IN JOLIET PRISON

Fred Woods, 73 years old, a convict trusty who is a gardener at the old penitentiary in Joliet, was in deep distress when he approached Assistant Warden George F. Sehring yesterday.

"I've always behaved myself here," Woods said, "and now I want to ask a favor. I've just heard that my parole papers are on the way here from Springfield. It's been sort of pleasant here, and I'd have no place to go if I get out. Will you use your influence to keep me here?"

Sehring wouldn't commit himself but said he'd see what he could do. Woods has served nearly four years of a one to ten year term for larceny. He was committed from Will county. He served a previous term for a similar offense.

SUBWAY CENTER PIERS UNDER FIRE AS DEATH TRAPS

"Economy" Takes Toll in Human Life.

BY HAL FOUST.

Sixty thousand dollars was saved by using center piers in the construction of two subways under the Illinois Central railroad, one for Mannheim road and the other for Roosevelt road and both in the village of Westchester, 14 miles west of the loop.

Chargeable against the pier that saved $30,000 on the Roosevelt road job are nine automobile wrecks since Jan. 1, 1930, that killed two persons and injured twelve, according to George Wahlsted, chief of the Westchester police. His statistics on accidents in the Mannheim road subway during this period are eleven automobile wrecks, two persons killed, and nineteen injured, including one victim who lost his sanity.

Design Rarely Used Now.

"The state has abandoned this design for highway subways except in unusual situations," Kendrick Harger, district engineer of the Illinois highway department, said yesterday. "We have eighteen railroad grade separations on the public works program in Cook county and none has a center pier.

"The only excuse for the center pier design is that it saves about 30 per cent in construction costs. The only situation in which the state will now approve such a design is where the railroad and the highway cross at a sharp angle that would result in excessively long spans of excessively high cost without the center piers.

Urge Use of Floodlights.

"In these two Westchester subways we are trying to get the railroad and the village to agree to install and to maintain floodlights. Most of the accidents are at night.

"There are many such subways in Cook county. We are doing everything we can to protect them with signs and lights. When the bad grade crossings in the county are eliminated, the state will probably rebuild the dangerous subways."

"The Roosevelt road subway in Westchester should be rebuilt at once," said George Barton, Chicago Motor club engineer. "It is basically unsound in design and no signs or lights can correct its dangerous features. A forty foot roadway leads into a thirty-six foot subway with a concrete abutment in the center. It's a death trap."

OPEN VERDICT IN GAS DEATH.

Unable to determine the circumstances under which Robert W. Townsend, 17 years old, 7447 Coles avenue, died of carbon monoxide poisoning in the garage behind his home Nov. 7, a coroner's jury yesterday returned an open verdict.

TWO PILOTS KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES IN FOG AND BURNS

Amazonia, Mo., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Two veteran pilots died early today in the flaming wreckage of their transport plane on a farm near here.

H. C. Brasfield, 33, manager of the St. Louis airport, and Ben F. Billings, 34, of Kansas Cley, pilot of the Rapid Air Lines, Inc., mail and passenger plane, were the victims. There were no passengers on the ship, bound from Omaha to Kansas City.

The tri-motored metal plane was flying in a heavy fog with a drizzle of rain when the crash came. Farmers in the vicinity of the crash said the plane had circled low, apparently in distress.

Walter Rudolph, on whose farm the plane fell, said the pilot apparently was attempting to make a forced landing in his corn field. Upon crashing, the plane burst into flames, he said.

WARM BREEZES SEND MERCURY PAST 60 MARK

Warm breezes swept into Chicago from the southwest yesterday and, under bright skies, the mercury climbed up beyond the 60 mark in the afternoon. Forecaster J. R. Lloyd said that he did not believe the readings would fall below 50 during the night. Showers are predicted for today, but it is expected the temperature will remain mild. Sunday is expected to be much colder, with rain turning to snow.

Anklan's punishment was fixed at one year in the Bridewell and Scaglione was sentenced to one to five years in the penitentiary.

PARK DISTRICT, LACKING FUNDS, CUTS PAY ROLLS

Has No Revenue Except Tax Warants.

Heir to the jumbled finances of the medley of park districts recently consolidated, and to inadequate revenues on which to operate, the Chicago park district yesterday inaugurated a program of retrenchment to achieve a footing of solvency. It was disclosed by Robert J. Dunham, president of the unified board, that the park consolidation act framers failed to provide a workable fiscal policy to cover corporate expenditures.

The situation, it was stated, is further aggravated by the fact that less than 60 per cent of the 1932 taxes have been paid, and although salaries constitute 80 per cent of the park budget, the board is permitted to sell tax warants to only 50 per cent of the budget levies.

Pay Rolls Cut 25 Per Cent.

With the exception of the south park district, said Mr. Dunham, the only revenue for two years will come from the sale of warants, and even with warants salable up to 50 per cent maximum, one-third of the 3,500 employés would go unpaid. As a consequence the park board has adopted the following program:

1. Reduce pay rolls by 25 per cent, retaining only employés deemed necessary for proper functioning. As a beginning, 50 policemen were dropped from the service yesterday, those remaining being required to cover larger territories.

Plan to Stagger Employment.

2 Study classifications of all positions to standardize duties, activities, salaries and wages.

3. Stagger employment in order to give means of livelihood to the greatest number of employés possible.

4. Plan legislation for a refunding of the parks' bonded indebtedness with consequent reduction in tax levies for bond principal maturities, and for authority to issue some form of negotiable evidence that would permit the current payment of necessary wages.

COZZI CONVICTED IN MURDER CASE; GETS 99 YEARS

A jury in the Criminal court of Judge John C. Lewe yesterday convicted Michael Cozzi, 43 years old, 1067 Taylor street, a minor politician, of murder and fixed his punishment at 99 years in the penitentiary. Cozzi was charged with the fatal shooting of Archie De Simone, 40 years old, in front of De Simone's home at 1104 Taylor street on Jan. 11, 1933.

Assistant State's Attorney Alex Napoli introduced in evidence the dying statement of De Simone in which he named Cozzi as the killer. The men are alleged to have quarreled over De Simone's wife, Rose.

Although no witnesses could be found, the conviction was won on the testimony of ballistic experts. They testified that the bullets in the dead man's body were fired from a revolver found in a tavern near the scene of the slaying. Cozzi, the state contended, had dropped the revolver when he entered the tavern shortly after the shooting. Motion for a new trial will be heard on Nov. 19.

BURDICK'S WIFE GETS WRIT TYING UP HIS PROPERTY

Charles Ransom Burdick, 48 year old head of the Burdick Pump and Machine company, 358 East Illinois street, was enjoined from leaving the state or from disposing of his assets in a writ of ne exeat issued yesterday by Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti.

The writ was asked by Burdick's wife, Jane, 46 years old, 6717 Irving Park boulevard, who a few minutes earlier had filed suit for separate maintenance. She charged her husband was so friendly with a woman named only as Della, about 25 years old, that he bought her a horse named J. C. Patsy Black. The bill, drawn by Attorney Harry J. Berman, alleges Burdick tried to force his wife to get a divorce and accept $50 a month alimony on threat of leaving the state if she refused.

The Burdicks were married Aug. 26, 1904, and separated in June, 1929, the bill sets forth. They have a son Walter, 29 years old.

SUBURB GAMING CHIEF GETS YEAR FOR TAX EVASION

Oliver J. Ellis, reputed slot machine boss of Chicago Heights, was sentenced to a year and a day in Leavenworth prison by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday for income tax evasion. The government charged that Ellis failed to file a return in 1927 when he should have paid tax of $8,501 on an income of $71,884. Judge Woodward stayed execution on the sentence until Dec. 6 to allow Ellis to arrange his affairs.

DEVOTIONAL ACTS FOR MUNDELEIN'S JUBILEE RELATED

Pupils in 11 Million Observances.

How the 205,920 children in parochial schools and Catholic colleges of the archdiocese of Chicago discharged their spiritual obligations during Cardinal Mundelein's jubilee year which ends next Tuesday is now engrossed in a great volume.

The book, bound in rich red lether and bearing the cardinal's seal in gold, witnesses the fact that his pupils and students engaged in more than 11 million specific devotional acts during the jubilee year.

Will Be Given to Cardinal.

Yesterday afternoon the Most Rev. Msgr. Daniel Cunningham, superintendent of schools, received the book from a group of children at Holy Name cathedral. It will be formally presented to Cardinal Mundelein by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil at a luncheon in the Drake hotel following the solemn votive mass of thanksgiving, which ends the jubilee.

The book, which is one of the evidences of the "spiritual bouquet" asked of the diocese a year ago by the cardinal, lists all the schools of the diocese and gives number of special devotional acts of the pupils of each school.

Returns from Washington.

The pupils of a typical school, such as St. Andrew's, at Paulina and Addison streets, the book certifies, heard 26,028 masses during the year; made 22,872 communions; said 11,375 rosaries and made 16,052 visits to the sacrament.

The grand total for all the schools and colleges includes 2,540,452 masses heard, 2,531,187 communions, 2,148,314 rosaries said, and 4,079,964 visits to the sacrament.

Cardinal Mundelein returned yesterday from Washington, D. C., where he attended a meeting of the hierarchy of the country.

ILLINOIS RELIEF BODY ORDERS 3D TRANSIENT CAMP

A third camp for transient "clients" is being established in this state by the Illinois emergency relief commission, it was announced yesterday. It will be known as Mound Lake camp and is on the banks of the Sangamon river near Chandlerville, Mason county.

The camp will accommodate 200 men, who will construct their own barracks, dining hall, kitchen, and recreational facilities. The men will work on a drainage project which will benefit a large area adjacent to the Sangamon river.

Six miles of the old river channel will be cleared and rebuilt, while backwater lands will be drained and leveled. Years of erosion at this point has caused the river to leave its former channel and follow a meandering course across the lowlands, allowing the original channel to fill up with débris. Federal officials hope to reestablish the area as an important feeding ground for migratory game birds.

'Golden Vanity' Factual Story of Two Women

Isabel Paterson Presents Witty Novel.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Golden Vanity," by Isabel Paterson. [Morrow.]

ISABEL PATERSON, the famous IMP of New York, has chosen, as she did in "Never Ask the End," the present as the time and mood for her latest novel. Her first books were remote, historically, in theme and setting. We think that the moderner she is the better she is.

"Never Ask the End" was as modern as the contraptions for seeing sound, and a good deal like the machinery that somebody will invent some day for seeing inside people's minds [the way they can see inside stomachs with a fluoroscope]. That was an important book, skilful as the trickiest of them.

"The Golden Vanity" is not technically so brilliant as its immediate predecessor, which was a tour de force. It has none of that book's fluoroscopic quality. It tells its factual story without any searching into the minds of its characters. Its special allure is in the caustic wit of its author, searing human thought as well as human action.

Two characters dominate the book, Mysie, who is one of the most amusing, straight thinking, and outspoken women you've ever met in a modern novel, and her cousin, who marries into the upper branches of the fourteen carat social register. The cousin, Gina, is what the Germans in the good old days used to damn with the word "ersatz" [a very good imitation of something as opposed to "echt," which meant genuineness through and through].

Mysie is as "echt" as a pumpkin in an expensive night club on Halloween. All the lights inside, all the Chinese or negroid carving outside can't disguise its pumpkin-ness. Mysie is actress, press agent, knowledgeful of the ways of Broadway and the most selfish and self-seeking, but knowledge only intensifies her amusement at life, never her resentment. She is self-supporting, self-sufficient in a way that so many modern women wish they were and so few ever manage to be.

"The Golden Vanity" is a much "lighter" book than "Never Ask the End." It is concerned with the ephemera of life before and during the depression rather than with its social and sociological connotations. It has no "significance" beyond the delightful significance of keen insight into humankind and its frailties. But it is a witty, devastating lance of a glance that Mrs. Paterson turns toward and through her characters. F. B.

IN YEARS GONE BY

Twenty years ago this week two feminine stars dominated the literary firmament, one in the first shy splendor of dawn, the other sinking to its setting. The first book from the pen of Fannie Hurst, "Just Around the Corner," a volume of short stories, intrigued the reviewer. And also "Delia Blanchflower," by Mrs. Humphry Ward, which all but closed her spectacular career. Mrs. Humphry Ward lived six years longer, but published only one novel in those darkening days.

Ten years ago—and most of you probably remember—we were discovering a book that the world was soon talking about, Albert Edward Wiggam's "The Fruit of the Family Tree," and the best sellers of the week were:

FICTION.

"The White Monkey," by John Galsworthy.
"The Green Hat," by Michael Arlen.
"The Little French Girl," by Anne Douglas Sedgwick.
"Arnold Waterlow," by May Sinclair.
"A Passage to India," by E. M. Forster.
"Sard Harker," by John Masefield.

NONFICTION.

"Mark Twain's Autobiography."
"Voyaging," by Rockwell Kent.
"Life and Times of Cleopatra," by Arthur Weigall.

TWENTIETH NOVEL

Sheila Kaye-Smith's twentieth novel, "Gallybird," has just been published. In January she will arrive in New York for her first visit to a country where her books have innumerable devoted readers.

Miss Zora Hurston Will Talk on Negro Folklore

Zora Neale Hurston, a young Negro woman whose first novel, "Jonah's Gourd Vine," has received enthusiastic acclaim, and who is working on a fellowship collecting Negro folklore, will lecture before the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago at Mandel hall on Monday evening on Negro folklore in America and read from her own work. She is also superintending the production of "Singing Steel," a dramatic and musical presentation of life in a Negro railroad camp, which will be given at the Chicago Woman's Club theater next Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the South Park Way Y. W. C. A. for the benefit of the association fund.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK

Hocus-pocus is Perry Mason's middle name, but he turns it to honorable uses. In "The Case of the Curious Bride" [Morrow] that expert in crime stories, Earl Stanley Gardner, tells another tale of Mason's prowess better than the last, as each is always better. For pulling fast ones and putting it all over bewildered district attorneys there's no one like him. I don't know just how well the schemes of this astute and benevolent criminal lawyer might work out in real life, but they are foolproof as handled by Mr. Gardner and they sound good and convincing to me.

Anyway, if you have to date neglected the cold-blooded but warm-hearted Perry Mason as presented by his author and inventor, run right out and get this latest of his stories. Then I predict you'll scrabble around and get some of the others. What that man Mason doesn't think of is nobody's business, and his biographer gives him all the breaks as fluently and convincingly as you please.

Vale, the Lone Wolf, and his creator, Louis Joseph Vance, are dead, and the last of that chivalrous crook's escapades is briefly told in "The Lone Wolf's Last Prowl" [Lippincott]. It's the usual glittering chronicle of beauty in distress and people so unusually wicked that it seems almost too bad to upset their triumphant careers.

But in the Lone Wolf, whose generous crimes checkmate their selfish ones, was true romance, and he will be sadly missed. We leave him happy and at peace, all his troubles over and at the dawn of a new and what Mr. Vance would describe as a glamorous future. If now, as always, he is a little too good to be true, be grateful to a writer who has created a memorable character who moved always through adventures no less entertaining because they are fantastic.

Look at 1960 Given in New English Novel

John Gloag Finds Old Men Young Again.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—I am glad to see that John Gloag has a new novel on the point of publication, for Mr. Gloag's earlier novels, "Yesterday's Tomorrow" and "The New Pleasure," were highly original and amusing comments upon modern civilization. The new book, like "The New Pleasure," takes us for a journey into the future—this time the nineteen sixties, when old men can be young again and, even more annoyingly than they do now, keep the young waiting for their turn in life.

The book is called "Winter's Youth" [Allen & Unwin] and it should provoke a good deal of discussion. Mr. Gloag is not yet a professional novelist, for his interests lie in the direction of modern design. He has already edited a volume of essays on "Design in Modern Life" [same publishers] and next year he will have ready in the spring a complete and fully illustrated work on industrial art, which he calls "Industrial Art Explained."

This book will indicate the source of much in Mr. Gloag's novels which gives their social pictures solidity. He has been connected with the advertising world (that was clear in "Yesterday's Tomorrow") and knows much of organization. But what is chiefly interesting about his work is that it is full of a confident vigor of criticism. He has strong practical intelligence and, while this hardens his work, it gives it an unusual robustness.

A novel which is just published here, translated from the German, is described to me as being of altogether exceptional merit. It is produced by the young and very enterprising firm of Boriswood (three young men named Bond, Morris, and Greenwood pooled their intelligence and concocted this name from a telescoping of their own) and it is called "Condemned to Live."

The author, Johann Rabener, is quite a youngster, born no longer ago than 1909. He has had a lifetime of odd misfortunes, for every firm which he has entered as a clerk has shortly afterward failed—first an artificial silk factory in Germany, an Amsterdam bank, a large grain firm in Frankfurt, a flax firm in Ghent, and at last a newspaper to which he became sports reporter.

Rabener was encouraged to write by Jacob Wassermann, and his book, the result of this encouragement, is a very long work, a real survey of the modern world as it is seen by a youth of exceptional intelligence. In the English edition it fills over 600 large and closely printed pages and as it is a Book Guild choice it is sure to attract attention.

Walter de la Mare's new book is called "Themselves When Young." It deals with the early lives of famous men and the publishers [Faber] describe it as being comparable to Mr. de la Mare's "Desert Islands." If it is like that lovely book it will be a treasure indeed.

Republish Collection of American Indian Verse

"The Path on the Rainbow" [Liveright], the first comprehensive collection of Indian verse in English, edited by a scholar and a gentleman, George Cronyn [who used to be THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE correspondent in Mexico City], was first published in 1918. It immediately found its place as a reference book as well as a literary treasure. A new edition has just been published which contains all of the old text and many previously unpublished songs and chants from the Indians of North America either literally translated or "interpreted." For the revived cult of the Indian, "The Path on the Rainbow" is one of the source books.

Captain Dingle Writes Splendid Tale of Skipper

Biography of Red Saunders Outstanding Story.

Capt. Dingle, popular writer of salt water fiction (more than 400 of his short stories and ten novels have been published), last year penned a picturesque, poignant, and thrilling story of his own life, mostly at sea, in his "Rough Hewn: The Autobiography of a Modern Sinbad." In it he devoted several chapters to Red Saunders, one of the colorful characters of his day—a huge, carmine cropped giant, master of a small trading schooner, the Black Pearl.

They were wrecked on desolate St. Paul Island, in the south Indian ocean, and during the dreary weeks together Red Saunders (his real name was Kenneth Beauclerc Saunders, schooled at Eton and rusticated from Oxford) told Capt. Dingle, then mate, the stirring story of his life.

"Salt of the Sea: Red Saunders: The Chronicle of a Genial Outcast," just published by Lippincott, is Capt. Dingle's brilliant biography of his old Black Pearl partner. Written with an unfeigned admiration of the remarkably fine qualities of the ginger haired giant, his bravery, generosity, unswerving honesty, and a strange combination of quick temper and unflagging good humor, Capt. Dingle has given us one of the outstanding sea books of several seasons.

It splashes all of the thrills of sensational sea fiction against a picturesque pattern of actual fact, as colorful, unusual, and episodic as the most melodramatic imagining.

Red Saunders at one time was almost as famous in the far east as Bully Hayes was when Louis Becke was a South Sea trader. But while Becke and others have written about notorious Bully Hayes, no one, so far as we know, ever had told about genial, dashing Red Saunders. Capt. Dingle has done a splendid job—an authentic, thrilling biography of as fantastic a figure as ever sailed blue water.

Skeet Grounds at Onwentsia to Open Today

Shooters to Gather at Club Traps This Week-End.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NOW that the traps on the Onwentsia skeet field are ready it is certain that quite a number of the club members who count skeet shooting among their recreations will turn up at the field today and tomorrow with their skeet guns—lighter and shorter barreled and with a wider spread than those they use for hunting ducks.

Not all skeeters have different shotguns for skeet shooting and bird hunting, for they can use the same, but those whose pocketbooks make it possible usually buy special guns to use on the skeet field.

Some of the Onwentsia members who are to be found at the field almost any Saturday afternoon or Sunday morning during the season, which starts when the weather becomes too cold for golf, are Stuart Prosser, John C. Evans, Dexter Cummings, William A. P. Pullman, Richard Bentley, and Roger Hyatt.

The feminine skeeters at the Onwentsia include Mrs. Austin H. Niblack and her sister, Mrs. Vaughan C. Spalding; Mrs. Samuel J. Walker, Mrs. Merrill Hubbard, and Mrs. J. Andrews King.

The Onwentsia's neighbor to the west, the Knollwood club, had its skeet field ready for use last week-end but there weren't many who used it for the pheasant hunting season opened on Saturday and since it lasted only until Thursday, many of the skeeters were out for pheasant cocks over the week-end.

Also the Longmeadow hounds hunted over the Knollwood course Sunday and that attracted many of those who ordinarily shoot skeet. Among the Knollwood skeeters are Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hamm Jr. [Joy Fairman], Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Osborne [Anne Robinson], the Winthrop Smiths, J. Roland Histed, Everett L. Wyman, John E. Wheeler, Dayton Keith, Cushman Bissell, and John O'Leary. This club is having its first winter party next Saturday, an informal dinner dance.

Prince of Orleans to Visit City Today.

Ira Nelson Morris will be up bright and early this morning to meet his royal guest, the Infante Don Alfonso of Orleans, cousin of former King Alfonso of Spain, for he arrives from Detroit at 7:30. He is coming to be with Mr. Morris at the Lake Shore Drive hotel through tomorrow evening and during this short visit he will be seeing all possible of Chicago for this is his first trip here.

At noon today the directors of the Council on Foreign Relations are entertaining for him at the Tavern and this evening Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn and Mrs. Linn's father, Edward T Blair, are having a dinner for him and Mr. Morris at Mr. Blair's residence at 1516 Lake Shore drive. After dinner the party will move on to the Chicago Civic Opera house for an evening of opera. In the party will be the Chauncey McCormicks, Mrs. Francis Johnson, the John Alden Carpenters, Seymour Blair, and Floyd Parker.

Tomorrow Mrs. Jacob Baur is entertaining at luncheon for Don Alfonso at her Astor street house and later in the afternoon he will meet several dozen prominent Chicagoans at tea at Mr. Morris' apartment.

Robinson Gives Boat to Navy.

That little ketch, the Svaap, that William Albert Robinson and his pretty wife, the former Florence Crane, sailed to the Galapagos Islands on their honeymoon, is to be given to the United States navy. Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, who are here in Chicago until tonight with Mrs. Robinson's mother, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, explained this and said at the same time that they themselves have no plans for going back to the islands.

The boat will be picked up down in the Galapagos by a sailor during the next month, brought back to Panama, and from there sailed to Annapolis. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson are entraining tonight for San Francisco where they will embark Wednesday on the S. S. Makura for Tahiti. They will spend at least three months in Tahiti. Mr. Robinson doing some writing and research and Mrs. Crane assisting him.

The buffet supper party that Mrs. William H. Bush and her daughter, Miss Emeline Bush, are giving tomorrow night at the Saddle and Cycle club for Miss Betty Babson will not be a large one, for many debutantes are in the east for football games, and Mrs. Bush has limited the invitations to debutantes and their escorts. Miss Babson is the daughter of the Henry B. Babsons.

Gardner Jr. of Providence, R. I. Only the immediate families and a very few intimate friends will hear the young couple exchange their wedding vows after the Rev. Herbert E. Prince of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest.

Little Polly Sheldon, daughter of the Theodore Sheldons of Winnetka, will be the flower girl and Miss MacArthur's only attendant. The bridegroom's father, Henry B. Gardner, will be the only out of town guest. After a wedding trip young Mr. Gardner and his bride will live in Providence.

The ceremony is to be read at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Peter Langendorff in the living room of the home of Miss Groman's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Herman C. Groman, on Wildwood road in Hammond, Ind.

Priscilla Sims Another Bride.

The proprietor of a small shop in the Turkish village at the Columbian Exposition of 1893 presented the late Frank C. Smith with a small Oriental rug in token of some legal services rendered. This rug has been marked in the course of years with romantic tradition.

At 8 o'clock this evening when Miss Priscilla Sims, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims, becomes the bride of John Ford Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Wallace Evans, she will be the fifth bride in the Sims family to stand upon the rug as the wedding service is read. The late Mr. Smith was Mrs. Sims' father and she, as Charlotte Smith, was the first bride to use the rug. The others have been Betsy Sims who became Mrs. Peter C. Krupp, Helen Sims, who is now Mrs. John Gammie, and Susan Sims, who is Mrs. Richard G. Coffin.

Dr. John Timothy Stone is to read the ceremony before the fireplace in the living room of the Sims' home at 112 Bellevue place. THE man-bites-dog skit in "As Thousands Cheer" brings to mind the story of the fellow who, having been bitten by a dog, was told by his physician that the dog was under observation, and that, to be on the safe side, he had better put his affairs in order and make his will. The dog showed signs of being a mad dog, he pointed out. Coming in to see his patient a day or so later, he found him busily writing.

Satisfaction—

Answer—
Understatement.

"Ah, making your will?" inquired the doctor.

"No, making out a list of people I want to bite," retorted the patient.

A SOCIAL worker says that some years ago he was working in the slums of Edinburgh, Scotland. One day while walking along the street he noticed, in the third story window of a tenement, a full grown hog looking out of the window, just as a dog might do. He climbed the narrow stairs and after some other inquiries asked the woman who came to the door:

"How did you ever get that great hog up here?"

"He was ne'er doon," was the disconcerting reply.

ERNEST BYFIELD brought back a story from New York told him by both Margalo Gillmore and Myra Hampton that certainly shows that the wags have been cudgeling their brains for stories. This one is hung on the sinking of the Titanic. It seems that some one inquired of a sister of Charles Cherry, the actor, a survivor who was picked up by a lifeboat, if she had crossed on the Titanic.

"Part way," she answered with that reserve for which the British are famous.

Offer National Theater Plan to Cover U. S.

Seek Loan of Million to Launch Project.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—A plan for a national theater to bring drama to "every city in the country," designed to help remedy ills from which the theatrical industry is now suffering, and calling for a government loan of $1,000,000, was left at the White House today by Hermann Gantvoort, New York producer, for consideration of President Roosevelt.

George M. Cohan, who is playing here this week, favors the plan, which is said to be indorsed by such leading New York theatrical figures as William A. Brady, Arthur Hopkins, Brock Pemberton, and Lee Schubert, and by the Actors' Equity association.

The national theater plan would seek to furnish employment for all of the country's employable actors and theater attaches. Stagehands, costume makers, ushers, advertising men, electricians, and carpenters, totaling some 100,000 persons, would be affected by it, it was said.

Speaking of the plan Mr. Gantvoort said: "It would be a simple matter to finance this plan with private capital. The money is a minor consideration. It must be a real national theater, operating under a federal loan to become effective and to bring the theater to every city in the country including one-night stands.

"With the federal loan would be set up a revolving fund for the financing of new plays. Jurisdiction would be vested in an active board of directors, composed of all of the active producers, who would sit as a legislature in judgment on the proposals of each producer. If his request to do this or that play was felt to be sound funds out of the revolving fund would be made available to him.

"If, after tryouts, the play was still felt to be worthy, it would be put on Broadway, and from there would go on an eight-week tour of the road. Receipts would be split on a percentage basis between the producer, the revolving fund, and the entire producer group."

CIRCUIT THEATER

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The Circuit Theater of Chicago, an organization of resident professional players which points its activities mainly toward the smaller cities and college communities of this region, made its début in the Goodman theater last night with a good performance of "The Whiteheaded Boy," a standard comedy in the repertory of the Abbey theater of Dublin. The atmosphere of the Irish drama was well sustained, and the rich brogue of the Abbey tradition was accurately reproduced.

Tyrone Power Jr., son of a great actor whose last performances in Chicago were with Fritz Leiber's Civic Shakespeare company, appeared as the family pet; Charles O'Neal was the gruff but good hearted brother George, and William Yule, who was active in the Woodstock drama festival last summer, appeared in the character for which Barry Fitzgerald, comic genius of the Abbey company, is remembered.

This group intends to give one performance a month at the Goodman. Its next production, scheduled for Dec. 1, will be Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew."

The Abbey players themselves, now in New York, will reach Chicago Jan. 28 for a three weeks' engagement. The personnel of the company is unchanged except in the ingenue department. Kate Curling, the pretty girl of the last tour, married a Philadelphian and retired from the stage.

The D'Oyly Carter Opera company will end its repertory of Gilbert and Sullivan works in New York Dec. 15, and will then start on a tour which will probably include Chicago.

This was announced yesterday by George La Force, assistant chief florist for the south park district, who said new blooms will replace faded ones in the exhibits.

Sorority Dance.

Alpha Sigma Upsilon sorority will hold its fourth annual benefit dance at the Oak Park Arms hotel tonight.

The Gold Rush Lives Again at Benefit Ball

Young married people, a few debutantes, and some of their elders danced until early this morning in the ballroom of the Drake hotel at a ball that benefited the North Avenue Day nursery. The tiled rooms off the ballroom were decorated properly to represent the gold rush days of '49 with a long wooden bar, correct smoky haze, numerous gambling games, and a picturesque throng of guests whose costumes ranged from a charming Spanish senorita through cowgirls, dance hall dames, miners and even an evangelist!

Mrs. John P. Wilson Jr., chairman of the benefit, and Mr. Wilson and their dinner guests arrived early at the party. Mrs. Wilson looked more ladylike than most of the guests in a pretty pink satin gown with hooped skirts. Dainty white pantalettes peeped from under the skirt and on her head was an elaborate beaded bonnet.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Noyes and one of their dinner guests, Mrs. Joseph Toole, created quite a sensation when they arrived just as the party was getting into full swing. Mrs. Noyes looked stunning as a cowgirl in a handsome lether divided skirt, two guns at her waist and genuine high-heeled cowboy boots with cutouts shaped like hearts and diamonds on the cuffs.

Mrs. Toole, who comes from an old Spanish California family, wore a beautiful, colorful Spanish shawl. She had spent an hour or so draping it about her because, not having worn it for a few years, she had forgotten how to do it. Mr. Noyes, however, was a laugh riot, for he chose to come as an old time evangelist in a long black frock coat over dingy trousers, and added a long haired wig and black cotton gloves to complete the picture.

Mrs. Sidney S. Gorham Jr., Mrs. Theron Chapman and Mrs. L. Perkins Bull were dressed as dance hall girls, but with variety. Mrs. Gorham's brief gown was of black silk, covered with silver spangles, and she wore red slippers and black silk hose. Mrs. Bull's version of the dress was a long ruffled pink silk one, very décolleté, and heavily trimmed with black lace. Mrs. Chapman chose a short brown tulle affair with a red rose at the neckline.

Miss Honor Merrell, president of the nursery, whose dinner followed the Chapmans' cocktail party, went as a cowgirl in a divided skirt, blue shirt, high-heeled boots and the traditional ten gallon hat.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Am I glad!

They've put my favorite mystery story sleuth in the movies. Perry Mason is the name and he functions in Erle Stanley Gardner's tiptop detective yarns.

I'd never read any of them till "The Case of the Howling Dog" was fervently recommended to my attention. That intrigued me so that I went on a still hunt for previous works by the author and I spent several luscious evenings over "The Case of the Velvet Claws," "The Case of the Lucky Legs," and "The Case of the Sulky Girl."

This unraveler of Mr. Gardner's slick tangles is a relief from the dilettante brand of crime solver that's been the vogue of recent years. He's a criminal lawyer—straight thinking, canny and human, and indefatigable in protecting the interests of clients who hire him to figure out things for them.

Warren William, impersonating the lawyer detective this trip, makes Mason credible and likable. He and an up to the minute supporting cast under snappy direction have in "The Case of the Howling Dog" turned out a mystery thriller that I guarantee you'll remember.

[WHY is Allen Jenkins hiding behind a mustache these days? He wears one in this opus and also in "Happiness Ahead"—of which latter pix you'll learn more Monday. Always supposing you read this column on Monday.]

Tip on story of "The Howling Dog": The persistent howling of a canine owned by the people who live next door to a certain Arthur Cartwright brings this nervous wreck of a gentleman to Mason's office. Mason MUST do something about that dog. He must STOP the howling, otherwise Mr. Cartwright will go nuts. Also Mr. C. would make some queries about wills. . . .

What makes the dog howl? How is he stopped? What happens AFTER he stops?

The picture at the Oriental has ALL the answers. I know you'll get a kick out of it.

See you tomorrow!

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

A new nail polish that comes out of Hollywood may be bought in single bottles or in a compact zippered kit that has everything from an oil polish remover to a white pencil that keeps the tips looking immaculate.

Seems to us a lot of important nail news comes out of Hollywood. There was the nail nourisher we told you about a couple of weeks ago—and now there are some nifty new liquid polishes. When they're not in the divorce courts or on the sets those glamorous women out there must meditate on nail beautification.

This polish is inexpensive but it's not a bit phoney in quality. It's got good wearing virtues; with it you won't have the maddening experience of having your nails look speckled with polish the day after you put it on. In some miraculous fashion it doesn't chip or peel.

And there are six shades from which to choose. You can have finger tips that are demurely shell pink or flaming as anything, depending on your taste.

Look at the manicure kits, too, We're sold on these. Owning one instills such a good habit of regular daily attention to the finger tips. If you keep it just beside the washstand you'll find yourself automatically doing all the little things you should do—like oiling the cuticle and rubbing the white pencil beneath the tips—every time you scrub your hands.

The kits put out with this Hollywood polish are well equipped, nicely priced and as compact as any you've ever seen.

The polishes and the cases are in one shop in Chicago.

Business Women Told Crash of '29 Was Great Blessing

Miss Emily Kneubuhl of New York, executive secretary of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, asserted her belief last night that "the crash of 1929 was the greatest blessing that has ever happened to the American nation."

She was the main speaker at the Blackstone hotel dinner celebrating the twelfth anniversary of the Chicago Alliance of Business and Professional Women, attended by 250 business women of the city and state.

Practical education in politics, Miss Kneubuhl cited as the major need of women today if they are to make progress with the three principal problems facing the nation, which she characterized as liquor, labor and the league of nations. The present era, she added, is the most potentially glorious for women in all history, and "political life is the one in which woman is going to have the best time, to fulfill her destiny and to express herself."

Miss Neva Lesley, president of the Alliance, presided. Mrs. Ora H. Snyder was chairman of the event, at which short talks were made by Miss Helen McMackin of Salem, state president; Mrs. Mabel C. Reinecke, and four past presidents—Miss Jessamine Hoagland, Miss Elizabeth Eckert, Miss Jane Magan and Miss Genevieve Forsberg.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Boomer entertained at dinner for Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the attorney general.

Silver Things Lead Costume Jewelry Mode

Make New Creations Out of Dated Dresses.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

What would you do without costume jewelry? With any of the new arrivals a good clothes hound can completely transform a dress, suit, or coat costume in less time than it takes to tell about it. Dated dresses magically become definite new creations, while a simple one piece "background frock" of black, blue, brown wool or silk can be made to look different every time you wear them if you know how to manage your costume jewelry.

Some of the most exciting pieces ever displayed are the silver collections, for silver jewelry takes the spotlight lately. Gorgeous pieces with all the glamor of old silver, filagree balls, filagree clips to match and long graceful chains of dusky gray silver. Stunning silver accents for gray, blue, and black clothes.

Remember the clattering old fashioned link bracelets and chains and how effectively they rattled and clanked as you moved? They have been revived in silver. Silver beads also make effective clips and earrings and long necklaces.

The silver stuff that will make you breathless are the big barbaric blobs, for the smartest costume ornaments are the huge outsize clips, sometimes as long as three inches and almost as wide, the big round necklaces that are almost collars. Big earrings to match complete the sets.

Long dangling filagree earrings in silver are especially attractive with the wide skirted picture dresses. And exquisitely lovely shimmering silver as delicate as cobweb lace in a frosty white are the most beautiful pieces you can wear with black velvet.

Shiny silver that will gleam smartly against any color is plentiful—necklaces, earrings, bracelets, and clips—and so is the white silver. A new silver metal composition called prickled silver is among the best looking loot in town. The wide long clips are fastened swankily at each shoulder seam and they match the wide barbaric thick bracelet or bracelets, depending upon how many you wear at your wrist.

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Major Ralph Stornack, of apparent position and wealth, is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Briarley, who is in jail for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Colin was alone at the table with the Canadian when the lights went out and he was struck in the throat by a table knife. Chief witness against Colin was Major Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Rhoda met Stornack when he called to express his regret for the testimony he had to give at her lover's trial. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. He plots Colin's escape by taking Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Nobody looks closely at prisoners, he explains, and warders are frequently changed. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. They spend a brief honeymoon in Wales. Then Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited a fortune of a Canadian relative. The solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. Stornack calls on Caermaen and they quarrel. Jack suspects Stornack of the crime for which Colin was convicted. Rhoda, who is expecting a baby, leaves home and stays with friends of Caermaen's, the Rawlings, in London. Her mother follows with a court order placing Rhoda under her charge. Caermaen and his solicitor, Jarroman, plan to investigate Stornack. Mrs. Cornboise takes Rhoda to France, where they take rooms with a private family, the Gougets. A son is born to Rhoda. Her mother sends the baby away. Rhoda learns from Estelle Gouget where her baby is, and sees him and arranges to have him properly cared for. Caermaen arranges to get Colin out of prison again for a few days in order to have him identify a confederate of Stornack's. Rhoda and her mother return to London.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

THEY PASS UNKNOWN.

In spite of herself Rhoda laughed.

"Major Stornack has forgotten all about me—at least, I hope he has."

"He certainly has not. He has written to you many times—and I have answered the letters, because you were supposed to be too ill to answer yourself."

Mr. Cornboise met them at the station. Rhoda was glad to see her father, although in her heart she could never feel the same toward him again.

He kissed her affectionately, then with his queer frankness looked straight into her eyes and said:

"My dear, dear girl, I do hope you don't bear any resentment. It seemed the best thing to do at the time. Heaven knows whether it was! I—I found the situation beyond me. A choice of evils, you know! Well, I'm afraid I'm not a very good family man, but I would have liked to see your child."

In that instant she forgave him.

"Have you done everything I suggested, William?" Mrs. Cornboise asked.

"Yes, my dear. He is coming to dinner with us at the hotel."

"Who?" demanded Rhoda, suspiciously.

"Major Stornack," said her father. "I had hoped we should have an evening alone together, but your mother seemed to consider it advisable to invite him."

If Rhoda had thought her mother would be inclined to relax her powers on their return, she was mistaken. She was again to share a room with her mother, exactly similar to the one they had occupied before.

He took a table where neither of them could see him.

"If you want a bath before dinner, there's just time. But you'll have to dress quickly afterwards."

Inwardly Rhoda had decided to rebel. Her father had said he wanted a quiet evening and he should have it. And she herself was quite unequal to the task of meeting Major Stornack.

She stayed a very long time in her bath, and when she had finished she put on a nightdress and calmly got into bed.

"I don't feel well enough for a dinner party tonight. I'll just have something on a tray sent up here," she announced.

In vain her mother stormed. Rhoda put her head under the bedclothes and did not listen.

In the end it was Mrs. Cornboise who sat down alone to dinner with Stornack, for her father insisted on dining with Rhoda in the big bed-sitting room. And in the end they had their cozy evening together, talking of old times and establishing something of their former intimacy.

By midnight she was asleep. And it was at midnight that Colin Briarley changed places with Warder Jack Caermaen, to slip out of the prison and wait for the early morning train to London.

By the early afternoon he would, he hoped, be in Paris. And then somehow or other he would contrive to meet Rhoda in L'Amerville.

At ten-fifteen Colin Briarley strolled into Micklejohn's café in Piccadilly. Even at that early hour it was more than half full, the clientele consisting mostly of business men discussing their affairs over "morning coffee."

Almost immediately he spotted his old friend, Fred Jarroman, the solicitor. He took no notice of him, walked past him, and in so doing looked into the face of his companion.

A single glance was enough.

He took a table where neither of them could see him. While the waitress was bringing his coffee he wrote, as he had been instructed, in the third person:

"The man sitting with Mr. Jarroman was present at the club. He was actually sitting at the same table a minute or so before the murder, and seemed to be listening to Stornack's conversation. He seemed to know Stornack. Earlier in the evening he had danced with several women."

That was all. He gulped his coffee and left the café. Then he sent his note by special messenger to Jarroman's office.

The work for which Jack Caermaen had again taken this terrible risk had been accomplished within five minutes, and Colin promptly put it out of his mind. Nothing could be of more importance to him than his liberty—but all his thoughts were now concentrated on getting to France and seeing Rhoda. He had first to go to Islington—to ask for a Mrs. Rawlings, who knew everything, and with whom Jack had left the necessary passport.

He arrived in Hollingbury Gardens a few minutes before eleven and kept the taxi waiting.

"Mrs. Rawlings?"

"Yes, sir. Please come in. There's a package here for you from the captain. I'll just get it—I expect you'll want to be off."

"Quite right, Mrs. Rawlings! You know all about me, I think!"

"Yes, sir. I do hope you'll find your lady making the best of things. She was very brave when she was here. She wrote me such a nice letter the other day, and she says the boy is just like you, sir."

"You were very good to her, Mrs. Rawlings. She has told me a lot about you in her letters. She wanted to come back to you more than anything."

"Until she could go back to you," said Mrs. Rawlings, for she thought this rather tragic young man wanted cheering up. "I felt in my bones, as soon as I saw your lady, that things will come right for her before very long. And that means right for you. Here's the package, sir."

"You know what it is?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," she laughed. "A passport in the name of 'Smith'—including 'Mrs. Smith,' in case it's wanted. The captain did say that you'd have an aeroplane all to yourself to go to Paris with."

"Yes—and I'll get right along and make a start. One day I'll try and tell you how grateful I am to you for helping us. Good-by!"

"Croydon Aerodrome, as fast as you like," he told the taxi driver.

Now, taxies were rare visitors to Hollingbury Gardens. And this morning Hollingbury Gardens had two of them—almost together. They met at the end of the terrace and horned at each other. One of them contained Colin Briarley. And the other contained Rhoda and Mrs. Cornboise. But none of the parties concerned knew it as they passed each other.

. . . . . .

Rhoda had discovered that rebellion in small things could be successfully carried out.

"Before we do any shopping I'm going to see Mrs. Rawlings," she announced. "She was a very good friend to me and I like her and I want to see her."

All this was quite true. But in addition there was the important and practical reason that Mrs. Rawlings would promptly convey news of her arrival in Britain to Jack Caermaen.

She let the storm of protest flow over her head and calmly delivered her ultimatum.

"Very well!" agreed Mrs. Cornboise, making the best of a bad job. "But we can ill afford the time. I shall come with you, of course."

Rhoda was confident that Mrs. Rawlings would be pleased to see her. She was therefore quite unprepared for what actually happened.

As the door opened Mrs. Rawlings stared at her—then looked as if she were going to faint.

"O, my dear!" she gasped.

The Fourth Chicago Tribune School of Cookery goes to the Aragon ballroom Nov. 20 for the final week. Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, famous home economics expert, in co-operation with Miss Mary Meade, Tribune cooking editor, will conduct the sessions, which will continue Nov. 20, 21, 22, and 23.
All schools will begin at 12:30 o'clock.

BY MARY MEADE.

Polly has been putting the kettle on for hundreds of years. The very earliest Pollys hefted up the black iron pot to the hook over the open fire. Subsequent Pollys have graduated to copper, tin, nickelplate, and aluminum. But it has taken modern inventors to discover for the present day Pauline a kettle which complements all her latest kitchen gadgets while it sounds the death knell of the old type water boiler.

This newest of tea kettles, that we've met on State street, is the latest offering of chromium makers. Rich silvery finish plates the kettle, making it stain and tarnishproof. The cover knob and handle grip are of coal black mat finish. A special type spout makes pouring easy. A base of solid copper—second only to sterling silver as a heat conductor—has an intermediate coat of nickel, then is finished with chromium. Here is a combination which prevents rust and corrosion. It also discourages the possibility of burning through, even should the kettle boil dry.

Further on in our loop rambles we became actively aware of honey containers. Have you ever noticed what an astounding variety of squat fat jugs and tall stately affairs can be bought for the drizzling of honey? The latest we've smiled over—and purchased—is an upright, oblong glass which is patterned, aptly enough, from the source of all honey—the honey comb. The neat geometric cells are stamped on the sides of the glass. The mouth is closed by a light metal screw top and pours without any of that digging usual with honey bottles. Something at last which we can present at the table without camouflage—or a spotted cloth.

And, while on the matter of honey, how certain are you that the honey you buy is strained and bottled under sanitary and safe conditions? It's true that the high content of sugars in honey makes it a discouraging medium for the growth of harmful bacteria. However, honey is not a germ killer in itself, and if hands and equipment which came in contact with it carried the germs of disease, it's a simple matter for those evil-doers to be passed on to the purchaser, endangering family health and life.

For this important reason wise shoppers are leaning more and more toward the use of packaged, grocery store honies, which are pasteurized, then bottled under careful sanitary conditions. We refuse to risk health by buying dairy products at roadside stands which carry unpasteurized milk or bulk butter produced under doubtful conditions. We should just as carefully avoid wayside honey offerings which have no guarantee of cleanliness and safety.

Little Fun in Life Shouldn't Be Frowned On

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Belle thinks she has a complaint. Personally, I think the husband-to-be is getting the worst of the bargain. If there were more like him, this world wouldn't be such a bad place to inhabit.

The young lady's letter is quite revealing, to my way of thinking, and not at all flattering to her.. "I have been going with the same fellow for the last fifteen months. I am, as I would classify it, sanely in love. In other words, I love him, but I see his faults.

"His intentions are serious. He keeps planning for our marriage just as soon as business picks up a bit. Now the question arises as to whether I ought to take the plunge of matrimony with such a man.

"I am a reserved and quiet sort of person. He's just the opposite, with no apparent desire to settle down and be serious—I mean to stop acting like a child. When we're with friends I never know what he's going to do next that's impulsive and juvenile. He has never gotten over the stage of sliding down banisters and other such silly things.

"The things he thinks are funny only make me grouchy and annoyed. I wonder if I could ever be happy with a man of his ways. He tries to be courteous and polite, then all of a sudden he forgets and does something that seems rude to me. I'm in a daze wondering if we could ever be happy."

Personally, I think Belle is the one who needs reforming. A little playing and fun in life never did anyone any harm, and it often has helped things to go much better.

Life isn't supposed to be a dull old place draped with funeral robes. Belle ought to snap out of it and join in the fun. If she continues to harbor her present crêpe hanging frame of mind, she's never going to find anyone satisfactory.

Naturally, a home and babies will serve to quiet the man a bit, but I fail to see the wisdom of converting him into a grouchy old man. He'll take his responsibilities when they come, but there's no use in facing those responsibilities with a dour, sullen expression. That only makes them bigger responsibilities.

S. Davis' friends are going to assist this afternoon at the tea dance they are giving from 4 to 7 o'clock at the Casino for their daughter and son and his wife, Miss Isabel Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Davis. All of the debutantes will be there as well as an interesting group of post-debs and "young marrieds." Charles S. Davis Jr. has made a trip from Princeton, where he is a junior, to be at the party.

Sunbeam League Holds Ball Tonight.

More than 700 reservations have been made for the annual charity ball of the Sunbeam league this evening in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. All of those who will make merry will be bringing a little joy into the lives of sick and crippled children throughout the city, for the league supports six kindergartens for such unfortunate boys and girls.

There will be dozens of large and gay parties. Hosts and hostesses to some of them will be the Lennox Haldemans, who are having their guests first for cocktails at their home at 7000 South Shore drive, the John Chalmerses, Mr. and Mrs. Robert O'Farrell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Voltz, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin de Tamble Jr.

Robert Coubé will lecture on "Mme. du Deffand" at noon today in the library of the Alliance Française. M. Coubé is leaving next month for France.

Henry Cragg to Wed Birmingham Girl.

Mrs. George Cragg soon will have another daughter-in-law, for her second son, Henry Cragg, is to be married on Dec. 1 to Miss Evelyn Reynolds Fulford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Fulford of Birmingham, Ala. Young Mr. Cragg and his bride will make their home with his mother when they first come to Chicago. It was love at first sight for Henry and his red-haired bride-to-be when they met two years ago at Lakeside, Mich.

Thomas Cragg, Mrs. Cragg's eldest son, was married last September to Miss Harriet Kester of Albia, Ia. They are living in Lafayette, Ind. The youngest son, Richard, who has just entered Purdue, is staying with them this winter.

Interesting English visitors due in town next week are Sir George Schuster and Lady Schuster. Cards were in yesterday's mail for a reception the English Speaking union is giving for them at 3:30 next Wednesday afternoon at the Tavern. Sir George served with distinction during the war in France and in 1919 was sent to Russia with the Murmansk force where he received three decorations. The last six years he has been finance minister to the executive council of the viceroy of India.

The woman's board of Grant hospital has decided to give a card party this year instead of a Christmas bazar such as it usually holds for its annual benefit. The party is to be on Dec. 10 in the nurses' home on Webster avenue, a beautiful building that will be a pleasant setting for the affair. The delicious cookies and sandwiches that the women of the board always make for the bazars will be included in the tea menu which will be a popular feature of the party without a doubt. Mrs. Frank S. Porter is in charge of the sale of tickets and Mrs. Clarence Seipp is tea chairman.

Samuel Dauchy is returning to Chicago tomorrow from the west coast to spend a fortnight here and in New York. He and Mrs. Dauchy are now settled for the winter in their San Diego, Cal., home. Miss Barbara Dauchy is studying at the San Diego Academy of Fine Arts, and Philip Dauchy is at the University of Chicago.

Eye Sparkle Is Maintained with Refreshing Baths

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

An old fashioned but extremely good treatment to keep eyes sparkling is the repeated use of a pad dipped in fairly hot water each night to release muscle strain completely and, in the morning, the use of cold water. Either use the cold pads or splash the cold water directly on them. Cold water is just as effective a tonic on the eyes and lids as on the cheek or throat. If the eyes are worrying you, an eye specialist is your one best bet. But if it is a slight, temporary strain caused by being generally overtired, use a teaspoonful of table salt to a pint of water and, with an eye cup, bathe the eyes for a few minutes with the lotion.

Our plea, however, is to make all women just a little more conscious of the fact that eye beauty may be preserved on into the late years just as are figure and hand and complexion and hair beauty. You can be counted on to do the right and proper thing once you realize how dull, tired, worn, and old looking eyes defeat a youth preserving program.

Those toneless, crinkled lids upon which eye makeup serves only to emphasize the crinkledness, have to be injected with new life as the years go on. They have to be palmed and greased with skin preserving lotions so that they do not dry up and wither for want of lubrication. But, chiefly, it is the eye proper that should be studied for all the youth and lure that may be preserved for years.

You don't need me to tell you about the need of internal health to keep those sparklers sparkling. One day of a sick headache, and one day of blasted nerves, one day of any physical disorder, and your mirror tells you all you need to know about the relationship between health and eye youth.

Child Reflects His Mother's State of Mind

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

That our children reflect our state—mental or emotional—no one who has children will attempt to deny. We can some of us hide our sorrows, smile so we shall not weep, and carry our big trials so that they never harm the children. But those less deep-seated states of ours—nervous tension, slighter worries, irritability, anger, resentment, or annoyance—usually register in the children's behavior.

I suppose you've heard about the mother who, feeling edgy all day and quite impossible, thought she had made a wonderful showing before the children until, toward evening, she overheard her older little girl say to the younger, "Let's play something quiet—mommy's got the jitters today."

One mother, who is quite willing to look facts in the face, writes:

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: I am one of your most loyal readers and maybe one day will be one of your stanchest supporters. I would be that now but for one thing—I lack patience.

"I have found, with the help of your written analysis to me, that the lack of patience does more to make a child unruly than any other condition. When I feel at peace with everything, my daughter is the most lovable child, but no sooner do I lose my temper than the storm clouds usher in a tantrum."

Well, those are unquestionably two of the jobs a woman has to set herself when she becomes a mother. As a wife—or a human being in general—she can get by if she's naturally quick tempered with a generous repentance—or if she's impatient. But when she finds herself the director of the destiny and hourly guide and companion of a little baby, and then of a sensitive, eager, loving, inexperienced, dependent child, and still later of a fast developing spirited boy or girl whose respect she must hold and who must be directed wisely and yet with a light rein, she's simply got to learn to put that temper in its place and to develop that fine forbearance we call by the name of patience.

For those who would like to get a new conception of patience to add to the old one, we have a fully written booklet called "Make Patience Your Handmaiden," which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Backhand Pen Proves Mind Rules Writer

And Upright Letters Indicate Calm Individual.

BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

[Copyright: 1934: By Muriel Stafford.]

Many persons, and often clever ones, are so completely controled by their minds that they find it impossible to show the slightest warmth of feeling. Others are so sensitive that they have drawn into a cool shell of reserve and will not allow themselves to be affectionately responsive. A few writers are obviously cold by nature, even though apparently friendly.

MISS STAFFORD.

Whenever you find a handwriting that is straight up and down as regards slant, or one that is definitly slanting to the left, you can be sure there is a reason. It isn't a natural way to write and the writer is sure to be emotionally restrained.

A mother one time showed me the handwriting of a young daughter in which the words slanted forward about three-quarters of the way down the page and then suddenly began to slant "backhand," or to the left. After questioning the mother I discovered that the girl was very much in love. The young man wrote a decided backhand. In this case the girl herself was so impressionable that she was trying to imitate the qualities of the person whom she admired and loved. This was reflected in her handwriting.

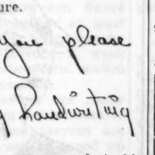
You can always be sure that the backhand writer will be ruled by his head and not by his heart. I am speaking of those who write that way all the time and not merely as a convenience. Never try to borrow money from such a person in an emergency. He or she hasn't a naturally sympathetic nature no matter how likable they may be. He helps those who he knows will benefit him.

There is this difference between a vertical and backhand writer. One who writes a vertical or upright hand may simply be unsentimental and calm though kindly. Those who write with a definite and invariable backhand are controled by their minds. Often they have ardent natures which they will not allow expression. They never fall desperately in love while they write that way.

Often you will find a hand in which the letters slant both ways, showing a dual nature. The writer isn't quite sure what he wants. He is changeable and inconsistent.

Some writers of a variable hand are struggling to overcome a naturally sympathetic nature for practical reasons. Some of them are not emotionally grown up. They are trying to "find" themselves and they don't know just what they want. Some writers of a dual slant are affectionate and generous toward certain people but lack charity toward the world as a whole. Whatever else the writers of a dual slant may be, they are always inconsistent.

The sample of handwriting below slants definitly to the left. This was also taken from my mail, so I shall not use the signature.



Will you please analyze my handwriting

The writer has many admirable qualities. She has artistic tastes, excellent powers of observation, and fine critical ability. But she is inclined to be deliberately unemotional and sometimes a trifle self-centered. In spite of this she has a charming personality and is highly cultured.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

THE CARDS MUST BE PLAYED AFTER THEY HAVE BEEN BID.

In the midst of the bidding controversies which nowadays make news, the play of the cards is all to generally overlooked. Admittedly the bridge columns and magazines give numerous examples of grand coups and squeezes, but too little is written and said about the playing technique which is of less sensational character. My reference is to maneuvers which are applicable to ordinary playing situations, not to freakish, exceptional card groupings.

The Elimination Play.

This is really a very simple play; you do not need to visualize or locate the opponents' exact card holdings in order to employ it. Sight of your own hand and dummy will tell you instantly when a strip-and-elimination play can be put into effect. Nevertheless, many players who love the game and its subtleties seem to overlook so simple a play as this, and will take a finesse in order to try for an essential or extra trick when that same trick, and in the same suit, could be made without any guess or doubt by stripping the two hands of their other holdings, and then throwing one of the opponents in the lead under conditions where he cannot avoid leading into a tenace or else giving you a ruff in one hand and a discard in the other.

	♠Q-J-9-8 ♥A-3-2 ♦K-2 ♣A-J-4-3
♠6-5 ♥7-5-4 ♦Q-J-10-9-8-7 ♣6-5	N. W. E. S.	♠4-3 ♥Q-J-9-8 ♦5-4-3 ♣Q-9-8-7
	♠A-K-10-7-2 ♥K-10-6 ♦A-6 ♣K-10-2

The contract is six spades, a good slam which would be reached quite easily under almost any practical bidding system.

West leads the queen of diamonds and South can immediately give his partner a genial smile. The contract is in no doubt, unless possibly there are four trumps in one hand. In that event, the club finesse can still be tried either way, most naturally against the hand that is short in trumps. However, nothing outlandish occurred in the play of the hand. Declarer could see that if he could win the club finesse and drop the clubs in three rounds, he would make seven odd, discarding his losing heart on the fourth club. However, he had bid only for six, not seven, so it was necessary to play safely for six instead of dangerously for seven. You might say that six appears in the bag, as if the club finesse loses he can still discard on the fourth club. However, should it not be possible to set up a thirteenth club, two tricks will be lost—the heart loser cannot be discarded, and the club finesse will already have been lost.

The Safe, Certain Play Is Available.

Declarer does not have to take any risk or any finesse for small slam. He need only draw trumps in two rounds—it would not matter if he had to play three rounds as long as there is at least one trump left in each hand. He now plays a second round of diamonds, followed by the two high hearts. A third heart follows, and one of the opponents must take it and lead something. Neither has a spade left to lead; if they lead a heart or a diamond, declarer, having stripped both hands of these suits, will ruff with one of dummy's trumps and discard the losing club from his own hand. If a club is led, it will be into a tenace from either side, and now no club trick will be lost, regardless of the location of the queen. Next time you have a similar position, do not fail to make an end play of this obvious character.

Log Cabin.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The "Log Cabin" patch, one of the oldest known quilt patterns, was first designed of silk and wool, but never quilted. In its infancy it was known as a pressed quilt, because the pieces gave the appearance of being pressed flat. Today it is made of lovely pastels and figured prints and is variously called "Straight Furrow," "Sunshine and Shadow," and "Barn Raising."

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

N. U. TO MEET NOTRE DAME BEFORE 45,000

MAROONS FACE GOPHERS WITH HOPE AND FEAR

40,000 Will Attend Today's Game.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 16.—The University of Chicago football team, sometimes known as Jay Berwanger, and vice versa, today arrived in this, the Little America of the Big Ten, for their momentous struggle at Memorial stadium tomorrow afternoon with the Minnesota Gophers, who are regarded far and wide as the No. 1 eleven of the republic.

CLARK SHAUGHNESSY.

To any coach other than Clark Shaughnessy of the Maroons this visit could be attended by no other feeling than dire foreboding at the prospect of attempting to interrupt the inevitable onrush of a juggernaut, weaving a saga which may be hard for future Gophers elevens to duplicate. To Shaughnessy it is more than that. It's homecoming, for he's an old Minnesota boy himself, and he could ask for no more than a victory over his alma mater and its coach, Bernie Bierman, his teammate here more than 20 years ago and his one-time assistant at Tulane.

Berwanger Ready to Play.

It is that wish of Shaughnessy's upon which the Maroons' slender hope of victory tomorrow is founded, that and the fact that Berwanger, whose name is synonymous with every achievement of the Midway team this year, will play. Even the most prodigal Minnesota partisans, who are willing to squander as high as 30 points on their ball club, are experiencing chills over the presence of Berwanger.

The Gophers have run up against a few football players already this season. There were Dick Crayne and Oze Simmons of Iowa, and Mike Nicksick and Izzy Weinstock of Pittsburgh, to name a few, and now it's Berwanger. The Davenport Dutchman, who plays his football to the hilt, has caused more concern among the Gophers than any other player or team they have faced thus far.

Bartlett to Play.

One fact is certain, however, and that is that Berwanger will do no fretting on a sideline pew throughout the whole game, as he did in the Ohio State affair last Saturday, when the boy's worth was more than proven by a 33 to 0 Buckeye victory. The leg bruise which he sustained in the opening minutes of the Purdue game is not entirely healed yet, but wild horses probably could not hold Jay on the bench tomorrow, and Shaughnessy gave every indication today that Jay would start and play the greater part of the game.

That also went for Ned Bartlett, the speedy Californian, who has likewise been troubled with a leg injury, and for Clarence Wright, the left tackle who has been a recent casualty. The Flinn-Berwanger-Bartlett-Nyquist quartet is admittedly the best back field the Maroons can assemble, and they likely will play the major portion of tomorrow's game, if not all of it. Johnny Baker, end, who suffered a broken nose in the Ohio game, probably will occupy the bench all afternoon.

Seidl Is Out.

The Gophers are none too well themselves. For one item, they will be without Glen Seidl, the bright boy of the back field, whose performance at quarter back has been a big factor in the Gopher offense. He came down with a wrenched back in the Indiana game. In his place will be Babe Levoir, supported by Capt. Pug Lund, Julie Alfonse, and Sheldon Beise. This, of course, is not to say that the terrible Stan Kostka is going to be given an afternoon off.

Officials anticipate a house of 40,000, a figure which early in the day appeared on the way to 50,000 because of the excellent weather prevailing. Authors who have survived other Minnesota games with nothing more serious than chilblains came armed with earlaps and mittens, but began perspiring at noon today when thermometers registered 63. This happy condition extended well into the afternoon, when ominous clouds hove to, corroborated by the weather man's prediction of rain, if not a light snow.

YES INDEED - I'M VERY SORRY I DIDN'T GET TO SEE THE NEWLYWEDS - BUT PERHAPS I CAN TALK TO YOU ALONE - MRS. DE STROSS - IT'S ABOUT THAT MATTER OF THE FEE IN YOUR RECENT LAWSUIT - I KNOW YOU'RE AS ANXIOUS AS I AM TO GET THAT LITTLE MATTER DISPOSED OF - I'LL SEND YOU A CHECK FOR $2,000. - THAT OUGHT TO BE FAIR ENOUGH -
11-17
WHY - MRS. DE STROSS - I CAN'T BELIEVE THAT YOU WOULD EVEN SUGGEST SUCH AN AMOUNT - NOT MERELY IS IT UTTERLY UNFAIR TO ME - BUT IT IS AN INSULT TO MY PROFESSION - JUST CONSIDER THE TIME AND ENERGY I SPENT PREPARING AND PLEADING YOUR CASE - AND THIS WAS THE BIGGEST CASE OF ITS KIND IN HISTORY -
WELL - WHAT DO YOU CONSIDER A FAIR FEE ?
IN CASES OF THIS SORT, THE FEE FOR COUNSEL GENERALLY RUNS TO ABOUT TWENTY PER CENT - IN THIS INSTANCE - THAT WOULD BE ABOUT $2,000,000. - BUT I'M GOING TO BE VERY GENEROUS TO YOU AND CUT THAT DOWN TO A BARE $200,000. - THAT'S WHAT I WANT AND WHAT I'LL GET -

Leader—Debaets.

Al Letourner and Tino Reboli last night stole the show from their associates in the six day bike race at Chicago Stadium when they made a stirring spectacle of their battle for the indoor motor paced title over a five mile course. Letourner, motor paced champion, stepped out half way in the race and gained a lap, but at the finish the Frenchman was ahead by only a couple of bike lengths.

Chicago bike fans had heard that motor paced events are the derby numbers at big outdoor velodromes, but the few motor paced affairs staged here prior to last night had done little to make for poularity of the technique. Al and Tino, paced by Jean Antenucci and Charley Stein, put it on right last night and had a crowd of 12,000 alternately gasping and whooping it up as the two stars, their front wheels jammed against a roller on the rear of the motorcycles, whirled around the track 50 times, on occasion exceeding a speed of a mile a minute.

Fastest Race Thus Far.

The time for the five miles was 8 minutes 48 seconds, a minute and two seconds faster than the Letourner-Deulberg motor paced race Wednesday night and 19 seconds faster than the Reboli-Debaets match Thursday night.

As a warmup for the motor paced race, Letourner, with his partner, Gerard Debaets, earlier in the evening had supplanted Reboll and his partner, Avanti Martinetti, as leaders of the race. After the motor paced event Reboll-Martinetti and Schaller-Thomas rode into a mileage tie with Al and Gerard, though the latter retained the technical lead on the point basis.

The field was cut down considerably during the day. First Louis Cohen of Brooklyn was set down. Then Steve Wagner retired and at 11:45 Bobby Walthour withdrew after suffering back injuries in a bad spill.

Cohen Forgets He's Racing.

Frank L. Kramer, referee of the race, which ends at midnight tonight, left no doubt among the international field of cyclists as to who was boss of the affair when he withdrew Cohen from the race during the afternoon and suspended him until Jan. 1. Cohen was barred for ignoring orders of Pat Mulvey, the track builder, who also serves as clerk of the course.

Cohen early yesterday spotted a young lady from his home town sitting at the track side. He casually put his bicycle in the rack and strode up the track, much as a young man would walk the boardwalk at Atlantic City, and sat down with the girl. Mulvey ordered Cohen to return to the track and get on his bike.

The youngster merely smiled and the more Mulvey ordered him to return to the race the more Cohen smiled and refused. Mulvey finally issued an ultimatum that Cohen return to the track or be ruled out. Still Cohen refused and when Kramer returned to the Stadium and Mulvey made his report the referee promptly suspended the rider.

Sprints to Count More.

Kramer, besides being the referee of the race, is chairman of the board of control of the National Cycling association, the body that governs bike races in America.

The race will end tonight at midnight with the usual feature of making every mile a sprint during the last hour, and first place being worth 72 points in each sprint.

Results of 1 o'clock sprints:
1—Ritter, Wissel, Dempsey, Martinetti.
2—Rodman, Lipsett, Garrison, Rys.
3—Ritter, Deulberg, Wissel, Letourner.
4—McNamara, Debaets, Lipsett, Sheehan.
5—Wissel, Letourner, Dempsey, Yates.
6—Thomas, Reboli, Garrison, Rodman.
7—Wissel, Deulberg, Letourner, Yates.
8—Thomas, Reboli, Sheehan, Garrison.
9—Martinetti, Wissel, Lands, Dempsey.
10—Debaets, Garrison, Yates, Reboli.

Pat O'Dea's Back! Badgers Think They Can Beat Illini

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 16.—Shadowy figures whirling in the Indian war dance on the fringe of a gigantic bonfire, flit like so many ghosts over a circus eight sheet poster on the lower campus of the University of Wisconsin tonight.

The poster depicts a football hero of the gay nineties. He wears the cardinal jacket and the cardinal hosiery of Wisconsin. He poises with a football in his hands. His right foot is back and he is ready to send forth a kick that will make football history.

The picture on the poster also is ghostlike. It is as ghostlike as the fantom shadows of the dancing boys and girls that pass over it in almost perfect rhythm.

The Picture Is O'Dea.

The fellow in the football regimentals of the nineties, peering out of the poster ready to kick the ball is Patrick John O'Dea, the Rip Van Winkle of collegiate football.

And from out of the poster early tomorrow afternoon will step the living Patrick John O'Dea, the kangaroo kicker from Australia, who, according to legend, once kicked a football from goal line to goal line on Yale's gridiron.

He will make his way to Camp Randall field shortly before 2 o'clock and when he arrives there 30,000 spectators, most of them Wisconsin alumni and their families, will acclaim him. They have gathered here not only to cheer for O'Dea, but for the Badger football team of 1934 when it clashes with the unbeaten University of Illinois eleven in the annual University of Wisconsin homecoming game.

Victory? Oh, Victory!

To see O'Dea will be worth the trip back to Camp Randall, the old grads agreed tonight as they quaffed their brew and sang "On Wisconsin!"

To see the underdog Badgers rise up in old time Pat O'Dea fury, whip the Illini and knock them out of the three way tie for the lead in the Western conference championship race, will just be another legend to hand on to Pat O'Dea.

If this should happen the old grads will go home and be assured that the story, about how the phantom Pat O'Dea in 1934 came from out of the land of the missing, shuffled into Camp Randall field and inspired a hapless lot of Wisconsin players to a point where they whipped the prospective champions, will be passed on down from one generation to another.

Spears is Confident.

With Pat O'Dea on hand, there isn't anything impossible, Wisconsin alumni believe. That is the reason the homecoming celebration has started so early; the reason it has become one of those old fashioned hilarious celebrations of tht Pat O'Dea days; and it perhaps is the reason why the Badger alumni are grabbing up all the 3 to 2 odds Illinois backers will offer.

The situation on the eve of the struggle is quite remarkable. Dr. Clarence Spears, the Badgers coach, is of the opinion that his boys will play their greatest game of the year against Illini. "If they do, Wisconsin will win," he said tonight.

Zuppke Just Whistles.

From across the Wisconsin line in Freeport, where the Illinois squad is quartered tonight, came the report that Coach Bob Zuppke was elbowing his way around in a most carefree mood.

"He either hummed or whistled 'The Flying Trapeze' from the time he arrived here until he retired for the night," said the latest bulletin relayed to the Badgers' camp.

Dr. Spears took this to mean that the famous Illinois "Flying Trapeze" pass attack will be showered on the Badgers soon after the game begins. He did not appear to be particularly frightened over this prospect.

70,000 to See if Ohio Can Rout Michigan Eleven Today

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 16.—Seventy thousand, perhaps more, a record attendance for Western conference football this fall, will see Michigan and Ohio State play here tomorrow afternoon in the huge double banked horse shoe stadium on the east bank of the Olentangy river. These thousands, with the exception of the few adherents of the Wolverines who will arrive tomorrow morning from Ann Arbor and Detroit on special trains, are hoping that the Buckeyes will win decisively and thus push Michigan deeper into last place.

Strangely enough, Michigan, defeated five times this season, is proving a greater attraction than Michigan, undefeated, has been in the last two appearances in Columbus. Prospects of a Buckeye victory over an ancient rival and a desire to see an excellent Ohio elevn are attracting the record crowd.

All Permanent Seats Sold.

All permanent seats, a total of 65,000, have been sold for several days. Twenty-five hundred seats in the temporary bleachers at the south end of the horseshoe also have been sold. This morning 900 general admission tickets were placed on sale, and officials of the athletic department believe the sale of general admission tickets, which can be increased to several thousand, will bring the total attendance to or beyond the 70,000 mark.

Final tabulation depends on the weather, which has been warm. No rain is forecast before tomorrow night. At any rate, both universities will divide a neat sum from tickets already sold, the prices ranging from $1.20 for standing room, $2.40 and $3 for reserved seats, and $3.50 for box seats. The federal government and the state each clips off 10 per cent for taxes.

Kipke Concedes Defeat.

The Michigan team arrived this morning and is quartered at a downtown hotel, a deviation from the routine which sends varsity elevens to the quiet of suburb or countryside. Harry Kipke, Michigan coach, in addition to denying local reports that he intended transferring his activity to an eastern university after this year, admitted that the signs pointed to an Ohio State victory.

Kipke has been generously conceding defeat all season, and on the record there is no reason he should be challenged at this date. But Ohio State's Francis Schmidt and players will feel more kindly toward Kipke after his admission has become fact.

Michigan worked out early this afternoon at the stadium. Cedric Sweet, full back, the star of that scoreless first half at Minnesota two weeks ago, will not start. In his place will be John Regeczi, who held the job last season before a shift sent him to half back.

Austin Recovering from Flu.

Capt. Tom Austin, a graduate of South High school, Columbus, is named in the starting lineup, but he probably will not play for any length of time. He is recovering from an attack of influenza.

For the first time this fall Ohio State meets a line which is approximately its equal in weight. This and the knowledge of what Michigan's line did at Minnesota—for 30 minutes—has worried the coaches. For this reason, Coach Schmidt indicated today that Merle Wetzel, his best plunging full back, would start tomorrow instead of John Kabealo, whose specialty is kicking.

OLIN CONQUERS ROSENBLOOM AND CAPTURES TITLE

Boos Turn to Yawns as Crowd Grows Weary.

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Bob Olin, former New York Golden Gloves champion, won the light heavyweight title tonight by dethroning Maxie Rosenbloom after fifteen of the dullest rounds in the history of Madison Square Garden. At the conclusion the crowd of 7,500 seemed considerably more weary than the fighters.

BOB OLIN.

For fifteen rounds Rosenbloom, once a past master of the hit and get away art, stumbled his way along, his speed, his stamina, everything that made him a champion gone. Olin wasn't much better. He could scarcely have been worse, and he did try.

Nothing At All Happens.

There were no knockdowns, scarcely anything at all, and the crowd, booing and whistling at first, finally lapsed into a "don't care" silence.

Olin's manager said as he started out of his corner for the 14th round, "For God's sake fight. It's so terrible it isn't even funny."

At the end of the 10th round one of the judges, scoring under the new New York point system, muttered wearily:

"They are now all even on points. Nothing—nothing."

Loses Round on Foul.

Olin lost the first round for fouling, hitting on the break, and he threw Rosenbloom to the floor in a clinch in that session. Rosenbloom weighed 173½, Olin 173.

After the opening round Rosenbloom was on the defensive until the last two heats.

Then he opened up with a flash of his old time form and had a slight edge at the finish. He unleashed a brief slugging attack that had the New Yorker holding and for a few brief moments the crowd actually stopped booing.

Between the first and thirteenth Olin was responsible for what little fighting was done. In the main it was a dreary, colorless exhibition with plenty of dancing, lots of holding, and still more running.

Olin Is Game.

Olin proved himself a game youngster who apparently was willing to take punishment had any been offered. He was a prime favorite with the crowd, which constantly booed the champion for his failure to drive in and mix.

The two judges, Harold Barnes and Charley Lynch, agreed on the verdict and it was unnecessary for Arthur Donovan, the referee, to step in and cast the deciding ballot.

The Rosenbloom camp immediately set up a lusty squawk and surrounded James J. Johnston, Garden matchmaker, with demands for a return bout. Olin expressed himself as being entirely willing to give Slapsey Maxie his chance whenever the promoters say the word.

Crowd Laughs at Boxers.

Another unanimous decision was that the exhibition was the poorest to bear a title label New York fans have seen in many years. As early as the third round the fans were yawning, two chapters later they were alternately booing and laughing, and before the twelfth was reached many had left their seats and made for the nearest exits. It was that bad.

Yale Stalks Victory Today in Lair of Princeton Tiger

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 16.—Princeton's Tigers, unbeaten for two seasons, will oppose Yale's Bulldogs, straining at the leash to retrieve prestige lost through three previous defeats this season, at Palmer stadium tomorrow. It will be the 59th contest of the oldest college football rivalry in America. Fifty thousand tickets have been sold, insuring the largest crowd since 1928. Continued pleasant weather will sardine the stadium with its present maximum capacity of 51,600.

Already this pretty, peaceful little college town, only a short distance from New York and Philadelphia in miles but a vast distance in aloofness, is taking on the aspect brought only by a Yale or Harvard football visit. Automobiles and trains are discharging their advance guard of old grads to Princeton Inn and Nassau Inn, already reserved to capacity, and to the Princeton student clubs. Special trains and motor cars will bring the main body of fans tomorrow morning.

They Spin Some Yarns.

Where alumni gather, in the cocktail and tap rooms of the inns, all talk is of tomorrow's game, supplemented by retelling of great exploits from the past. From undergraduate demeanor, one wouldn't know anything unusual is impending. That is reserved for Monday—if Princeton wins, as anticipated.

Victory over Yale, according to tradition, means cutting of any classes which interfere, lighting of a huge bonfire fueled by freshmen, and a gala celebration.

Among dopesters, the Eli are given small chance to topple the triumphant sons of Nassau. Close students of gridiron psychology, however, figure this provides one advantage at least for Yale. Triumph over Princeton tomorrow and over Harvard a week hence would mean a successful season no mater what has preceded.

Physically both elevens are ready for the test. Each has a minimum of casualties and keystone players are either in good shape or are taped up so they may participate when needed. Emotionally, little keying is necessary such is the tradition of this contest.

Yale Comes Split Up.

Yale's cohorts, 29 in number, under command of Coach Ducky Holmes, arrived shortly after noon from New Haven, via New York. They practiced at Palmer stadium and were whisked away to Trenton to await the call to battle. The remainder of the squad will arrive tomorrow morning. Princeton indulged in its final drill, mostly signal practice, on university field late today.

Lunching at the Princeton training table and attending the following "skull practice," this correspondent naturally watched for a keying up by Coach Fritz Crisler. Nothing out of the ordinary occurred.

"When do you key them? Tomorrow?" we asked.

"No, I don't attempt to key them. I've learned my lesson on that score," replied Crisler. "When I came here in the fall of 1932, I just naturally tried to point the boys for Yale, since we were not meeting Harvard then. It wasn't necessary, but I didn't know it. So I talked to them, experiencing a feeling I didn't think possible in a fellow coaching as long as I have. The boys responded emotionally, but we went too far. On the gridiron we were over-tense and didn't perform as well as we thought we should. That game was a 7 to 7 tie and we felt we had potentially the better team.

Just Have a Good Time.

"Since my position here was new, I went home and studied past Princeton-Yale games, and the statistics of my man power. I reached the conclusion Princeton had beaten itself on numerous occasions by this over-stimulus of emotional energy, and by that I don't mean fighting spirit.

"So when we went to New Haven a year ago, I took a different tack. When the boys went on the field I told them: 'Now I want you chaps to go in there and play all the football you know, 100 per cent effort, with good sportsmanship combined. But whether you win or not, I want you to have a good time, to enjoy yourselves.' We won 27 to 2. What I said last year is just about what I'll say tomorrow."

Report Cubs to Buy Two Deans for $250,000

Eight officials of the Cubs, led by Vice President John O. Seys and Vice President-Manager Charles J. Grimm, will depart tomorrow night for Louisville, Ky., to pitch their headquarters for the minor league meeting two days before the meetings start.

Tuesday the Cubs will hold conferences with the New York Giants, the Pittsburgh Pirates, and the Boston Braves, and it was said that announcements of importance would be made by Cub officials on the eve of the convention.

It May Be So.

Some rumors have it that the biggest announcement of the meeting will say the Cubs have purchased Dizzy and Paul Dean for $250,000 cash. This rumor has been denied repeatedly since the world series, but has just blossomed forth anew, apparently with a little more authority than heretofore.

Wrigley Is Willing.

President P. K. Wrigley has indicated he gladly will pay that much for the brothers who pitched the four games which gave the St. Louis Cardinals the world title last month, but Sam Breadon, president of the Cards, who has been trying to peddle the club, insists Dizzy and Paul, who won 49 games between them in the National league in 1934, are not for sale unless the whole club and franchise is bought with them. The Cubs cannot, under the baseball law, buy the Cardinals and pick the stars therefrom for the Cubs.

The Sox also will be well represented at the Louisville meetings. A delegation of five, headed by Owner Lou Comiskey, will attend.

FANS LOOK FOR FOES TO REPEAT THRILLS OF PAST

Crowd Sets Season Record Here.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Some 45,000 fans—and if yesterday's elegant weather is duplicated maybe 47,000—will watch Notre Dame play Northwestern at Evanston this afternoon. Little will they think about the season record of Notre Dame, which has lost three out of six, and Northwestern, which has lost four out of six. Notre Dame will be playing Northwestern for the fourteenth time and the history of the series itself is sufficient to guarantee a whale of a ball game.

ELMER LAYDEN.

This turnout to see a .500 ball club play a .333 ball club will be the largest to view a football encounter in Chicago this year. The lure of the spectacle is no more to be found in the statistics of the series than it is in the season record of the competing teams, for Notre Dame has won ten times, Northwestern once, and there have been two ties. And that one Wildcat victory, a 2 to 0 triumph, was accomplished in 1901, a third of a century ago according to our lightning calculation.

Coaches Add to Interest.

We love to think that undergraduate football is all for the recreation and development of the boys—that the coaches are incidental, but one has to admit that the coaches involved in today's show bring something additional to the unusual interest in the meeting.

Elmer Layden, who intercepted a pass and scored the touchdown which won for Notre Dame, 13 to 6, in 1924, is, as you know, the boss man of the Irish. Being in his first season as coach, he still is very much in the Hey! Hey! How am I doin'? class. And there's Dick Hanley, for these last eight fluctuating years coach of Northwestern. This year Richard has been driving at the heels of the Wildcats seeking to make them perform miracles. And while Richard has been chasing Wildcats hither and thither over the heath, wolves have been pursuing Richard. If said Wildcats were to defeat the Irish today, then, mayhap, Mr. Hanley could whirl and hiss right into the faces of said wolves.

Neither Breaking Down.

Both coaches, through their mouthpieces, the publicity directors of Notre Dame and Northwestern, have been singing a few choruses of the hymns and dirges usually voiced before a hot game, but neither actually has broken down and cried.

The main wail from Evanston is that Northwestern's attack will be handicapped through injuries to the first and second string quarter backs. Potter hurt a knee two weeks ago and has been out ever since. Freddy Lind, who was a standout in the victory over Wisconsin, broke an ankle in the game with Illinois. Bob Swisher, sophomore left half, will call signals this afternoon.

From South Bend last night came word that Coach Layden had mustered 34 able bodied performers to make the trip. Notre Dame's final workout was most perfunctory.

Both Punt Conscious.

Judging from talk in both camps the two outfits are very punter conscious. The Irish can't get their minds off Steve Toth, sophomore booter par excellence, and the Wildcats appear to be equally concerned about the kicking mileage of Bill Shakespeare. These two youths are about the only ones you hear mentioned as possible game deciders.

The Wildcats, however, go on to concede that Notre Dame probably will present a better running attack than their own. Melinkovich, Elser, and Pilney, with Shakespeare, are rated excellent ball carriers at Evanston as well as elsewhere. The Purple will rely mostly on Duvall, Swisher, Toth, and Cruice for their overland advances. If either team does any real good passing many will be surprised.

STATE OFFICIAL ASKS HUNTERS TO RETRIEVE BIRDS

Urges Reduction of Waste in Hunting.

BY BOB BECKER.

A plea for clean sportsmanship and a reduction of unnecessary waste in the hunting of migratory waterfowl has just been made by the department of conservation of Illinois. Mr. Charles F. Thompson, director of the department, sent a circular letter to every hunting club in the state urging them to ask their members to make every possible effort in retrieving crippled birds.

The letter was prompted, Director Thompson said, by reports that hunters were following the unsportsmanlike practice of not making an effort to retrieve wounded birds. This plea to hunters to get the cripples is a commendable step toward the conservation of ducks.

All Hunters Should Have It.

It should be placed in the hands of every hunter in the state, not just those that belong to duck clubs, because among hunters everywhere will be found a certain number of indifferent shooters who haven't counted the toll taken from our waterfowl flocks by unretrieved cripples.

Three years ago we printed in this department a report from an Iowa scientist who had set out to determine just how many birds the average upland game and waterfowl shooter loses in the course of a day's or season's hunting. The figures were startling.

One in Two for Beginner.

They showed two things and we have repeated both several times since then. First, that the average or beginning hunter loses about half of his birds. That means he shoots 20 birds for every ten he brings home. Secondly, that the hunter with a retriever is a game saver because he rarely loses a bird. Therefore the whole scientific report led up to this important conservation fact, one that conservation organizations have since taken up: hunters should use dogs if for no other reason than to conserve game.

There isn't any bird population that can stand decimation by drouth, heavy shooting and also wholesale waste, because hunters cripple many thousands which are not recovered.

Urges Rules on Retrieving.

Mr. Thompson's letter urged the hunting clubs to cooperate in a move to recover the maximum number of wounded birds by establishing rules and regulations which will demand that each possible bird be retrieved.

"We are on the spot," the letter said, "and the interest of all should be centered on a program of conduct which can be depended upon to insure the perpetuation of migratory waterfowl hunting in our state. The attitude 'I paid for my shoot and want my money's worth' is not that of a sportsman and has no place in the creed of hunters in Illinois."

PRINCETON LIGHT FOOTBALL TEAM BEATS YALE, 13-6

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Princeton today defeated Yale, 13 to 6, in the first game played as members of the intercollegiate 150 pound football league. The bowl was opened for the innovation and a crowd of several hundred cheered the rivals.

Fran Degnan, taking Bill Hughes' pass, made Yale's only score in the first half, closing a series of 60 yard gains for the Elis. Williams' pass to Hart later in the period, ending a 65 yard advance, tied the score.

Randolph went over the line in a one foot gain on fourth down for the final touchdown in the third period. Williams kicked the additional point.

Illinois Bans Trainer Ott on Doping Charge

The Illinois racing commission yesterday suspended S. B. Ott, trainer for the French Lick stables, on a charge of administering dope to one of the horses under his care during the recent Sportsman's Park meeting.

Ott was given notice to file a written answer by Nov. 26, showing cause why he should not be ruled off the turf for life. Meanwhile, all of the horses which were under his care at the time of the alleged doping, are barred from racing on any track until they have been transferred to the supervision of another trainer.

The racing commission issued a statement yesterday to the effect that the horse Sherron, owned by the French Lick stables and trained by Ott, was given saliva tests after races at Sportsman's Park Oct. 23 and Oct. 29. In both cases traces of a morphine derivative, probably heroin, were found, according to the commission's statement.

Behind Sarazen and Ezar, at 144, were Leo Diegel, Philadelphia, and Ky Laffoon, Denver. They shared this position with A. V. Rae, the only Australian in the first seven.

Other Americans still in the running were Craig Wood, Hollywood, N. J., 146; Joe Kirkwood, New York, and Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., 149, and Denny Shute, Philadelphia, 151.

Birthday to Lasky Means Day of Rest

Art Lasky, tall, broad shouldered Minneapolis heavyweight boxing leader, celebrated his 25th birthday yesterday by taking a vacation from training for his ten round fight with King Levinsky at the Chicago Stadium next Friday.

Although his birthday was a factor in the first rest period he has been given since the return contest with the Kingfish was arranged, the main reason was apparent nearness to tiptop condition.

Lasky Scales 200 Pounds.

It was announced yesterday that Lasky weighed 200 pounds, which is close to the poundage he expects to carry against the King. Art will go into his training dance again today and tomorrow, and then will take another layoff Monday preparatory to tapering off Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

Levinsky hopped back to his chores yesterday at Northwest gymnasium by going six rounds with three sparring partners. After a rubdown he was down to 204 pounds. He will follow the same procedure today. Tomorrow he will be put through his hardest drill of the grind and then Monday will start taking it easy until fight time.

Buddy Baer Arrives Today.

Buddy Baer, Oakland, Cal., heavyweight, is scheduled to reach the loop this morning for his supporting encounter on the program. His antagonist and the preliminary fights will be announced Monday.

Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, who has promised Lasky matches with Max Schmeling and Champion Max Baer, has informed Promoters James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis he will see the impending battle.

CROWDS GATHER FOR SYRACUSE, COLGATE GAME

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Football enthusiasts from all parts of the east began arriving in Syracuse today to witness undefeated and untied Syracuse university's game with Colgate here tomorrow. Odds in favor of Colgate stood at 17 to 10 in New York today, and 10 to 8 in Syracuse and central New York.

Only slight changes in formations and plays were made by Coach Vic Hanson of the Orange this week, the preparation being about the same as that made for Brown, Penn State, and Michigan State.

Each squad will enter the game at full strength, an unusual situation, coaches pointed out. Last minute information from the athletic offices of each university revealed that 30,000 tickets have been sold, leaving only field stands for late comers.

55,000 TO WATCH PURDUE BATTLE FORDHAM TODAY

Fans Pick Boilermakers to Win.

New York, Nov. 16.—[Special.]—The Boilermakers of Purdue—thirty-eight strong and physically fit to a man—came to town today ready and eager for their football game with Fordham at the Polo Grounds tomorrow. Fifty-five thousand are expected to attend.

The team from Lafayette, Ind., reached New York this morning aboard a special 15 car train. A contingent of about 500 local Purdue alumni were on hand for the arrival.

Breakfast on Liner.

Coach Noble Kizer and the players were transported in two buses to the United States liner Washington in the North river, where they took breakfast.

Then the Hoosiers proceeded to the Westchester County club in Rye for a two-hour workout.

When newspapermen told Kizer that Purdue had been installed as a 5-2 favorite over the Rams, the young coach said that he was flattered.

"Those odds are off balance," he declared, "and so far as I can figure, the game is a toss-up. Of course, we're in top physical condition and we've won our last four games, but Fordham is going to be hard to beat."

Watch Purvis and Carter.

While the visiting players ran through a signal drill and did a share of passing and punting, Duane Purvis and Jim Carter, the Hoosiers' ace backs, drew the most attention. These two veterans showed enough speed, accuracy, and coördination in tossing spirals today to strike fear into the heart of any opposing coach.

NAVY FACES PITT

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Navy and Pittsburgh, the latter working out at Washington, polished up this afternoon for their battle here tomorrow before the largest football crowd ever to assemble on Navy's home grounds.

All of the 25,000 seats, permanent and temporary, have been sold. Today Navy authorities issued a warning against the offerings of ticket scalpers and possible counterfeiters and announced that thirty detectives, fifteen revenue agents, and ninety sailors and marines would act as ushers and carefully examine all tickets.

Forecasters Pick Pitt.

Although the majority of football forecasters have picked Pitt to break Navy's undefeated record, the midshipmen do not believe it.

"Pitt Can't Do It!" stated a large sign placed over the roof of Bancroft hall tonight.

During the week Navy has been working out a new attack for the Panthers and working hard on defense. From Pittsburgh came the report that the Panthers were giving special attention to practice in breaking up the forward-lateral features of Navy's basket ball style of offense.

Hold Signal Drill.

This afternoon both gave most of their attention to signal drill, kicking and passing. Slade D. Cutter, Navy's field goal specialist, spent his time booting the ball between the uprights. The coaches hope he can show the same accuracy tomorrow.

The first of the crowd expected had arrived in Annapolis tonight. Among those scheduled to be on hand for the kickoff are Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President; Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the treasury; and scores of admirals, generals, and senators.

CRUICKSHANK, ARMOUR WIN IN MIDSOUTH GOLF

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Completing their domination of the four days' play, Tommy Armour and Bobby Cruickshank routed Billy Burke and Johnny Revolta, 6 and 4, today in the final of the midsouth Scotch foursomes match play golf championship.

During the entire tournament Armour and Cruickshank were down only once, and then for only one hole. In their third round match Sal Dibuono and Jack Patroni, Westchester, won the first hole with a par 4, but lost the second.

The Scots played thirty-two holes today in two above par, and all week long hovered only a few strokes above par. Starting the afternoon round 2 up, they saw their lead drop to 1 up at the nineteenth hole, when Burke holed a twenty footer for a birdie 3.

Armour and Cruickshank turned on the steam and reached the turn 5 up as the result of a subpar 35. They conferred on the use of clubs on all crucial shots and rarely guessed wrong. Their victory was their fourteenth in fifteen matches they have played as partners.

As the winning pair they collected $450 each of the $2,300 prize money. Burke and Revolta drew $300 each.

Maryland to Invade Indiana This Afternoon

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Indiana and Maryland will meet in Memorial stadium at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in their first intersectional football clash.

A close contest was in prospect, with both teams fairly evenly matched. Although Maryland has had a more successful season, with three shutout victories and two losses, Indiana has played a tougher schedule and has not been defeated or scored against on the home field. In their two home games the Hoosiers defeated Ohio university, 27 to 0, and tied Iowa, 0 to 0.

The Terrapin squad of 26 men arrived in Bloomington at noon and practiced in the Indiana stadium. Coach Bo McMillin later polished off his team. The easterners, specializing in an aerial game, are expected to do much passing. Indiana will rely upon its running attack.

The Rockford boxer had a wide margin in points, and in the sixth round smashed Misko to the canvas twice, once for a count of nine, and again at the end of the round. The count was halted at two by the bell.

Breadon, Wentz May Resume Talk of Cardinal Sale

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Although the deal for the sale of the world championship Cardinals to Lew H. Wentz still was off tonight, the impression grew that it may soon be on again.

Neither Sam Breadon, owner of 77 per cent of the National league baseball club's stock, nor Wentz had burned his bridges, and the way remained open for a renewal of negotiations, suddenly broken off late yesterday.

Wentz, Oklahoma oil multi-millionaire, remained in St. Louis "maybe for a day or two," and Breadon will be here at least until Monday before starting on a vacation trip to Florida. Wentz, bound by a promise to Breadon not to discuss any phase of the negotiations, declined to admit the deal was off.

"I don't know just when I will leave town," Wentz commented. "And if, by chance, I should happen to bump into Sam Breadon during the next day or two, I certainly would welcome a conversation with him. We might even talk about baseball."

"No, I didn't say that negotiations can't be resumed," Breadon said, replying to a query. He was certain, however, that "negotiations for the sale of the club are dropped for an indefinite period."

ST. JOHN'S IS BEATEN, 13 TO 12, BY MOOSEHEART

Waukesha, Wis., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—The Mooseheart academy football team defeated St. John's Military academy, 13 to 12, in the latter's homecoming here tonight before 3,500. It was the first defeat St. John's had suffered since 1931.

Trailing, 12 to 7, at the half, the Illinois team opened a fierce attack soon after the second half started and, with the power of Ralph Pickett, carried the ball to the Cadets' 8 yard line, from where Conn, left half, scored on a drive through center.

NORTH PARK HAS FOOTBALL TEAM; IT PLAYS TODAY

North Park college of Chicago, possessor of a 31 year old perfect record in football, will risk its status in its homecoming game with Concordia college of River Forest at Loyola stadium this afternoon. North Park's long period of supremacy is explained by the fact that today's game will be the first in the history of the college. The kickoff is set for 2 o'clock.

Concordia, which has been playing football for years, expects no walkaway despite the fact that the Lake Forest eleven has won its last four games by decisive margins. North Park's first football team was given a trial this week in a practice game with the American College of Physical Education and Coach Bert Youngquist was satisfied with the showing of the squad.

A crowd of 5,000 is expected. Lineup:

NORTH PARK.		CONCORDIA.

Dodgers Send Beck to Mission Baseball Team

New York, Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Walter Beck, right handed pitcher who came to the Brooklyn National league club last season from Memphis, today was sent to the Missions club of the Pacific Coast league by the Dodgers. The release of Beck to the Missions is part payment for Johnny Babich, pitcher, who joined the Dodgers last year.

Prep Sectional Winners Meet This Afternoon

Four sectional championship elevens, with their eyes trained on the interleague game at Soldiers' field on Dec. 1, step out today in the semi-finals of the Chicago Public High School league. Crane Tech, champion of the west section, meets Fenger from the south at Stagg field, while Lane Tech of the north division opposes Lindblom, perennial winner of the central crown, at the new Lane Tech athletic field, Western avenue and Addison street.

Fenger has the most impressive record of the semi-finalists, and looks for a victory over Crane, which succeeded Harrison Tech, last year's league champion, as the west division titleholder. Fenger is the only team in the title playoffs which is undefeated, untied, and unscored on.

Fenger Takes Five in a Row.

In winning the south section championship Fenger scored five consecutive victories, piling up 59 points. Crane Tech, which was tied by Austin, has won five games, rolling up 81 points, while its goal was crossed twice. It will be Crane Tech's first appearance in the semi-final round in six years.

The game betwen Lane Tech and Lindblom brings together two teams which have a habit of bobbing up in the playoffs. Lindblom has won the league championship four times, the last one four years ago. Lindblom will be out to stop Frank Balazs, 16 year old senior full back, who has led Lane to several victories this fall.

Title Game Next Week.

The winners of the games this afternoon will meet next Saturday, probably at Soldiers' field, for the league title. The champion of the league then will oppose the Catholic league titleholder in a charity game.

The Catholic league semi-finalists will be determined tomorrow when St. Mel meets St. Philip at St. Philip field with the west section title at stake. Two games have direct bearing on the east division championship. Leo, tied with St. Rita for the lead, meets De Paul at Shewbridge field, while St. Rita plays Mount Carmel at St. Rita field.

Glenbard of Glen Ellyn is expected to capture the West Suburban conference championship when it faces Hinsdale on the latter's field today. In the event Hinsdale is victorious over Glenbard, the winner of the Riverside-Maine game at Des Plaines will win the title.

Hawks Home for Opener with Toronto

The revamped world's champion Blackhawks arrived in Chicago last night to open their home hocky season tomorrow night at the Stadium. Because of their road successes they were in a jubilant mood despite the fact that an even half dozen players will require the attention of Trainer Froelich today and tomorrow.

The Montreal Maroon game Thursday, which the Blackhawks won, was a rough contest, but Manager Loughlin announced the cuts and bruises were of a minor nature and that a complete squad would take the ice against the Toronto Maple Leafs tomorrow. Toronto, like the Hawks, leads its division. The Leafs and Hawks are the only teams in the league still undefeated. The Leafs, however, must play the Maroons at Toronto tonight.

Canadian hocky experts, who watched the Hawks in five days' practice and in the game against the Maroons, were lavish in their praise of the Chicago forward lines.

WHAT? October Ale in November? How Come?

• Yes, and in December and January and February, too, if it will only last.

October Ale is the rich, full-bodied fall and winter drink of English-speaking peoples all over the earth.

"For here's a drink," as the English say, "that sticks to your ribs."

The alcohol content is very much increased in October Ale. But it is so thoroughly melded into the heavy body that the drink seems actually mellow instead of strong.

Drewrys laid down the first specially brewed October Ale to be made in America. But didn't lay down enough. For how could we tell?

Our present supply will hardly last through to the holidays. And after that there won't be any more for another year.

"So laugh, lads, and quaff, lads, 'twill make you stout and hale."

Mule Dowell kept plowing through De Paul's defense to lead Tech's attack. The big half back scored four touchdowns.

FLORIDA INVITES HUEY'S ELEVEN TO MEET PITT

Miami, Fla., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Senator Huey Long was invited by the city commission today to bring the Louisiana State university football team here New Year's day for an "Orange Blossom festival" game with an eastern team, probably the University of Pittsburgh.

The commissioners, however, decided to delay action upon the invitation to the Pittsburgh team until after tomorrow's game with Navy.

The intersectional contest would be Florida's effort to capture some of the national interest in California's Rose bowls game. The last big football game here was four years ago, when Florida played Oregon.

ORIGINAL ALICE OF WONDERLAND TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Hargreaves Dies in English Home at 82.

WESTERHAM, England, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Alice of Wonderland—Mrs. Alice Hargreaves—died today.

She had been ill for weeks, this little 82 year old lady who, when she was 10, inspired lean, pedantic Charles Lutwidge Dodgson to desert his dusty mathematics and write of jabberwockys, mad hatters, March hares and similar delightful absurdities.

Mrs. Hargreaves' death occured in the beamed, red brick home, the Beaches, where she spent her later years in peace and quiet, peace interrupted two years ago when the world, wishing to commemorate the 100th birthday of the author of "Alice in Wonderland," brought her out of retirement.

Marvels at Elevators.

Despite her age, she went to the United States to be whirled from one function to another, marveling at elevators and tall buildings. She was made honorary doctor of letters by Columbia university; she spoke over the radio, and returned home thanking Americans for making her stay "so pleasant."

Forever associated with little girls because she furnished the prototype for the child whom Dodgson, writing as "Lewis Carroll," sent chasing the white rabbit through the topsy-turvy world he created, Mrs. Hargreaves had no daughters of her own.

Two of her three sons lost their lives in the world war; the third, Capt. Caryl Hargreaves of the Scots Guard, surviving. He accompanied her to the United States in 1932.

Manuscript Sold for $77,000.

Alice, whose maiden name was Liddell, received the manuscript of "Alice in Wonderland" from Dodgson as a Christmas present. She sold it in 1928 to S. A. Rosenbach, Philadelphia and New York collector, for $77,000. Rosenbach in turn disposed of it to Eldridge R. Johnson of Camden, N. J.

Alice, born May 4, 1852, was 10 years old when her father became dean of Christ college of Oxford university, and she and her two younger sisters came to know the don, the Rev. Mr. Dodgson.

They made him their playfellow; he took them boat riding on the Thames; they asked for stories—and the adventures of Alice resulted.

It was Alice, too, who insisted that the imperishable nonsense be written down. And so it was, to become a source of pleasure for children and adults of every generation since.

A "BUY FRENCH" DRIVE OPENED BY FACTORY GROUP

PARIS, Nov. 16.—(AP)—A "buy French" campaign to induce the French people to buy domestic rather than foreign made products was launched today by a large group of manufacturers.

Part of their program is the compilation of a directory of strictly French products, primarily for the use of the ministry of public works in its 10,000,000,000 franc ($658,000,000) six year construction program to reduce unemployment.

It will also be distributed to French consumers to discourage the use of foreign goods. American interests here said they were not alarmed, because they believed the plan was "too impractical to succeed." The French automobile which has the largest sale would be affected, since it uses licensed American processes.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

It's a great season for amateurs. Maj. Edward Bowes, the maestro of the Capitol theater in New York, has established probably the best known amateur radio contest aired over WHN Tuesday nights. The new ABS system is attracting some attention with its amateur nights in Harlem. Quin Ryan recently launched a series of amateur programs over W-G-N. And now comes WBBM with a contest dedicated to the radio neophyte. The station is offering a $1,300 contract and an opportunity for a radio career to some feminine singer who has never received financial remuneration for singing on the air. Applicants should register at room 982 Wrigley building. Auditions will commence on Dec. 6.

Her vaudeville tour finished, Gertrude Berg is getting ready a new radio script. She has dropped "The Goldbergs" for the time being but has written another comedy about Jewish characters titled "The House of Glass." Gertrude Berg's tour with the Goldberg family started out last July at the Chicago theater. She expected to tour only a few weeks. Instead she was out for four months.

Ted Husing's football broadcasts have got him into trouble again. Still barred from Harvard because of his characterization of a Crimson play as "putrid" Husing now has Yale men sore. "Why do you tolerate an announcer," fan letters have been saying, "who deliberately calls Yale players unpleasant names?" During the Army-Yale encounter Husing kept referring to the New Haven gridmen as "Sons of the Bulldog."

Fritzi Scheff, famous musical comedy star of yesteryear, and Conrad Thibault will join Don Voorhees' orchestra to present the first of a new series of "House Party" broadcasts Monday evening. Miss Scheff and Thibault will supplant Joe Cook, Frances Langford, and Donald Novis, who have been performing for the same sponsor. Novis has been engaged as the headline singer on the CBS "45 Minutes in Hollywood," program.

Paul Whiteman has picked the judges for his newly established scholarship as a memorial to his mother. They will be George Gershwin, Deems Taylor, Edwin Franko Goldman, and Robert A. Simon. . . . Station WCBD at Waukegan [1030 kilos.] will launch a program of Italian operas at 10:30 Monday morning. The program will run a half hour six mornings a week, with explanations in both Italian and English.

BOOK "JUGGLING" STORY HEARD IN THOMPSON TRIAL

Evidence of alleged juggling of the books of various real estate companies controled by Andrew C. Thompson, head of the defunct Continental Mortgage Bond company, who is on trial for mail fraud, was introduced by the government yesterday before a jury in the court of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward.

R. O. Berg, a former bookkeeper employed by Thompson, testified that he was instructed to make false entries purporting to show that $198,000 had been paid to various Thompson subsidiaries for remodeling work on apartment buildings.

The government charges that the entries were fraudulent because no such expenditures were made for remodeling work. It is further alleged that Thompson sold $390,000 worth of bonds on the Georgian-La Salle building, 1718 North La Salle street, through misrepresentations sent through the mails.

The trial was adjourned until Monday, when Berg will continue his testimony.

STOCKHOLDERS REJECT OPTION ON MIDDLE WEST

Refuse Claims, Notes Even at Discount.

The common stockholders' committee of the Middle West Utilities company last night flatly rejected an option to buy from secured creditors and noteholders their dominant interest in the former Insull holding concern, which was placed in receivership in April, 1932.

Charles S. Dewey, chairman of the noteholders' committee, announced terms of the option yesterday afternoon. Under it his group would pass along its option to buy out for $11,340,000 secured creditors holding claims with a face value of $22,060,469. The second part of the proposal offered the $32,466,000 in notes held by the committee at 42 cents on the dollar, or $13,935,000. Mr. Dewey said the committee gave its option "with no hope or expectation that the common stockholders' committee will be able to exercise it, although if their claim that the company is solvent is correct this option gives them a chance to make a net profit of over $22,000,000."

Stockholders Claim Point.

In rejecting the offer Orville J. Taylor, counsel for the common stock committee, claimed to have scored an important point in the jockying prior to arguments, which will begin Dec. 15, on the merits of the plan of reorganization fostered by the secured creditors. The noteholders also announced formal adherence to the plan yesterday.

Under the plan a new company would be formed with 3,000,000 shares of common stock of a stated value of $18,000,000. The secured creditors would take 63 per cent of the stock and the noteholders would get the remainder. Stocksolders would receive warants to buy stock at prices from $8 to $10 over a ten year period.

The creditors maintain that the company is insolvent—not being worth their claim of $62,060,469 face value, including the full issue of $40,000,000 in notes. Stockholders oppose the plan, but will be unable to block it unless they are shown to have an interest in the company through its being solvent.

Taylor Raps Noteholders.

Mr. Taylor contended last night that the noteholders now have admitted that they actually value the company above the figure set.

"Why are they not willing to take $18,000,000 in cash?" he inquired. "We are in no way interested in a proposition such as theirs. We fail to understand upon what theory the bankers and noteholders ask more than $25,000,000 in cash when they are willing to take all the assest of the company for $18,000,000. Nothing, in our opinion, can more clearly establish the unfairness and inadequacy of the values on which the plan of reorganization is predicated. They know that the stock is infinitly more valuable than the price they have set on it."

Taylor also pointed out that the $25,275,000 option total did not include the $7,534,000 in notes not deposited with the noteholders' committee. If these were to be bought at the 42 cent rate the aggregate price would be $28,340,000 for the holdings to be canceled for $18,000,000 in stock of the new cmopany.

STEEL PRICE CUT WITHOUT BASIS, SAYS E. T. WEIR

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—There "is no basis for any reduction of prices" of steel products, E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel corporation, said today in expressing his opinion that quotations for the first quarter of 1935 will not be changed from present levels.

His statement, steel men said, put at rest rumors current for several weeks that a "price war" between independents was a possibility. Within the next two weeks prices for the first quarter will be posted with the American Iron and Steel institute.

BUILDING CONTRACTS IN OCTOBER LARGEST SINCE LAST MARCH

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Construction contract awards for October in 37 states east of the Rockies were reported today to be the largest since March for all classes.

The total of $135,524,800 for October represented gains over September in all thirteen districts reporting to the F. W. Dodge corporation, with the exception of upstate New York, where a small decline was indicated. The September total was $110,151,200, and October, 1933, was $145,367,200.

Residential contract records proved outstanding with a gain of nearly 50 per cent over September. The total of $26,299,800 exceeded the same month of 1933 by more than 20 per cent. Gains were reported in October over the previous month in each of the 13 Dodge districts with the exceptions of New England, Chicago and southern Michigan areas. Gains over October, 1933, were reported except in New England, upstate New York and Texas areas.

Contemplated construction in the 37 states in October was $237,658,500 against $149,885,100 in September and $886,627,300 for October, 1933, the latter figure being when PWA planning was gaining.

In the first ten months of this year Dodge reported construction awards totaling $1,338,986,100 in the 37 eastern states as against $886,158,300 for the same period of last year. Cumulative gains over 1933 were reported as $248,000,000 in public works, $149,000,000 in nonresidential building, $43,000,000 in public utilities, and $12,000,000 in residential building.

A Roosevelt Hits 'Planning' by Politicians

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Nicholas Roosevelt, distant cousin of the President and former minister to Hungary under the Hoover administration, yesterday labeled the whole philosophy of planned economy as one of "extreme reaction" instead of liberalism, and suggested cooperative economic planning among business, industrial, and agricultural groups themselves rather than schemes foisted on these groups by politicians in Washington. He spoke at a luncheon of the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman.

NICHOLAS ROOSEVELT. [(C) Harris & Ewing]

Furthermore, said this Roosevelt, if the politicians go on spending until they exhaust government credit the starting of the printing presses will be inevitable.

"Spend and Why Worry."

"The idea in congress is going to be 'spend and don't bother where it is coming from,'" he said. "But you have got to worry about where it is coming from, and something has to be done to control the expenditures these people are going to try to force upon us.

"I am not, however, one of those who are alarmed at the prospect of a 36 billion, or even a 40 billion deficit, so long as a limit is set somewhere."

Control of government credit is one of the chief essentials of recovery, Mr. Roosevelt said, in view of present indications that bills calling for the expenditure of from 20 billions to 30 billions of dollars will come before the next session of congress.

Postponing Balanced Budget.

The speaker recalled that the President had at one time expressed the hope that the federal budget could be balanced by 1936, but added that he personally did not figure that postponing this accomplishment another year or two would make a "terribly great difference."

The veterans' bonus, he said, probably would be passed by congress and also probably would be vetoed by the President. He thought that congress would support such a veto, in view of the fact that the President seems to have more complete control over congress than a year ago.

Relief, recovery, and reform, said Mr. Roosevelt, have been badly scrambled in the New Deal and are only now beginning to be disentangled. Postponement of additional "reform" measures and purely experimental legislation, he thought, would hasten recovery.

Relief Still Big Problem.

Admitting that the relief problem would probably continue for another year or two with a consequent continued drain on the public treasury, the speaker contended that relief expenditures should be placed as nearly as possible on a "pay as you go" basis, with possibly the enactment of a federal sales tax, the proceeds to be earmarked for relief.

"On the solution of the relief problem," he continued, "very likely depends the success of the whole New Deal program. We are sure to have continued uncertainty as to where we are going until it is settled."

On the subject of the New Deal planned economy, Mr. Roosevelt said: "It implies the placing of the industry and business of the country on a rational basis, so that production shall equal consumption, plus what other nations can use. It is a very nice idea, but it also implies national planning for the economic activities of the entire continent.

"Now I maintain that the brains don't exist anywhere in the world to plan on that scale. The only way that this could be done, as we learned by our experiment of prohibition, would be by federal police force or a bureocracy with strict police powers. This is simply unthinkable.

Control Needs Punishment.

"There must be the element of punishment if production control measures are to succeed. That would be demanding that the individual surrender practically his entire judgment to the government.

"I am pleased to see many indications that we are getting away from planned economy. I am really distinctly optimistic that the President is moving away from some theories, with a number of professors in China and elsewhere, and is coming back to more orthodox economy."

Economic planning, as distinct from politically enforced planned economy, he said, would help business men, farmers, and industrialists to get together and solve some of their own production problems instead of being told by federal policemen what they must or must not do under penalty.

UTILITY PLACES $18,000,000 BONDS IN PRIVATE SALE

Private sale of $18,000,000 of 30 year first refunding mortgage bonds was announced yesterday by Consolidated Gas Electric Light and Power company of Baltimore, subject to approval of the Maryland public service commission.

The issue was placed through White, Weld & Co., and associates with the Metroptolitan Life Insurance company, Prudential Insurance company of America, New York Life Insurance company, Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance company, and Insurance Company of North America.

The bonds, which were sold at 96, carry a 3¾ per cent coupon and mature Nov. 1, 1964. The proceeds of the sale will be used to refund $13,845,000 general mortgage 4½s due Feb. 14, 1935, and $1,341,300 Annapolis and Chesapeake Bay Power company called bonds, as well as to reimburse the company for expenditures for improvements and extensions.

The bonds are not subject to registration because, according to officials, they are being sold to purchasers who do not intend to market them.

6 OF 20 MORE CLOSED BANKS PAY DEPOSITORS

Nine of Group Have Returned Nothing.

Six depositor payments were made during the quarter ended Sept. 30 in the group of 20 more closed state banks for which reports were issued last night by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett. Four were to depositors who previously had received nothing, but nine banks in this group have returned nothing.

The State Bank of Blue Island, one of the non-paying banks, is scheduled to reopen in the next few weeks, however. A reorganization plan has been approved by the auditor whereby the institution will open with 40 per cent of its deposits freed. Waivers of $140,000 in deposits and new capital subscriptions of $100,000 have been approved. Admission to membership in th Federal Deposit Insurance corporation remains the one step to be taken before formal permission to reopen is given by the state auditor. Otto Wieljorecki is chairman of the reorganization group.

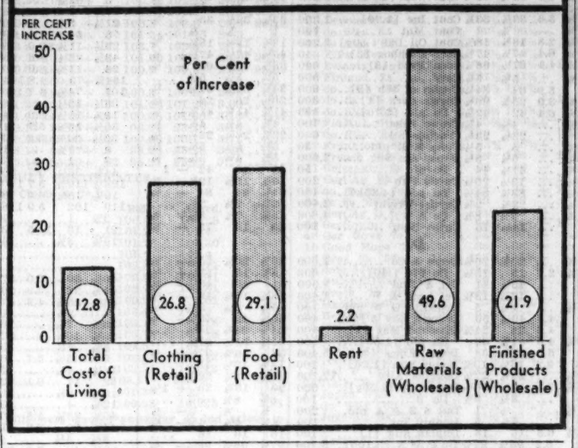
Changes in Commodity Prices and the Cost of Living Since March 1933



Charges Book Values Written Up by A.T.&T.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—How nearly $4,000,000 was added to the book value of two New York state properties of the American Telephone and Telegraph company through their sale during 1926 and 1927 to the New York Telephone company was described in testimony before the communications commission today by Milo R. Maltbie, chairman of the New York state utilities commission.

His appearance was in connection with hearings on the adoption of a uniform accounting system for telephone companies, now two years in the making.

Denounces I. C. C. System.

Maltbie denounced the present accounting system approved by the ICC as one that made possible the "padding" of book values through the transfer or sale of a property by a parent company to one of its subsidiaries, or vice versa. The New York Telephone company, he pointed out, was a wholly owned subsidiary of the A. T. & T.

One transaction mentioned by Maltbie involved sale of telephones and complimentary equipment in 1927, then carried on the books of the A. T. & T. at $8,135,000. Of this amount, $3,980,000 was described by him as applicable to depreciation reserve so that the resulting book value was $4,154,000. When the property was sold to the New York Telephone company, the subsidiary entered it on its books at $6,440,000. This resulted in a write up amounting to $2,286,000, according to Maltbie.

Another Writeup Alleged.

The other transactions involved sale of some long distance lines, poles and other equipment in 1926, he said. At the time of its sale to the subsidiary company, according to Maltbie, the property was carried on the books of the A. T. & T. at $5,087,000. The amount applicable to the property in depreciation reserve, he placed at $814,000 with a resulting book value on the books of the A. T. & T. of $4,273,000.

When the property was bought by the New York Telephone company it was entered upon its books at $5,929,000, Maltbie explained, thus producing a "writeup" of the value of the property by the parent company to another wholly owned subsidiary of $1,656,000.

HENRY M. DAWES OBJECTS TO U. S. CONTROL OF OIL

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Objections to federal control of the petroleum industry were laid before the congressional oil inquiry committee today by the president of a $200,000,000 oil company and by a member of the Texas oil administrative agency.

Henry M. Dawes of Chicago, for ten years president of the Pure Oil company, advised the committee against federal control and described the dangers he said were involved in enactment of new legislative supervision of the industry.

Ernest O. Thompson, junior member of the Texas railroad commission, state oil regulatory body, flatly opposed federal control. He told the committee, however, "we have always conceded that the federal government should control interstate commerce," and said a "definite, coöperative plan of action" has been agreed upon.

MARLAND PLANS AGREEMENT FOR ALL OIL STATES

Ponca City, Okla., Nov. 16.—(AP)—E. W. Marland, governor elect of Oklahoma, announced today he had called upon Patrick J. Hurley and Northcutt Ely to help him write an oil state's compact. Hurley is former secretary of war, and Ely a Washington attorney.

The two advisors are expected to arrive here about three days before the scheduled conference of oil states' governors which Marland has called for Dec. 3.

"I'm not going to pussyfoot about the objective," Marland said. "We've talked about conservation to prevent waste. The real objective is to prevent production of oil at a loss, through a fair economic value."

SEC Forces Boston Curb Exchange to Close Forever

Boston, Mass., Nov. 16.—(AP)—The Boston Curb exchange, ceased operations today "for all time," on pain of heavy federal penalties. Directors of the exchange, which has listed only a few mining and oil stocks since the 1929 market crash, voted today to close and also consented to an order of the securities and exchange commission whereby any further operation would constitute a violation of the securities act.

The action of the exchange came in the face of a planned resumption of a federal inquiry as to whether the securities act has been or was likely to be violated. Testimony had been adduced at a previous hearing to show that four stocks listed on the exchange were banned from sale in Massachusetts, and that another, widely sold in the state, had been delisted under pressure.

The closing of the exchange followed a speech here yesterday by Joseph P. Kennedy, SEC chairman, promising an intensive drive against operators and dealers in questionable stocks. An even closer development after Kennedy's speech was the closing today of the brokerage firm of Perrin W. Young & Co.

This firm, described by counsel for the securities commission as a "sell and switch" house, was said to be financed by a former convict.

A few stocks, principally those of mining and oil companies, have been listed on the curb, Ralph A. Alexander, manager of the financial division of the Better Business bureau, said tonight. Alexander said the heyday of the exchange was in 1928, when in a single week checked by the bureau, sales totaled $1,500,000. Only one stock was traded in on the curb exchange yesterday, according to a quotation in a Boston newspaper.

Stocks were listed in connection with the tipster sheets, Alexander said, but in 1928, publicity as to the operations in certain of the curb's stocks caused numerous newspapers to cease printing quotations.

CORN SHORTAGE SENDS PRICE TO NEW 1934 PEAK

Rises to 84½ Cents; Wheat Declines.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Leaving other grains behind, corn continued to rise on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. The December future brought a new high quotation for the year at 84½ cents a bushel and other contracts reached the best prices in months.

The tremendous shortage in supplies existing in the great producing areas was again emphasized when the higher prices here failed to attract any corn from the country. Chicago buyers are still being outbid by purchasers who want the grain to haul to the drouth devastated states in the southwest, which normally produce more than they need, but this year must import supplies. Truckers from the southwest are scouring Illinois and Iowa for every available bushel of corn and are willing to pay higher prices than terminal market handlers.

Country Buyers Take Corn.

These buyers are getting the corn, stocks in the terminal markets are dwindling, and concern is growing that later on Illinois and Iowa, the biggest producers, will themselves face a shortage.

Speculation in corn is centering in the December contract, the nearest future delivery. May corn also is in good demand, but yesterday there was a small decline of ¼ to ⅜ cent in the July future. There is some prospect, remote at present, that next spring Argentine corn will be brought into the country to relieve the domestic situation. One Chicago grain firm yesterday was reported to have purchased a cargo of Argentine corn which was reputedly hedged in the July future. Any material importations, however, appear unlikely before the Argentine crop is ready for harvest next spring.

Wheat Follows Foreign Decline.

Wheat prices, which are not determined by domestic conditions to the same extent as corn, were unable to advance yesterday in face of the weakness in foreign markets. Thursday's advance in wheat prices was made in the face of foreign market declines, but yesterday the grain gave ground. Wheat was off ½ to 1⅛ cents a bushel at the end of the day. Closing prices on December futures were:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.00⅝	$1.01⅛	$ .99⅜
Corn	.84	.83⅝	.78⅜
Oats	.52⅝	.52⅜	.51⅝
Rye	.71⅝	.71¾	.69¼

Although the prospect a few weeks ago that Argentina will produce a bumper wheat crop has faded, the Buenos Aires market has failed to register the changed outlook. Yesterday prices broke moderately in the South American market after a week of idling. The lack of response in both Buenos Aires and Liverpool to either the Argentine or Australian crop news has effectively checked the bull fever here.

The intermittant spurts that wheat prices have shown have resulted largely from the technical condition of the market recently. Speculative operations have shifted to the corn pit. Sales of wheat against purchases of corn or other grains bring a natural upturn when traders cover their commitments.

FOREIGN MONEYS RALLY, BUT STAY UNDER GOLD MARK

New York, Nov. 16.—[Special.]—The gold bloc currencies recovered slightly in the foreign exchange market today, but continued, except for the Swiss franc, below their gold import prices. About $5,000,000 more gold was engaged abroad for import here, bringing to about $90,000,000 the total of gold taken from Europe by the United States on the current movement.

The engagement of gold has been restricted in the last two days by the fact that no sailings from Europe will be available until the middle of next week. Gold imports totaling $9,374,900 were reported today by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Of this amount $6,578,200 from France and $1,121,200 from England were received on Thursday, while $1,675,500 from Canada came in today. In addition to these imports the reserve bank reported the release from earmarking of $275,500, making the total net gain shown in the gold statement $9,650,400.

French francs gained ⅝ point to close at 6.68⅞ cents, making the value of the dollar, based on the old par of the franc at 59.46 cents, compared with 59.48 cents yesterday. Against the new par of the franc the dollar was valued at $1.0067, against $1.0073.

British pound sterling was unchanged at $4.99½, as were Canadian dollars at $1.02½. The Swiss franc rose 2 points to 32.47 cents and the Dutch florin one point to 67.55 cents. German marks were 4 points lower at 40.16 cents. The Italian lire held at 8.55 cents and the Belgian belga at 23.32 cents.

Bullion brokers in London marked down gold prices 1½ pence to 139 shillings 3 pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.75.

GOODYEAR WILL KEEP OWN UNION; FLOUTS A. F. OF L.

Akron, O., Nov. 16.—(AP)—The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company today rejected in effect a request of an American Federation of Labor union for the opening of collective bargaining negotiations. This union claims between 60 and 70 per cent of Goodyear employés are members. The company employs between 12,000 and 15,000 persons.

Clifton Slusser, vice president of the company, told a committee representing the labor union that the firm "is satisfied with its present harmonious relations" with an "industrial assembly" and will continue its bargaining with employés through that agency.

Freight Sags, but Again Tops 1933 Loadings

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—[Special.]—Freight trafic last week showed a slightly less than seasonal decline of 17,525 cars, or 2.7 per cent from the preceding week, according to figures released yesterday by the Association of American Railroads. The total of 594,932 cars was 11,859 cars, or 1.8 per cent, above a year ago, the first increase over 1933 since the last week in June. In the week ended June 30 there was a rise of .4 per cent over the corresponding week of last year.

The total last week was 58,245 cars above the 1932 week. The drop from the preceding week was attributed to the observance of a holiday in many localities on election day. Total loadings for the year to date amount to 27,047,677 cars, against 25,444,370 in the corresponding period of 1933 and 24,630,729 in 1932.

OLD REPUBLIC WILL REINSURE STATE LIFE CO.

The Old Republic Credit Life Insurance company, Chicago, was awarded the management contract of the State Life of Illinois yesterday by Superior Judge William J. Lindsay. This action followed the recommendations of the receiver of State Life, H. B. Hershey, and Ernest Palmer, director of insurance of Illinois. Judge Lindsay said that he would sign the reinsurance order Monday.

An initial lien of 80 per cent will be placed against reserves. Interest on the lien will be computed at 4½ per cent a year until Dec. 31, 1941, when the rate will be readjusted.

There will be a five year moratorium on cash surrender and loan values, but policy holders of State Life will be permitted to borrow against free reserves in order to pay premiums. Those policy holders who have permitted their policies to lapse since July 20, 1934, will have 90 days in which to have them reinstated.

Old Republic Credit Life will receive compensation of $1 per thousand dollars of extended insurance, $1.50 per thousand of annual renewable term insurance, and $2 for all other types of policies.

HOWELL IS CITED FOR VIOLATION OF GRAIN ACT

Sec. Wallace Seeks to Bar Speculator.

Thomas M. Howell, reputed to be the largest speculator in grains on the Chicago Board of Trade, was cited yesterday in Washington by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for alleged violation of the grain futures act. The charge is an outgrowth of Howell's operations in the Chicago corn pit in the summer of 1931, when he accumulated more than 8,000,000 bushels of corn which, according to the government citation, represented a market corner.

Howell is the second big Chicago speculator who has become the target of prosecution by the agricultural department. A similar case is pending against Arthur W. Cutten, who is charged with failing to report his transactions as required by law. In both cases the government is seeking to bar the speculators from further operations on the grain exchanges.

Several Associates Named.

The Howell citation named several of the trader's associates, including his wife and his daughter, Helen. Others named are R. N. Meyer and J. R. Meyer of Chicago, brothers of Mrs. Howell; H. F. Hall, Howell's secretary; Kelly Butler, Arthur De Cordova, and Frank Bliss, friends of Howell; J. P. Bickell of Toronto, Ont., and the Barrington company, a Delaware corporation owned by Howell.

Bickell is associated with the brokerage firm of Thompson & McKinnon in the Toronto office and is a member of the Board of Trade. The two Meyer brothers also hold seats on the grain exchange and are members of the firm of R. N. Meyer & Co., 327 South La Salle street.

The government charges that Howell acting individually and through the so called "Howell group" got a corner on the supply of corn in the Chicago market in July, 1931, by accepting delivery on the July futures purchased.

Says He Evaded Agreement.

The government charges that he evaded the agreement between the grain futures administration and the Board of Trade whereby all open contracts of 5,000,000 bushels or more are reported to the government. This was done, Secretary Wallace alleges, by making contracts in the names of different members of the Howell group and keeping them under 5,000,000 bushels.

Through his big holdings Howell was able to manipulate the price of corn and bring about a rise of 14 cents a bushel in three days, the citation said. The result was that traders who had sold July corn were squeezed and had to buy in corn from Howell's brokers at higher prices, it is contended.

On July 27, the government charged, the Howell group had contracts in July corn aggregating 8,310,000 bushels, at which time the Board of Trade reported the visible supply of corn of all grades at important centers east of the Rocky mountains was only 7,197,000 bushels. In the Chicago district there were only 1,480,000 bushels of corn of deliverable grade in public elevators, the government said.

Howell Won't Comment.

Neither Howell nor his attorney, Sidney S. Gorham, would comment last night on the government's action. Attorney Gorham said that he had just been notified of the action and could make no statement.

Howell's market operations have always been cloaked in mystery. At times he has traded extensively in the stock market, but he is known primarily as a grain speculator. He has been reported on both sides of the market at various times.

At the time of his big operations in the corn pit in 1931 Howell issued a public statement admitting that he had bought more than 8,000,000 bushels of corn. His declaration was made to refute charges made by an Iowa farm organization that he was depressing the price of corn through short selling.

It is expected that a special referee will be named to take testimony in the Howell case, as was done in the case of Cutten. There appears to be a possibility, however, that the matter will be taken directly to court by the defendant. Cutten defended himself by pleading that the grain futures act gives the commission no power to deprive him of trading rights.

Officials of the Board of Trade last night had no comment to make on the government charge against Howell.

Federal Inquiry Leads to Market Relapse.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 16.—An almost continuous drumfire of selling orders laid down against American Telephone shares, as a result of the communication commission's order for an investigation of the corporation's contracts with associated Bell companies, held the bull contingent at bay on the stock exchange throughout today's session.

American Telephone was battered down more than 5 points to a new low for the year, and virtually the whole utilities group was sold to lower levels with it. Such issues as American Water Works, Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Union Gas, and North American finished a point or more below their previous finals. Postal Telegraph and Western Union also suffered. This weakness had a depressing effect on the whole market, causing it to move irregularly downward.

Most Losses Are Small.

Losses among the more active trading favorites were generally of fractional scope, however, amounting in only a few worth while instances to more than a point. A few strong spots stood out. Budd preferred was active and advanced about 3 points. Spiegel-May-Stern bucked the trend for net gain of more than 4 points.

Briggs Manufacturing was again turned over briskly, emphasizing the talk which has been going the rounds for several days that it has been taken in hand along with Celanese, Montgomery Ward, and one or two other stocks by big scale operators. In the last seven sessions Briggs has moved up from 18⅝ to 23 and the other two have advanced 1 to 2 points on fairly heavy dealings.

Rumor Dividend Reduction.

The drive on American Telephone shares was accompanied by rumors that the company's $9 dividend, which has been maintained throughout the depression, might be cut at the next meeting of the board of directors on Wednesday. The stock opened fractionally lower, then quickly broke below 105, braced up fractionally, and then receded anew. The closing price was only fractionally above the low.

Oil shares continued to resist the downward movement, as they have in other recent sessions, being buoyed by continued improvement in the gasoline price structure.

Farm shares and implement makers gave ground grudgingly.

Some of the rails were conspicuously disappointing in spite of the favorable car loadings statement.

General Motors met with aggressive support in the automobile sector and Johns-Manville, leader of the building department, stood up well.

MORE MAKERS OF NEWSPRINT RAISE PRICES

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 16.—(AP)—The Blandin Paper company of St. Paul and Grand Rapids announced today it will increase its contract newsprint prices $2.50 a ton Jan. 1 and $2.50 July 1. The announcement said the increases were due to the rising costs of labor and material under the National Recovery act.

Canadian Companies Lift Prices.

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The Lake St. John Power and Paper company and the Canadian Internaitonal Paper company will follow the lead of International Paper company and increase its 1935 newsprint contract price $2.50 a ton in the first six months next year and not more than $5 in the last six months, officials of the companies announced today.

STANDARD OIL (N. J.) TO REDEEM 90 MILLION ISSUE

Will Sell Bonds Privately, Borrow from Banks.

New York, Nov. 16.—[Special.]—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey announced today its intention to call for redemption on Feb. 1, 1935, the entire $90,000,000 of 5 per cent debentures outstanding at 102 and accrued interest. The bonds, maturing in 1946, were brought into the market in 1926 as a $120,000,000 issue, of which $30,000,000 were retired early in 1932.

In announcing the company's purpose to shake off this large debt, Walter C. Teagle, president, stated that arrangements have been made to pay $8,000,000 of the debentures, plus the redemption premium and costs, out of cash in the treasury. The balance will be raised by making $45,000,000 of bank loans and issuing $37,000,000 of serial debentures, the last of which will mature in 1941.

Bank Credit Already Arranged.

The bank credit has already been arranged. There will be no public offerings of the debentures, but it is thought likely that they will be exchanged for the $10,273,000 of 5 per cent debentures held by the Rockefeller foundation.

It was explained in the official announcement that no public offering of debentures will be made because of the time element involved in complying with provisions of the securities act. The company, it was said, was not in a position to submit a certificate of independent audit. Such an audit covering subsidiaries operating in all parts of the world, has been under way since May 1, 1934, but it will not be completed before next spring.

Foresee Change in Security Law.

Wall street investment quarters interpreted the company decision to go ahead with its refunding as having some connection with the plan of the securities exchange commission shortly to modify its registration requirements for new issues. Under the present scheme of regulation, it is not illegal for a company to place an unregistered issue of securities privately with banking institutions, insurance companies and the like so long as they are intended to remain with the original purchasers.

"The interest saving to the company's stockholders," said Mr. Teagle, "is substantial, and the directors feel that the financing of the obligations maturing over the next six years, to a final extinguishment of the debt, presents a sound and workable program. It is in accord with the procedure followed by the company in making substantial reductions periodically of obligations ahead of its common stock. This process began in 1927 with the redemption of its 200 million outstanding preferred stock."

Virginia Public Service.

Investors' Guide: Can you give me information on Virginia Public Service bonds? Be assured that I appreciate any information you may be able to give me.—Miss I. M.

Answer: Control of Virginia Public Service company, an operating and holding company, was taken from Middle West Utilities company in March, 1933, when the former passed into the hands of banking interests. The company furnishes utility services, mainly electricity, to about 80,000 customers, mostly in agricultural and small industrial and trading centers, in Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland.

Gross revenues during the first half of 1934 were 3.8 per cent ahead of gross for the corresponding 1933 period, but fixed charges were earned only 1.21 times, against 1.30 times for the first half of 1933.

Gross revenues for 1933 were only 13 per cent less than the peak recorded in 1931, but increased charges cut coverage to 1.31 times, against 1.49 times in 1932, 1.81 times in 1931, and 2.07 times in 1930.

Current position on June 30, 1934, was good. There is no early maturing funded debt. The $25,300,000 first and refunding mortgage bonds are secured by a first mortgage on part of the company's properties and a lien on the remainder, subject to $6,734,500 divisional liens. The $4,158,000 debenture 6s, due 1946, are unsecured.

The first mortgage and refunding bonds are somewhat speculative. The debentures are more a speculation than an investment.

St. Louis National Stockyards.

Investors' Guide: Can you tell me something about stock of St. Louis National Stockyards?—L. J. E.

Answer: St. Louis National Stockyards owns and operates extensive stockyards at East St. Louis, Ill. These cover about 600 acres. The company also owns twenty-five miles of trackage, with switching facilities.

Gross revenues in 1933 totaled $1,389,000, against $1,255,000 in 1932, $1,425,000 in 1931, and $1,584,000 in 1930. Earnings have held well above the profit line for years. Net income in 1933 was $519,000, or $7.11 per share, against $387,000, or $5.29 per share, in 1932. Per share earnings in 1931 were $6.16, against $7.15 in 1930 and $9.29 in 1929.

On Jan. 2, 1934, current assets were $435,000 and current liabilities were $387,000. Funded debt, due 1940, totals $1,150,000. Stock equity is represented solely by 73,100 no par shares.

The stock was placed on a quarterly dividend basis of $1.50 a share on April 2, 1934, against the previous basis of $2.25 a share. The stock deserves a fairly good rating.

FAIR'S MODEL HOMES GO TO BEVERLY SHORES

Buildings Will Be Placed in Permanent Exhibit.

BY AL CHASE.

Six model homes exhibited at A Century of Progress were purchased yesterday by the Robert Bartlett Realty company of Chicago and will be taken by barge to Beverly Shores, a 3,600 acre subdivision on the Indiana shore, which extends from Michigan City west five and a half miles to the Indiana Dunes State park. They will be placed on Lake Shore drive in Hoosier real estate development and by kept open to the public for inspection as long as interest is maintained, according to Mr. Bartlett.

Each house will be landscaped to suit its architecture and every effort will be made to have them contain the same furnishings—or similar—as those seen by several million World's Fair visitors.

The six buildings scheduled for a lake voyage to Indiana's dune region are the Rostone home, the Cypress cottage, the Florida tropical house, the Armco-Ferra home, the ultra-modern "House of Tomorrow, and the modern type of farmhouse.

Contracts were awarded yesterday for the removal of the six houses. To unload the World's Fair homes a 40 foot wide pier extending 200 feet into Lake Michigan will be built on the subdivision lake front. A contract has been let for this and work started.

"The reason we bought these model homes is that they represent what we find are the most outstanding examples of modern home building, combining beauty and practical value," said Mr. Bartlett. "We believe they will have a decided influence on home building in metropolitan Chicago."

The homes will be open to the public daily without charge as soon as they are permanently located.
